LONDON, Aug. 5.—The second stage of the London conference on the Dawes plan of reparation payments was begun today. Chancellor Marx and his colleagues and retinue, numbering forty in all, arrived in London this morning, having been met at Harwich by the German Ambassador and a representative of the British Government, whose guests they are during their stay in London at the Hotel Ritz. Representatives of J. Ramsay MacDonald, in his dual capacity of Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, met them at the Liverpool Street Station and conveyed the invitation to attend a plenary session of the conference at midday at 10 Downing Street.

Marx Calls on MacDonald.

An hour before noon the German Chancellor paid a call on the British Premier in Downing Street. This was primarily a visit of courtesy, but it is understood that Dr. Marx took the opportunity of mentioning to Mr. MacDonald the two points upon which the German delegation was bound to lay the greatest emphasis, namely, the military evacuation of the Ruhr and the abandonment of the scheme to leave a cordon of French and Belgian railway guards behind when the new German railway company takes over the Ruhr roads. Dr. Marx is understood to have said that German public opinion, backed by the Nationalist Party in the Reichstag, made it practically impossible for him to return to Germany without some satisfaction on these points. He asked that definite dates be named for the evacuation of the Ruhr by the French and Belgian troops, and said that the economic evacuation could not be considered complete, as required by the Dawes plan, unless the new railway company were manned by an all-German staff.

When at midday all the conference delegates had assembled in the Prime Minister's room at the Foreign Office—a large crowd had watched their arrival in Downing Street without a demonstration of one kind or another—the Germans were introduced to all the delegates and the American observers and formal handshakes were exchanged. A straight table had been placed across the two ends of the horseshoe table, at which other delegates had sat during the first stage of the conference, and here the Germans took their seats.

A report published yesterday that Premier Herriot had expressed apprehension lest the German spokesman might make reference to the responsibility for the war was denied today. It was noticed with pleasure that when Dr. Marx's turn came to speak he made no acrimonious remarks such as marred the German utterances at Versailles and Cannes.

MacDonald Welcomes Germans.

In a brief speech of welcome to the representatives of the German Government Mr. MacDonald said:

"The allied Governments have been meeting and have come to certain understandings which they wish to communicate to the German Government and in so far as they require to have the assent of the German Government they wish to discuss them with it. The sole business of the conference is to deal with matters arising out of the application of the experts' report, and to that I must as Chairman of the conference confine its attention. I hope that by the exercise of the desire and spirit of co-operation we may arrive speedily at an agreement upon our business and so enable the London Conference of 1924 to mark a successful attempt to make possible friendly relations between the Governments of Europe."

In an almost equally brief reply the German Chancellor said:

"The task which confronts us is of decisive and historical importance. We are convinced that upon the solution of this task the fate of Germany, the fate of Europe depends. We are equally convinced that this task can be achieved only if the spirit of peaceful agreement and strict fairness prevails. The German delegation will negotiate in that spirit."

Dr. Marx then confirmed the previous declaration of the German Government that it regarded the experts' plan as a suitable basis for the solution of the reparation question and added that the German Government, "in the expectation that the conference will come to an agreement, gives its consent to the draft bills prepared by the organization committees on the basis of the report, and that they will lay them before the German legislative bodies with all haste after the end of this conference for the purpose of execution.

"We see here a plan which will and must lead our people to freedom and peace and at the same time afford the possibility of their working together with other peoples in the restoration of Europe. The restoration of mutual confidence is the most important factor for

New Highs for United States And Other Government Bonds

Bonds of the United States Government and of foreign Governments went to new high levels yesterday in active trading. In the United States group, the first 4¼s, third 4¼s and fourth 4¼s touched record high prices for all time and the Treasury 4¼s also pushed into new high ground.

In the foreign Government group, the advances of French Government bonds were the feature, both the 7½s and the 8s touching their highest points of the year. United Kingdom 5½s were also in strong demand, as were the bonds of other foreign Governments and of French cities, including the Lyons and Marseilles issues.

In the market for new bond issues, there was reported by the National City Company, in behalf of the offering group, the full subscription of $25,000,000 of Kingdom of Norway twenty-year 8 per cent. external sinking fund loan gold bonds, which were priced to yield 6.22 per cent.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA BREAK NEGOTIATIONS

RESUMPTION IS TALKED OF

MacDonald Is Said to Be Surprised by Breach—France's Position May Be Affected.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—After negotiations which had lasted nearly four months, and a final session protracted for almost twenty hours and ending at 7:15 this morning, the Anglo-Russian conference has broken down.

This was officially announced early today, but in the afternoon it was vaguely suggested that there still remained a possibility of the conference being resumed.

The point upon which the negotiators could not agree was concerned with obligations in regard to nationalized property. The British held firm to their views in this respect, the Russian delegates pleaded their inability to make what they called any further concessions.

Two treaties had been under discussion at the conference. One, a commercial treaty, designed to replace the present trading agreement between Britain and Russia, had been agreed to by both parties, and in the other, a general treaty, there was only one clause which did not find acceptance. This was Article XIV in the draft treaty. The text of this clause is not available. It is being withheld from publication for the present for two reasons, the first that there still remains a slight chance that a formula acceptable to both parties may be devised, and the second that a statement will be made in behalf of the British Government in the House of Commons tomorrow by Arthur Ponsonby, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in whose hands Premier MacDonald has left the conduct of the negotiations with the Russians.

At present the position is quite vague. While de jure recognition by Great Britain of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics holds good and M. Rakovsky remains as the official Soviet representative in London, relations between this country and Soviet Russia are without definition and the position of bondholders and of all who wish to trade with Russia is exactly as it was before Britain officially recognized Soviet Russia.

Clash of Communism and Capitalism.

LONDON, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—The negotiations between the representatives of Great Britain and Soviet Russia have broken down and the projected treaty will not be signed, it was announced this morning by the Foreign Office.

The negotiations collapsed, according to authoritative information, on the refusal of the Soviet representatives to accept an article in the agreement which they insisted left the way open for England eventually to demand compensation for foreign property nationalized by the Soviet Government.

In other words, the explanation runs, it was a flat clash between Communism

COOLIDGE LIMITS ACCEPTANCE SPEECH TO A FEW ISSUES

RADIO ALSO CONSIDERED

POLITICIANS GROW UNEASY

They Are Disposed to Believe That the Campaign Is Going Ahead Too Slowly.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—President Coolidge is having a hard time in writing the address of acceptance which he will deliver Aug. 14, when notified formally of his nomination. Although he has not finished the original draft, he realizes that already it is too long and is now engaged, it was said at the White House today, in attempting to shorten it.

Many persons are offering the President advice as to what he should say. Most of them seek to induce him to refer to matters in which they have a particular interest. The President, a White House spokesman said, had reached the conclusion that it would be impossible for him to cover all the subjects suggested for treatment and keep down the length of the address.

In view of his decision to shorten the speech the President has decided that he will treat of comparatively few subjects, the spokesman explained. The present problem of Mr. Coolidge is to see if he can incorporate some additional matter and yet delete enough of the speech already prepared to keep it within a reasonable length.

Speaking Plans Still Indefinite.

Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan, whose resignation as Ambassador to Mexico was announced today, has been a guest at the White House, and according to what is being said in political circles, he has been assisting President Coolidge in the preparation of his speech.

Colonel George Harvey, former Ambassador to Great Britain, now editorial director of The Washington Post, has figured in rumors as aiding the President in the same connection, but nothing has been disclosed to give color to this report.

Radio broadcasting is to have its effect upon the length of speeches in the campaign. John W. Davis has already adopted the rule of making those which he will deliver by radio as short as possible, with twenty or even fifteen minutes as the limit, although he will be obliged to make an exception to this rule in his address of acceptance at Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11.

President Coolidge has taken a leaf out of Mr. Davis's book in this connection, and there appears to be an understanding that all those prominent members of the chief political parties who will broadcast their speeches will be urged to do likewise.

The President, it was said at the White House, has not made any campaign speaking engagements. To this was added that "there's an absence of plans" with especial reference to the President's participation in the campaign. The Republican National Committee, and not the President, is doing the planning, it was explained.

While it is considered to be early for campaign activity, there is a disposition among politicians of the two major parties to believe that things are going too slowly. Some uneasiness exists over the claim that the La Follette party is getting the greater part of the newspaper publicity, while little is being put out of interest to the people from the headquarters of the Republicans and Democrats.

At the White House it was indicated that President Coolidge was greatly pleased over the apparent adoption of the Dawes plan by the allied conference in London. It was said in his behalf that the agreement, in his opinion, would stabilize conditions in Europe and have a reflection in improved business in the United States.

The President believed, it was said,

Swiss Will Attempt to Conquer Everest; Plan to Begin the Ascent Next Spring

GENEVA, Aug. 5.—Switzerland is preparing a national expedition to attempt to ascend Mount Everest where the English failed. The leader of the Swiss group, scheduled to start in the Spring of 1925, is a well-known Swiss Alpinist, who already has had experience in the Himalaya Mountains. His assistants will be some of Switzerland's best climbers, none over 35 years old.

The Swiss intend omitting the heavy oxygen apparatus carried by the English expedition. Instead, they will carry small phials of compressed and liquid oxygen to be injected by syringe and needle into the arteries if overcome by breathing difficulties.

SIMLA, Aug. 5.—The Pioneer, commenting on Lieut. Col. Norton's recent dispatch, considers it advisable that future Everest expeditions should keep in touch with the Indian Meteorological Office. The 1924 expedition, it says, wasted its strength in fighting bad weather in May, believing the monsoon to be imminent, when in fact the monsoon did not arrived in Malabar before the first week in June, and even then was slow in moving.

Weekly messages giving negative and positive information as to the progress of the monsoon, &c., sent by runner from Yatong, would help; but, better still, The Pioneer thinks, would be the equipment of the expedition with a wireless set for direct daily communication with the Meteorological Office.

AGRARIANS HELD IN EVANS MURDER

ROBBERY MOTIVE IS DENIED

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5.—The authorities are still working hard to solve the mystery of the killing of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, who was shot near her ranch in Puebla on Saturday.

The leader of the Agraristas, General Montes, who is known to have had a dispute with Mrs. Evans last week regarding the ownership of wheat which was grown on the part of the farm which the Agraristas had claimed, is now in jail with one of his followers. General Montes was the leader of the Agraristas at the town of Tianguismanalco and is suspected of having been the brains behind the demand of the Agraristas for part of the hacienda owned by Mrs. Evans.

Several suspicious persons have been arrested. Servants at the farm are held in jail and a watchman was arrested charged with having knowledge of the crime. Two personal servants of Mrs. Evans who, it is reported, had advance information that Mrs. Evans's death was a matter of a few weeks, are now being closely questioned.

Government officials state that no new facts have been developed. It is expected that the report from General Roberto Cruz, who is taking personal charge of the investigation, will be made soon. The report that four prisoners had been shot is regarded here as false. No word of the supposed executions has been received by officials in Mexico City.

El Universal, the leading daily, editorially commenting on the murder of Mrs. Evans, says the death of Mrs. Evans at the hands of individuals seeming to be Agraristas has caused a deep impression on the minds of the people, first, because the victim was a woman; second, because a dispute between Mrs. Evans and the Agraristas in the State of Puebla, where agrarianism is strong, was the cause of the difficulties between Mexico and Great Britain.

"We state there cannot be justification for this crime," says the paper, "not even the arrogant attitude of Mrs. Evans, quite exaggerated and almost offensive, not only to her enemies, the Agraristas, but also to the country in which she was residing.

"It would be unjust to insist that Mexico have the same provision against crime as cities like New York and London, which have strong police organizations. Mexico has just passed through one of many crises caused by politics which it has suffered since 1910. The late rebellion has left in the country, as it always leaves in all parts of the world, small bands which it is not possible to dominate completely in the short time passed since military measures gave way to civil."

The body of Mrs. Evans rests in a vault in the British cemetery, awaiting the arrival of her sister from the United States. The funeral will be held upon arrival of the family.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—Federal forces under General Roberto Cruz, Chief of Military Operations in the State of Puebla, today began the disarmament of volunteer and agrarian forces raised during the recent revolution. The disarmament was begun in the district of San Martin, at Texmelucan, where Mrs. Rosalie Evans, American-born widow of a British subject, was killed and robbed by a band of unknown persons on Saturday night when en route to her hacienda.

While the disarmament campaign, begun upon special orders from President Obregon, is proceeding, a special court of inquiry continued investigations into charges that agrarian elements with whom Mrs. Evans had long been at war were responsible for the robbery and murder. These elements had been urging the expropriation of the Evans hacienda for communal lands and an agricultural school.

Under the general direction of Cosme Zafra Nava, Attorney General of Puebla, Attorney Miguel Marques Gamboa, Superior Court Justice, acting as a special inquiry Judge, and Attorneys Francisco Vazquez, special representative of the Department of Justice, today viewed the scene of the murder. They questioned the hacienda employes as well as more than seventy agrarians, mostly Indian farm workers, who were arrested yesterday at various villages throughout the Huejotzingo district, in which the Evans ranch is located.

Further arrests of those who may be able to throw light upon the tragedy are expected. There is no confirmation of reports that four agrarians have been killed by mounted police from Puebla, under orders of General Honorato Teutli, who have been conducting a search for Mrs. Evans's assailants. The investigation is being conducted along lines suggested in statements of numerous residents of the Huejotzingo district to the effect that the slayers of Mrs. Evans had been seen to depart from the village of Tianguismanalco and that they consisted of agrarian followers of

VICTIM FROM CLARKSBURG

Mrs. Davis Starts for Philadelphia Today to Attend Funeral —Illness Crazed the Assassin.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—Dr. Duncan L. Despard, a well-known surgeon, and a close friend of John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominee, was shot and killed in his office today by Alfonso Massi, a tailor and a former patient. Massi shot the physician in the back without warning and then killed himself.

Dr. Despard died in the Polyclinic Hospital on the operating table as Howard M. Kennedy, known as the "blood transfusion man," stood ready for a transfusion. Howard was one of twenty, including a number of physicians, who offered their blood to save the surgeon's life.

The murderer, his mind unbalanced by brooding over ill health, begged $3 from his wife this morning to purchase the revolver and cartridges with which he killed Dr. Despard and himself. He fired four times at his victim, only his first shot taking effect. He used the last cartridge on himself.

Dr. Despard had operated on Massi for appendicitis at the Methodist Hospital on March 28, last year. He had not seen him since until today. Massi had been in ill health ever since his operation. He was still under treatment, and it was through a scribbled slip in his pocket, telling of the medical attendance he had received, that his body was identified.

The tragedy occurred at about 10:45 A. M. in the surgeon's office. Mrs. Burton Despard, the surgeon's mother, who is 87 years old and an invalid, was on an upper floor.

Dr. Despard had finished his morning office consultations and was chatting with H. A. Susan, a plumbing contractor, about a new heating system he had just had installed. He had delayed his vacation to see the completion of the installation and expected to start for the seashore tomorrow.

The story of what followed was told by Mr. Susan.

"I had been talking with Dr. Despard," he said, "for several minutes. It was after his office hours, which end at 10:45. We were making arrangement to complete the installation of the new heating system.

"All of a sudden a man burst in through the front door and ran into the outside office, where Dr. Despard and I were standing. The doctor seemed surprised at the appearance of the visitor and said, 'Do you wish to see me?'

"The man said, 'I do,' and the doctor excused himself and turned to the door of his private or inner office, the man following. The door closed behind them. Almost instantly there was a shot, followed by four more in quick succession. I was standing in the outside office and I rushed in.

"As I threw the door open I saw the visitor slowly sinking to the floor, the gun still smoking in his hand. Dr. Despard was on his feet and staggered toward me. I caught him in my arms as he collapsed. I could see that he was shot in the back and was in a very serious condition. That is all I know of the shooting, except that the five shots were fired—first one, then a brief interval, and four more followed."

Mrs. Davis Will Attend Funeral.

At the home of John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, in Locust Valley, L. I., last night, the news from Philadelphia that Duncan Despard had been killed by a patient was received with deep distress, inasmuch as the Davis and the Despard families have been very close friends for a great many years. Dr. Despard was born in Clarksburg, W. Va., as was Mr. Davis, and the two grew up together.

Had it been possible, it was said at the Davis home last evening, Mr. Davis would have gone to Philadelphia to attend the funeral, and then on to Clarksburg, where the burial will take place. He had, however, made several important appointments in this city for today, and he did not feel that he could break them all.

Consequently it was arranged, according to "Bill" Nye, who is acting as Mr. Davis's secretary, that Mrs. Davis should go to Philadelphia. She will motor from Locust Valley into New York with her husband early this morning and take the 10 o'clock train from the Pennsylvania Station.

Dr. Despard, according to the information which reached the Davis home, died in the Polyclinic Hospital, Philadelphia, about 5:30 P. M., and his body was taken to his home at 250 South Twenty-first Street.

Mrs. Davis will go to the Despard home and remain with the family through the funeral services. She will accompany the Despard family to Clarksburg and remain there until the end of the week, when her husband will join her for the ratification ceremonies.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB SANE, JUDGE RULES; JURY TRIAL DENIED

ASSERTS RIGHT TO DECIDE IT

COURT THREATENED BY MAIL

Judge Caverly Says 400 Letters Received Daily Will Be Turned Over to Postal Officials.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—Punishment of Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb for kidnapping and murdering 14-year-old Robert Franks will be determined as a result of the present hearing before Judge John R. Caverly, and the proceedings will not be turned into a trial by jury with a plea of legal insanity, the Court ruled today.

Judge Caverly emphatically asserted that he was fully within his legal rights in hearing testimony from experts on mental diseases in mitigation of punishment. In tones that rang throughout the courtroom, he said:

"These boys are sane as far as this Court is concerned. They have accepted responsibility and the only thing to be determined is their ground for mitigation. The Illinois Supreme Court has said that it is mandatory for me to hear any evidence in mitigation."

The Court several times previously in perfunctory manner had turned aside demands by Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, that the hearing had reached a point where it was proper only that the Court summon a jury. In disposing of the matter today Judge Caverly accepted full responsibility for deciding the fate of the youths.

"I have ruled three or four times and I will not be continually called upon for rulings upon this matter now that I have decided it," said Judge Caverly.

"It does not make any difference to the Court what the doctor or any of the other alienists think about sanity or insanity, nor do I care for other definitions than that which has definitely been set before me by the Illinois Supreme Court."

State's Attorney Crowe objected to the ruling by the Court, saying he could not be satisfied with it, and took up the situation with his associates.

Judge Caverly told newspapermen after adjournment that he would turn over to postal inspectors some of the 300 to 400 letters regarding the case that he received daily. He declared many of them were of a threatening nature.

"Diseased Motivation" Under Fire.

Dr. William Healy, Boston psychiatrist, was being cross-examined when the highly pertinent ruling was made. A dialogue between Mr. Crowe and the witness resulted from the prosecutor's demand for a definition of the word "abnormal."

In pursuing it Mr. Crowe again brought up "insanity" and the defense objected "that we are getting onto ground that we have been keeping off."

"If that is the way this thing is going all we can do is to call a jury," Mr. Crowe insisted.

Dr. Healy, who had been on the stand giving direct testimony for five hours, retained his composure under a terrific two and a half-hour cross-examination by Mr. Crowe, who tried to break down the value of the expert's conclusions that the Franks boy's murder grew directly from the youths' "diseased motivation," "boyhood fantasies" and an "absurd childish compact" in which perversion was a tie.

"Fear and caution, the instincts of self-preservation," governed the actions of the boys at times, both in planning the murder and in seeking to evade responsibility for it, were qualified admissions the prosecutor succeeded in forcing from the mental pathologist.

The State's attorney went over the details of the youths' confessions, step by step, attempting to show that the crime grew from the youths' admittedly high intellects, rather than from their immature emotions.

Mr. Crowe also tried unsuccessfully to bring from the expert an admission that boys of the intellectual attainments of Loeb and Leopold could have deceived him as to their undeveloped emotions,

Priceless Napoleonic Letters And Papers Found in Austria

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 5.—Treasures whose worth cannot be calculated, brought to Austria seventy years ago by Count Hugo Anton Bassano, second son of Duke Hugo Bernhard Bassano, were uncovered yesterday at Brunn.

The find consists chiefly of documents which Bassano, Napoleon's Secretary of State, took from Paris 110 years ago. They include 217 letters from Napoleon to Bassano, of which 87 are in Napoleon's handwriting and most of the others bearing his signature, and letters to the King of England, the Emperor of Austria, King of Prussia, Czar of Russia and his brother Jerome Bonaparte.

Drafts of campaign plans, letters to and from Talleyrand and many other documents of great historical importance are included in the find. One of the most interesting is a report containing Napoleon's own opinions of the Russian campaign; another treats of French foreign policy during the period of 1811 to 1814.

The death mask of Napoleon, made by his personal physician and sent to Bassano at Napoleon's request, also was found.

TWO PLANES REACH REYKJAVIK IN A GALE

ARE GUESTS OF THE TOWN

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—Skirting the southeastern, southern and southwestern coasts of Iceland, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson today drove their round-the-world planes from Hoefn Hornafjord to Reykjavik, a distance of some 300 miles, in 4 hours 58 minutes.

The take-off from Hoefn Hornafjord was made under good weather conditions, and these continued throughout the journey except for a heavy head wind encountered by the planes as they turned northward from the southern point of Iceland. The winds buffeted the fliers considerably, but nevertheless they were able to make a splendid landing at the spot assigned to them in the bay here.

Virtually the entire population of the quaint little hamlet of Reykjavik assembled on the pier to watch the two great planes as they circled above the harbor inside the sea wall, searching for their buoys. As the machines hit the water, with Lieutenant Smith leading the way, a small boat put out from the shore and took off the fliers.

Arriving at the pier, the Lord Mayor of the town and the members of the Town Council welcomed the Americans, and women presented each of them with a bouquet of flowers. The aviators will be guests of the town while here. They have been given quarters in the suburbs.

Major Clarence E. Crumrine of the United States Army Air Service was waiting to welcome Lieutenants Smith and Nelson, and Lieutenant Wade and his mechanician, Sergeant Ogden, came ashore from the cruiser Richmond and were warmly greeted by the new arrivals, who expressed sympathy with Wade and Ogden on having met with the disaster that put them out of the flight. Several Icelanders, speaking English, welcomed Wade and Ogden as they came ashore. They also expressed sorrow over the accident but offered congratulations on their escape.

News was received today of improved ice conditions at Angmagsalik, Greenland, the next scheduled stopping place of the fliers. It is reported that the supply steamer Gertrud Rask, which for several days had been having a merry task in pushing through the ice fields in an endeavor to land supplies for the aviators, at last has reached Angmagsalik.

The further plans of Smith and Nelson will depend upon a conference between them and Major Crumrine and naval officers from the patrol vessels who are expected here.

Smith Seeks Light on Defense Day Plan; To Confer With Chief of New York Guard

ALBANY, Aug. 5.—Governor Smith said today that he would confer later in the week with Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, Commander of the New York National Guard, with reference to the part to be taken by this State in National Defense Day. In view of the opposition to certain features of the program voiced by Governor Charles Bryan of Nebraska, in which John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, has joined, the situation is regarded as interesting. It has been reported that the Governor might join with Davis and Bryan, but he declined to say what his views on the subject were when he returned to his desk today after a week's absence.

Pending the conference with Major Gen. Berry the naming of a committee of 1,000 to represent every county in the State, to cooperate with the military authorities, is being held in abeyance, it is reported. This committee was suggested by General Bullard, Commander of the Second Army Corps Area, stationed at Governors Island, in a conference with the Governor two months ago. I know absolutely nothing about this Defense Day program, the Governor declared. "I am going to get in touch with General Berry some time today and have him come up here and we will thresh this thing out. These military orders do not mean anything unless you have a military man at your side to explain what it is all about. I already have written to him, and here is his letter saying he will be glad to go into the whole thing with me."

General Berry now is at the National Guard camp at Peekskill. In his letter to the Governor he said that orders had already been issued for the National Guard units to assemble in their various armories the evening of Sept. 12, National Defense Day. This assembling, he explained, would be in the nature of a regular drill. He said that Reserve officers had also had places allotted them in the armories in which to assemble at any time that day.

The Governor will go to Poughkeepsie Thursday to pass the day with Franklin D. Roosevelt. He will return to Albany Friday for the week-end. He expects General Berry to come to Albany Sunday for the conference and also proposes to call in Adj. Gen. Maynard J. Westcott and probably other National Guard officers.

1 DEAD, SCORES HURT IN WOODEN CAR CRASH ON B.M.T. NEAR CONEY

Speeding Train Telescopes Itself on Steel One Standing at Ocean Parkway Station.

40 WOMEN HAVE HYSTERIA

ACCIDENT ON HIGH ELEVATED

A guard was killed and more than a score of passengers were injured at 6:30 o'clock last night when a train of six wooden cars crashed into the rear end of a steel train of seven cars at the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company's elevated station at Ocean Parkway, Brighton Beach.

The names of twenty-nine injured were given out, but police and the hospitals said that many others had been hurt, most of them leaving for home after treatment at the scene. More than forty women were treated for hysteria. Of the eleven persons remaining last night in Coney Island Hospital five were reported seriously hurt. The injuries of one, a girl bookkeeper of 18, were said to be critical."

The wooden-car train, traveling at high speed, crashed against the last car of the steel train, which was discharging passengers, with an impact that telescoped the first wooden car and made a mass of wreckage of most of the second wooden car. Only the fact that the sides of the first car fell outward kept the list of dead and injured down, said the police.

The explanation of the motorman of the wooden-car train was that his air brake controller failed to operate and that he had forgotten to try to apply the emergency brake. At a late hour last night city officials, the Transit Commission, the Fire Department and the company were trying to fix the blame for the accident.

Motorman John McNichols of the wooden-car train was arrested shortly before midnight on a charge of homicide after he had been questioned at the Coney Island police station. Bail, fixed at $1,000, was furnished by B. M. T. officials. The motorman will be arraigned in Coney Island Court this morning.

The list of dead and injured reported by the police and officials of the Coney Island Hospital was:

DEAD.

INJURED.

For more than an hour after the wreck all lines going to or from Coney Island were blocked, the power having been shut off. The block extended back to De Kalb Avenue and affected lines in Manhattan.

around the scene, believing an appalling catastrophe had occurred. The quick arrival of many diaging ambulances and the rush to the scene of more than 200 policemen added to the hysteria of the crowds who swarmed to the scene from Brighton Beach and Coney Island. The Coney Island Hospital and the Coney Island police station for hours after the wreck were jammed with hundreds of anxious persons inquiring for their kin, many sobbing demands for names of dead and injured.

The accident occurred on a high elevated structure directly above the broad main thoroughfare leading to and from Brighton Beach and Coney Island, Ocean Parkway, one of the heaviest traveled highways in the city at this time of the year. At one corner, near by, is the Brighton Beach Theatre. At an opposite corner, almost directly at the Ocean Parkway station, is the Shelburne Hotel.

Two island platforms handle passengers at this station. One is for trains to Brighton Beach and Coney Island and the other for trains bound for Manhattan. A short distance away from the station in the direction of Manhattan is a slight curve. Both trains had passed over this curve just before the accident, but the motorman of the wooden-car train told the police the curve was not an impediment to his view and that he saw the train ahead clearly.

All the way from its starting place, Franklin Avenue and Fulton Street, the train of wooden cars, an express, had seemed to be in trouble. Passengers told the police that twice on the trip the train slowed down between stops, and the motorman, John McNichols, 28 years old, of 662 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, had called back to the guard standing between the first two cars. This guard was Bernard Yachter, 26, of 146 Twelfth Street, killed in the crash.

The Motorman's Story.

As his train rounded the curve, McNichols saw ahead, standing at the station platform and discharging passengers, the steel train which had started from Times Square in charge of Motorman Myron Roselle, 41 years old of 1,141 East Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn.

"I slowed down for a second, then started up a bit faster," McNichols last night told prosecutors of Kings County in the Coney Island Police Station. "Until then the brake had worked fine. As I came closer to the steel train, acting as we always do, I tried to put on the brake again. But this time the brake handle seemed to stick. There was something suddenly wrong with the mechanism. I couldn't figure out what was the matter. I tried with all my strength to make the brake handle work, but it wouldn't budge.

"I didn't think of the emergency brake. It wouldn't have done much good by that time, we were so close to the train ahead. I saw that we couldn't avoid a crash, so I jumped out of my cab and ran back into the car, shouting an alarm to passengers as I ran along the aisle. They were just beginning to scramble from their seats when the crash came."

McNichols was not injured.

The wooden train was travelling at a speed, said witnesses, which made it inevitable that one or more of its cars would be wrecked. The steel train was not damaged, aside from the shattering of windows. Only a few of the passengers of the last car of the steel train were injured, these suffering only minor cuts or bruises.

Practically the entire brunt of the crash was on the wooden train. The impact shattered the first car to fragments. The roof, sliced off as if by a knife, spread in a thousand splinters, and larger pieces lodged upon the roof of the last car of the steel train, much as though they had been flung out to cover the steel car. The flooring of the first wooden car was thrust by the impact under the steel car, crumpling in a jam against the steel car and under its trucks. The cab, just vacated by Motorman McNichols, was hurled back fifteen feet into the car. Except for occasional strips of the roof and floor and a few supports of the two sides, nothing was left of the front wooden car except the trucks.

The sides fell outward. One side crashed to the street in large sections. The other piled on the station platform and on the tracks. So far as the first wooden car was concerned, it was as though it had been crushed to bits and the pieces scattered in all directions.

Half of Second Car Telescoped.

The second car of the wooden train didn't fare so badly as the first, but its damage was such and the injury to its passengers was of such extent that there was little difference beyond its fate and that of the first car. The second car piled high against the first, half its length telescoping, the roof being ripped off in large sections and the flooring being crushed in. All its windows were shattered and all its seats were wrenched out. The other four cars were not badly damaged, aside from broken windows and an upturn seat here and there, though some of the injured were in the last four cars.

The fact that the first car was open and gave easy access to the platform to those who could crawl out was held accountable for the minor injuries to some of its passengers. But the second car was a closed car and none could crawl out except through broken glass.

Shrieks of men and women in the wrecked cars, heard above the noise of the impact, the smashing of glass and the wrenching of woodwork produced a pandiam that brought quick panic not only among the injured but to the thousands in the train ahead, on the opposite platform and in the street.

Rescuers who rushed to the debris from the other train and from the street found men, women and children unconscious or scrambling hysterically from under seats or beams that stuck out at a hundred places.

Kachter, the guard, who had been standing on the rear platform of the front wooden car, was crushed between the two cars and pinned under a truck. [illegible] was pinned under a truck of the second car. He died instantly.

Miss Eva Steinberg, 18 years old, a bookkeeper living in Coney Island, was unconscious when firemen dug her from the debris. She had been seated in the centre of the first wooden car. Her skull was fractured and she received internal injuries. Little hope was held out for her recovery.

An entire family, father, mother and five children, in the second wooden car, were injured. None, however, was critically hurt, all being able to go home after treatment at Coney Island Hospital. Many fractures of wrists, legs and ribs were suffered.

It happened that at the time of the crash two priests were on the station platform waiting for the wooden car train to pull in so that they might board it for Coney Island. They were Father Thomas Sheey of the Church of Our Lady of Solace and Father Nicholas Keating of the Church of the Guardian Angel, both Brooklyn. They reached quickly into the telescoped cars and pulled forth injured, hurrying women and children downstairs, carrying some and assisting others to the street.

Doctor One of First on Scene.

As the wooden train ran into the steel train, Dr. H. A. Mackler of 205 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, was approaching the elevated structure in his automobile. With two policemen who were directing traffic on Ocean Parkway, he ran up the stairs and helped pull the injured from the debris.

On the opposite island platform, waiting for trains for New York, were more than a hundred men, women and children. Many of these men and women ran swiftly down the stairs and over to the opposite island platform to join in the rescue work.

Many instances of heroism by the slightly injured were reported. One of these, a young man, overlooking his own cuts, pulled from the wreckage of the first car as elderly woman and two children with her. They were treated for minor injuries and went home without giving their names.

From the station turnstile room below somebody ran up with a fire extinguisher and played it on a small blaze which had begun between the two wrecked cars and which had started a smudge of smoke which was choking injured and rescuers.

Four ambulances raced to the scene from Coney Island Hospital. Other ambulances came at top speed from Norwegian, Israel-Zion, Swedish, Samaritan, Methodist Episcopal, Holy Family, Jewish, Cumberland Street and St. Mary's Hospitals on calls from Brooklyn Police Headquarters. More than thirty nurses accompanied the twenty hospital doctors. At least a dozen neighborhood physicians hurried over to help.

To facilitate the arrival and departure of the ambulances and the private cars in which injured were being rushed to hospitals, drastically maintained police line was flung out along Ocean Parkway back to Kings Highway, about a mile and a half. Only police automobiles, ambulances and other official machines were permitted to use the parkway from Kings Highway to the scene. Both broad roadways of the boulevard were used only for one-way travel, in the direction of hospitals. Ambulances and private cars with injured were given complete right of way and were urged by policemen to disregard all speed regulations.

The speed of the police in assembling was such that within a few minutes of the crash scores, in uniform and in plainclothes, had reached the scene. Coney Island police station was emptied of all except a skeleton force. Police Headquarters sent out a borough call for reserves which was supplemented shortly after with a summons to Manhattan for aid. Within an hour more than 250 policemen had arrived at Brighton Beach and were stationed at the scene of the wreck, at Coney Island Hospital or along Ocean Parkway.

Three Fire Department companies ran up ladders against the elevated structure to help get down the injured and remove the wreckage. These were in charge of Captain Hugh Kelly.

Crowd of 20,000 Gathers.

Within half an hour after the crash, more than 20,000 persons had rushed to the scene, surging frantically against the hastily thrown police lines, hundreds crying out the names of kin and demanding access to the platforms to see whether relatives had been killed or injured.

These were thrust far back, finally, so that clear space might be given to the ambulances and other machines conveying injured. The injured passengers were piled into ambulances three and four at a time and hurried away. Many of those who were suffering from minor wounds were taken in private cars to houses along Ocean Parkway. These were treated by neighborhood physicians and in most instances hurried home in automobiles without leaving their names.

Many women who had seen the accident from the opposite platform or from the street, or had come to the scene and viewed the mass of wreckage, fainted or became hysterical.

The crowds, horrified by what appeared at first to have been a catastrophe with many killed, pressed forward with such insistence that the police work was made difficult. The quick shutting off of power by the B. M. T. added to the confusion, for it caused a gathering of 25,000 persons in and near Coney Island terminal, waiting for trains to Manhattan and Brooklyn.

The power was shut off to save injured from being electrocuted by the third rails and to facilitate the work of rescuers. As it happened, many of the injured scrambled dangerously close to the third rails before the power was shut off. Cutting off of the power stopped many trains bearing thousands of homegoers. The subway lines affected were the Brighton Beach, West End, Sea Beach and Fourth Avenue. The Franklin Avenue line also was blocked. Emergency transfers were issued enabling passengers to use trolley cars.

Thousands of the stalled passengers walked long distances along the subway tracks to the stations when the power had been cut off. It was 8:15 before power was turned on again. Meanwhile, the blocking of the lines as far back as the De Kalb Avenue station had the effect of halting traffic extending into Manhattan. Trains moved slowly and finally stopped altogether, holding up many thousands who had started for Coney Island, Brighton Beach and intermediate points after the accident.

Hylan Hurries to the Scene.

Mayor Hylan was home having dinner when notified of the accident. He made record speed in driving to the scene. Others who hurried to the station were Fire Commissioner Drennan, Fire Marshal Brophy, President William S. Menden of the B. M. T., Vice President Whitman of the B. R. T., Assistant District Attorneys Sabbatino and Hart, Deputy Police Commissioner Leach and Chief Executive Officer Phillip Mathews of the Transit Commission, with a number of inspectors.

The Mayor was so wrought up by what he saw and heard that he shouted when newspaper photographers asked if pictures might be taken. "By all means! Let the public see what kind of cars they have been risking their lives on every day." The Mayor clambered over the debris, and when he had done this with his examination directed that Fire Marshal Brophy and the police push their inquiries as hard as they could. He told the prosecutors his officials would cooperate fully.

Mayor Hylan made this statement after surveying the scene and learning of the extent of the casualties:

"I have expected a terrible catastrophe in some of the tunnels from the use of these wooden cars. Had it been a steel train nothing would have happened except slight damage to the train. Nobody would have been killed or injured. The wooden train must have been going at least twenty miles an hour to do this damage.

"I told the Legislature last Winter that I could remedy conditions if I had supervision over the subway and elevated lines. When a train fell from the elevated structure at Fifth and Flatbush Avenues, Brooklyn, some months ago, I told the Legislature that if it gave me power of supervision and if the Supreme Court did not interfere with me I would remedy conditions and stop these abuses within sixty days. All I got for it was abuse from Chairman Dahl of the B. M. T. and others.

"If they'd use their time in remedying these conditions, of which this is the result, instead of getting school children to sign petitions, we'd be better off. An accident will happen some day in a tunnel and the loss of life will be appalling. The Transit Commission and the B. M. T. have no regard for humanity at all. And all the B. M. T. cares about is the nickel. I have expected something like this since the Transit Commission permitted the B. M. T. to operate wooden trains on the same tracks used by steel trains."

Motorman Roselle told Assistant District Attorneys Hart and Sabbatino that the block signal was set against him and he was waiting for the signal permitting him to proceed when the wooden train ran into his train. Prosecutor Hart said last night after questioning both motormen:

"The train of steel cars was standing at the platform of the Ocean Parkway station, and after having discharged its passengers was waiting for the signal to proceed to Coney Island. The second train of wooden cars was pulling into the station and the motorman seemed to have lost control of the train and consequently the collision occurred. The steel cars were practically undamaged, the only damage apparently being to windows.

"If in place of the wooden cars there had been all-steel cars, the damage would not have been great even at an excessive rate of speed, and the fatality would not have resulted. President Menden of the B. M. T. said he did not know how old the wooden cars were, but judged that the first car was at least fifteen years old, and that the second was somewhat older."

When he was told that President Menden had said that the company had 150 more wooden cars like those in the accident Mr. Hart said:

"That's 150 too many."

Shortly after midnight the following statement was issued from the offices of the B. M. T. corporation:

"Preliminary investigation at the Ocean Parkway station on the Brighton Beach line has disclosed the following facts: A Brighton subway train bound for Coney Island had made a regular stop at the station platform and was standing in the station when the following train from Franklin Avenue collided with it. The station is located on an open stretch of track with the train in the station in plain view of the following trains. The collision occurred at 6:20 P. M., while it was still daylight. For some reason that has not been determined as yet it appears that the motorman of the Franklin Avenue train failed to apply the brakes in time to prevent the collision. Investigation indicates that there was no defect in track or car equipment. The collision resulted in the death of one employe, the conductor of the Franklin Avenue train, and serious injuries to four passengers and minor injuries to about ten other passengers."

Major Mathews of the Transit Commission, who was at the scene with six inspectors, said a report on the findings of his inspectors would be made public today at the commission's offices at 270 Madison Avenue.

Photographs of the wreckage were taken by flashlight by the city, the Transit Commission and the railroad company.

PARTY IN WISCONSIN WON'T BAR COOLIDGE

Progressives Will Control Convention, but Will Let His Electors Be Named.

SEND PLEDGE TO BUTLER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Republican leaders were assured today that no attempt would be made by the La Follette managers to prevent the nomination of Coolidge electors in the Republican Convention soon to be held in Wisconsin, in a letter addressed to Chairman Butler of the National Committee, by Robert M. La Follette Jr., son of the Progressive nominee. It had been feared by some Republicans that the La Follette men, by virtue of their control of the party machinery, might force President Coolidge to run as an independent candidate in Senator La Follette's home State.

The younger Mr. La Follette, who is Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Wisconsin, as well as Vice Chairman of the La Follette national organization, wrote to Mr. Butler as follows:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5, 1924.
Hon. William M. Butler, Chairman Republican National Committee, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Butler—My attention has just been called to articles in various newspapers to the effect that it is the intention of Senator La Follette's supporters in Wisconsin, who may control the Republican platform convention of that State, to place La Follette electors on the Republican ticket, and thus force President Coolidge's ticket to be filed in the independent column.

I beg to assure you that there is no basis whatever for such statements. The Wisconsin Progressives have never resorted to sharp political practices, and will not do so now.

Senator La Follette's candidacy will be presented to the people of Wisconsin as an independent Progressive on the same basis that has been adopted for other States, in so far as the maze of legal technicalities permit.

While the action of the Republican State platform convention of Wisconsin will be under the control of a majority of its members, I feel quite certain that you may rest assured that the electors whom they will place on the Republican State ticket will be stalwart Coolidge men. Sincerely yours,

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE JR.
Chairman Republican State Central Committee of Wisconsin.

Helen Keller Turns to La Follette.

Miss Helen Keller has enrolled among the supporters of the third party ticket. A letter from Miss Keller congratulating Senator La Follette on his nomination and announcing that she will support the independent party was made public today by Mr. La Follette.

Miss Keller begins her letter by saying that she hesitated to write because "I know that the newspapers opposed to the Progressive movement will cry out at the 'pathetic exploitation of deaf and blind Helen Keller by the motley elements' who support La Follette," etc.

Miss Keller states that "it would be difficult to imagine anything more fatuous and stupid than the attitude of the press toward anything I say on public affairs."

Miss Keller goes on to say that for years she has followed the career of Senator La Follette "with approval and admiration." She predicts victory for La Follette and Wheeler, and adds:

"Your nomination at Cleveland was in the nature of a gesture toward the readoption of the Declaration of Independence. The revolt of thoughtful Democrats and Republicans against the innumerable blunders and obvious incompetence of their own parties is the sure sign of a new spirit in the nation. I believe we have heard the swan song of the old parties."

Seeking Labor Union Funds.

The work of organizing labor union groups with a view to raising funds to finance the La Follette-Wheeler campaign has been assigned to Hartwell L. Brunson of New York, Field Secretary of the Workers' Education Bureau of America, which is financed in part by the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Brunson is preparing to get in touch with the heads of all locals. He will urge the appointment of finance committees by each of the unions. The organized workers will be asked to make contributions of $1 or more.

NEGRO CONSIDERED FOR CONGRESS RACE

Republicans May Nominate One to Oppose Weller in the Twenty-first District.

The nomination of a negro as the Republican candidate for Congress in the Twenty-first Congressional District, now represented by Representative Royal H. Weller, a Democrat, has been urged upon the party leaders, it was learned last night. Mr. Weller defeated Representative Martin C. Ansorge, Republican, by a small plurality two years ago and won in the recount proceedings instituted by Mr. Ansorge. The district includes Washington Heights and part of Harlem and has a considerable negro population in the Harlem section.

Another echo of the contests which resulted from the 1922 election will be heard in the party selections in the Nineteenth Congressional District, where Representative Sol Bloom will be named by the Democrats and Walter M. Chandler, whom Mr. Bloom defeated, by the Republicans. Mr. Bloom's right to the seat was sustained by the House against an adverse report of the Republican majority of its Committee on Elections.

Charles E. Gehring, publisher of hotel periodicals, has been picked by Tammany to run against Representative Ogden L. Mills in the Seventeenth Congressional District. Mr. Mills is regarded as a strong candidate, and in naming Mr. Gehring the Democrats consider they have selected the best man available.

The Republican organization of the Twentieth Congressional District has decided definitely not to renominate Representative F. H. LaGuardia, unless he supports President Coolidge. As Mr. LaGuardia is understood to be for Senator La Follette, this is considered doubtful, and Mr. LaGuardia will probably run for Congress independently. The Democrats have picked Henry Frank as their candidate in that district.

A full list of the Tammany candidates for Congress, as approved at a conference of leaders in Tammany Hall, follows:

Eleventh District, Representative Anning S. Prall.
Twelfth District, Representative Samuel Dickstein.
Thirteenth District, Representative Christopher D. Sullivan.
Fourteenth District, Dr. William Sirovitz.
Fifteenth District, Representative John J. Boylan.
Sixteenth District, Representative John J. O'Connor.
Seventeenth District, Charles E. Gehring.
Eighteenth District, Representative John F. Carew.
Nineteenth District, Representative Sol Bloom.
Twentieth District, Henry Frank.
Twenty-first District, Representative Royal H. Weller.
Twenty-second District, Representative Anthony J. Griffin.

LEADERS TO PRESS SMITH TO RUN AGAIN

Deem That He Is the Only Candidate Who Would Have Much Chance to Win.

ALSO SEEK TO BAR HYLAN

Davis Studies Campaign Problems at Country Home—To Visit Headquarters Today.

Democratic leaders refused yesterday to accept the report that Governor Alfred E. Smith would not be a candidate to succeed himself and it was learned that great pressure would be put upon the Governor to get him to reconsider and run for re-election.

No doubt was expressed by the party leaders concerning the authenticity of the report, which became public immediately after Governor Smith had a conference with John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, at the Murray Hill Hotel on Monday. The Governor's friends have known for some time that he did not wish to run for re-election but most of them have believed that he would yield to circumstances.

In the view of many local Democratic leaders, particularly those in Tammany, Governor Smith would be about the only Democratic candidate for Governor who would have much of a chance for election. This view was expressed by a number of up-State Democrats, several of whom sent telegrams urging a movement to force Governor Smith to run, immediately after reading the report that he would not be a candidate in the morning newspapers.

Hylan Is a Factor.

Another reason for the desire to have Governor Smith a candidate was said to be a feeling that his candidacy might be necessary to prevent the nomination of Mayor Hylan. One group in Tammany is decidedly averse to the Mayor's nomination for Governor, and with Governor Smith out of the running it might be difficult to hold the New York County delegates against him, while he probably would command almost solid support in the other boroughs of the city if Governor Smith were not a candidate.

Another group in Tammany would have no objection to the Mayor being the nominee for Governor if Governor Smith were not a candidate, on the theory that he would be out as Mayor if elected and weakened as a candidate for the Mayoralty nomination next year if he should be beaten. Belief was expressed in Tammany that it might be difficult to keep the nomination for Governor from the Mayor with Governor Smith out of the running, especially if the Mayor should get support from some of the up-State cities, where his attitude of opposition to public service corporations has some followers.

The general feeling in Democratic circles is that Governor Smith as a candidate for Governor would help the Democratic national ticket, even though the separate ballots in this State make it easy to split votes between the national and State tickets. The Governor's proposed speaking trip undoubtedly would help Mr. Davis in certain sections, it was said, but it was pointed out that the Governor would not be debarred from such a trip by running for re-election.

Davis Weighs Campaigns.

Mr. Davis did not come to New York yesterday but remained at his home at Locust Valley, L. I., where he gave attention to the broader aspects of the campaign which he will open with his acceptance speech at Clarksburg, W. Va., next Monday night and later follow with a series of speeches throughout the country. Among other things, Mr. Davis considered the sequence in which he will present his arguments in a more extended fashion later than will be possible in his first address.

Substantial progress was made in the selection of those who will have important places in the Democratic national campaign. It was reported that a selection had been made of the Chairman of the Finance Committee, one of the most important posts, but announcement was withheld by Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Chairman. The announcement is to be made after the meeting of the national committee at Clarksburg.

After spending the forenoon in the study of his home at Locust Valley, Mr. Davis took a quiet lunch on and then had a round of golf and a swim in Long Island Sound with his acting secretary, J. M. Nye. There were no dinner guests, but Mrs. Izetta Jewell Brown, one of those who seconded Mr. Davis's nomination at the Democratic National Convention, had luncheon with the nominee and Mrs. Davis.

Mr. Davis will visit his headquarters in the Murray Hill Hotel today to keep a long list of appointments made for him by his advisers. Because of the pressure of business he canceled his appointment to go tonight to the home of Franklin D. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, but will go there Thursday morning instead for the picnic of the Dutchess County Democratic organization, at which Governor Smith will make the principal speech.

Olvany Repledges Support.

Promise of full cooperation on the part of Tammany was made again by Judge George W. Olvany, the new leader of Tammany, to Thomas J. Spellacy, the Democratic eastern campaign manager, who visited Judge Olvany at Tammany Hall. After discussing the situation in New York, Mr. Spellacy requested Judge Olvany to suggest two or three Tammany men to act with him as assistants in the eastern campaign headquarters. Judge Olvany promised to recommend several such men in a day or two.

Mr. Spellacy said he would follow the policy of having at least one man to advise him from each of the States for which he is responsible. These include New York, New Jersey and the six New England States.

Mr. Spellacy said he had not discussed Mayor Hylan's reputed aspiration for the Democratic nomination for Governor with Judge Olvany and declared that their talk dealt entirely with the national campaign. Commenting on the Mayor's statement that he was "listening and waiting" before deciding to support Mr. Davis, Mr. Spellacy said he did not believe any one could be blamed for waiting to see what a candidate's principles might be before declaring for him.

Asked about the indorsement of Senator La Follette by the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Spellacy said he did not believe it would hurt the Democratic nominee.

"Mr. Davis throughout his career has advocated collective bargaining," he said, "and without collective bargaining there can be no labor unions, as that is the heart of all such movements."

Discusses Maine Campaign.

Asked about the endorsement of Senator Pine in the Maine State campaign, Mr. Spellacy said:

"The only effort of our office will be to cooperate with the State and local committees in my territory. We are not going to attempt to run any State election, but will work through the duly constituted party authorities in those States.

"Maine was carried by the Democrats in the 1910 State election. This was followed by the election of a Democratic Congress in that year and by a Democratic victory in 1912. In 1914, because of the split in the Republican Party and the nomination of Republican, Democratic and Progressive tickets in Maine, the Democrats again elected a Governor of that State.

"The situation this year is similar to that in 1914. If Maine should show a Democratic tendency this year, I think it is true that the country will also go Democratic. But don't forget that the country can be carried by the Democrats with Maine going overwhelmingly Republican.

"We naturally have an interest in electing the State ticket in Maine. The Democratic candidate for Governor, William R. Pattangall, was in to see us yesterday, and we want to see him elected. But it is a stiff fight, as the Republicans have always flooded that State with speakers and money."

"Will the Democrats also flood the State with money?" Mr. Spellacy was asked.

"I can commit myself definitely on that," he replied with a smile, "because there never was a Democratic campaign fund that could afford to flood any State with money."

With Mr. Davis absent, there were comparatively few callers at the Murray Hill headquarters. Among those to see Mr. Shaver were Scott Ferris, National Committeeman from Oklahoma; Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Chairman of the women's organization of the New York State Democratic Committee, and Representative W. D. Upshaw of Georgia, an active McAdoo worker at the recent convention.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN OPEN HEADQUARTERS

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin in Charge at 2 West 46th Street—To Get Voters to Polls.

Republican women of the Eastern States will have their own headquarters and organization, it was announced yesterday. Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, National Committeewoman from New York and a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee, opened the headquarters at 2 West Forty-sixth Street yesterday. Mrs. Barclay Warburton of Pennsylvania and Mrs. George Orvis of Vermont, both members of the National Committee, will be associated with her in the conduct of the women's campaign.

The Republican women will have their own Coolidge-Dawes clubs and Miss Maude Wetmore of Rhode Island will have charge of their organization. Miss Helen Varick Boswell of New York will have charge of the women's speakers' bureau. Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll of New York will head the women contributors' committee. Mrs. Charlotte Farrar, woman leader of the Tenth Manhattan Assembly District, has been named as Assistant Secretary of the Republican National Committee and assigned to the women's organization.

"We are going to get the women to the polls," Mrs. Sabin said. "The women are pledging themselves not only to vote but to see that every member of their families votes. Women are actively at work in every county in the Eastern States. The Republican platform with its recommendation for the speedy consideration of the Child Labor amendment and its pledge of law enforcement has won them. There is no doubt that a large part of the interest of the women comes from a sincere admiration of the personalities of our candidates."

William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman, conferred with a number of New York Republicans during the day and visited the downtown section of the city on personal and business matters. It was announced that ex-Representative John Q. Tilson, head of the Eastern speakers' bureau, would go to Maine to arrange for an active campaign there before the State election on Sept. 8.

HARRISON TO NOTIFY GOV. BRYAN ON AUG. 18

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 5.—Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska will be formally notified of his nomination as the Democratic candidate for Vice President by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi at the University of Nebraska Memorial Stadium on the night of Aug. 18, one week after John W. Davis is officially appraised of his nomination as the Democratic Party's choice for President, it was stated today.

Governor Bryan is reported to be making good progress in the preparation of his speech of acceptance. He has been working on it for several weeks.

ASK DAVIS TO AID MINERS.

The Socialist Party, as represented by Norman Thomas, candidate for Governor, and Charles Solomon, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, sought last night to draw John W. Davis, candidate for President on the Democratic ticket, into protesting, with them, to the Governor of West Virginia, from which State Mr. Davis comes, against alleged actions by detectives in the coal mining districts in "illegally" evicting miners from their homes.

Mr. Thomas and Mr. Solomon sent a message to Governor Morgan of West Virginia and then the following message to Mr. Davis at the Murray Hill Hotel:

Word has reached us from responsible sources in West Virginia indicating a renewal of the reign of terror which the coal operators have so often practiced against defenseless members of the miners' union. Scores of miners are being evicted from their homes by private detectives in clear violation of the law of the State of West Virginia and of the nation. As a resident of West Virginia, will you join in protest to Governor Morgan against this brutal outrage being done to the constitutional rights of these defenseless workers?

NORMAN THOMAS.
CHARLES SOLOMON.

The protest to Governor Morgan was to the effect that "progressive American citizens" were being "outraged by the brutal and lawless methods of private detectives in the pay of coal operators, who were evicting 'peaceful citizens' in Winifrede, Coalsburg, Perryville and Hanley." The Governor was urged to insure the "defenseless miners their full constitutional rights."

In making public the telegrams Mr. Thomas added that he had been moved to address Mr. Davis because of information from Percy Tetlow, President of District 17, United Mine Workers of America. He quoted Mr. Tetlow, in part, as follows:

"Recently there appeared in the village of Winifrede a band of armed men recruited by a detective agency in Charleston and employed by coal operators. These men were heavily armed with high-powered rifles and pistols and had several 'bloodhounds in their possession. They swept into this peaceful village in high-powered motor cars and proceeded by force to empty the household effects of two miners and their families into the streets."

COOLIDGE LIMITS ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

that not merely export business but business throughout the country would be improved because of the expected return to normalcy in Europe. He was declared to be of the opinion also that the execution of the reparations plan would not have any effect upon the American tariff.

These views of the President are shared by Republican politicians, who maintain that the London agreement, with the rise in the prices of wheat and hogs in the United States, will be extremely helpful to the party in November. They contend also that the party will be helped through the prestige which they believe General Dawes will obtain as author of the plan.

Washington, despite the fact that two of the candidates for President are here and all three of the political parties are maintaining headquarters in the capital, has not evidenced much political activity. The city has gone back to that old-time Summer somnolency that existed up to ten years ago, when the European war began.

THIRD PARTY SURE IT WILL WIN HERE

La Follette Manager Predicts Victory in Both the State and the City.

PETITIONS ALMOST READY

The long-drawn-out meeting of the La Follette adherents in this city, held in the rooms of the Committee of Forty-eight at 15 East Fortieth Street, until a late hour Monday night, at least brought forth a highly optimistic prophecy as to the election to be held next November. A statement issued yesterday as to the proceedings began:

"Local supporters of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket expect to carry New York City. This was indicated yesterday at the Committee of Forty-eight headquarters when a statement was issued showing that seventeen organizations have united in a joint conference to push the independent campaign in Greater New York."

Then Mr. Gilbert E. Roe, formerly La Follette's law partner and manager of the national campaign in the northeastern group of States, was quoted thus:

"Mr. Roe shared the general conviction that the Progressive ticket has a good chance to carry New York State as well as Greater New York."

Had Long Debate.

The meeting actually accomplished, after prolonged discussion and debate, the selection of the Greater New York Progressive Campaign Committee. Nothing was said about State nominations or nominees for Congress, much less about State, Gubernatorial and Assembly nominees. Mr. Roe's remarks and those of the other speakers under the guidance of J. H. H. Hopkins, Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight, who presided, concerned only the national campaign and the part the local organization, then in process of formation, could play therein. It was agreed, however, that for the time being the local organization had best meet elsewhere than at the new headquarters for the national campaign, which Mr. Roe is to open at 23 West Forty-third Street today or tomorrow.

The following organizations are to be represented on the Greater New York Progressive Campaign Committee by those whose names are given in each case:

Woman's Committee for Political Action: Mrs. Gordon Norrie and Mrs. Charles Darnton.

Greater New York C. P. F. A.: James Burke and H. J. Chapman.

Emergency Foreign Policy Conference: Oswald Garrison Villard and Captain Paxton Hibben.

Committee of Forty-eight: J. H. H. Hopkins and Arthur Garfield Hays.

C. P. F. A.: Owen A. Converse and Harriot Stanton Blatch.

Farmer-Labor Party: Abraham Lefkowitz and Nathan Fine.

Liberal League: John E. Conway and Albert A. Bernstein.

All-Party La Follette and Wheeler Progressive League: Miss Margaret Vale and Miss Alice MacFadyen.

The Thespians: Lee Beggs.

Advisory Progressive Publicity Committee: McAlister Coleman and Leslie H. Allen.

National Colored Non-Partisan Association: A. Merral Willis and J. C. Page.

Progressive Party of New York: Stephen J. De Lise and Melinda Alexander.

Other organizations are expected to join, and an application for membership has already been received from the Brooklyn La Follette for President Club.

Mr. Roe's statement to the seventy-five or so men and women who had gathered at this initial conference began with the assertion: "La Follette and Wheeler will carry Greater New York. I don't see how either the Republicans or the Democrats can hope to carry this city."

He explained that at present his work was confined to getting the names of the La Follette electors on the ballot in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, the New England States and Delaware, a nominating petition, he said, would be ready for circulation within a week. The list of the electors which must appear on the petitions is nearly completed. Mr. Roe gave assurances that every part of the State would be represented on the list.

To Name City Committees.

The Campaign Committee for New York City was authorized to appoint all committees necessary to circulate the petitions, get them signed, see that the names of the electors appear on the ballot and to do other work. There are to be besides an Executive Committee, Committees on Speakers, Meetings, Publicity, Petitions and other branches of the work. The publicity work probably will be in the hands of Harry Kellogg, who handled the publicity for the Hillquit Mayoralty campaign. The New York committee will cooperate with the national organization, which Mr. Roe will represent, and also with the State organization to be formed at the conference to be held in Albany on Aug. 16.

Following the adjournment of the conference the New York committee was called into session, with Oswald Harrison Villard in the chair. It chose an Executive Committee and authorized it to select its own officers and committees and enlarge its membership. The Executive Committee is as follows: H. J. Chapman, Abraham Lefkowitz, Marie B. MacDonald, Darwin J. Meserole, J. H. Hopkins, Julius Gerber, Mrs. Gordon Norrie, John E. Conway, McAlister Coleman, J. V. Smith and James Mason.

The Executive Committee will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock to organize in the rooms of the Committee of Forty-eight.

WHEELER'S PARTNER MONTANA MANAGER

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Simultaneously with the announcement of the appointment of James H. Baldwin of Butte, a law partner of Senator Wheeler, as manager of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign in Montana, Representative John M. Nelson, national director of the La Follette forces, emphasized that the effort to elect the Presidential Electors would in no way be consolidated with any campaign for State offices.

The appointment of Mr. Baldwin, he said, had been made after a careful study of the Montana situation by Philip La Follette, son of the Wisconsin Senator, and with the approval of "all forces in the State which may be expected to contribute appreciably to the campaign."

REPORT FREE STATE WILL WAIT ON BILL

British Ministers Said to Have Obtained Agreement on Boundary Measure in Dublin Visit.

COSGRAVE IS HARD PRESSED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Aug. 5.—J. H. Thomas, British Colonial Secretary, and Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary, arrived at Kingstown this morning and drove to the Vice Regal Lodge, where, after having breakfast with Gov. Gen. Healy, a conference with the Irish leaders began.

President Cosgrave drove to the Vice Regal Lodge at an early hour, accompanied by Kelvin O'Higgins, Minister of Justice, and P. P. McGilligan, Minister of Industry and Commerce. At a later stage Desmond Fitzgerald took part in the discussions, which were strictly private and were maintained virtually throughout the day without an interval.

If Mr. Thomas had any definite hope in his mind when he left the mail boat, he gave no other clue to it than to remark that he did not anticipate any necessity for a visit to Belfast.

After an all-day sitting the members of the conference dined with the Governor General, and the British Ministers left the Vice Regal Lodge, motoring at full speed to catch the night boat for England.

An official statement subsequently issued in behalf of the Free State said the conference was held on the question of putting into operation Article XII. of the Anglo-Irish Treaty, and as the result of a full discussion a statement will be made in the British House of Commons tomorrow, after which the British Premier will communicate with the Irish Free State.

I learn that as a result of great pressure by Mr. Thomas, the Free State Government has agreed to a postponement of the second reading of the amending bill until after the Parliamentary recess.

Mr. Thomas, before leaving Kingstown tonight, declined to anticipate his statement in Parliament, but added:

"I may say we are not disappointed by the result of our visit."

Say Delay Hurts Cosgrave.

Dublin today, with its crowded, beflagged streets, brilliant horse show and its Tailteann games, gives no outward sign that it is the center of a political crisis, but below the surface public opinion is deeply moved and the utmost anxiety prevails.

Mr. Cosgrave's sincere desire for a peaceful settlement of the boundary question is not doubted. He has given hundreds of proofs that his difficulties are, however, enormous. The Constitutional Republicans and Labor Party in the Dail Eireann are pressing him relentlessly to bring matters to a head. The militant Republicans are in vigilant search of an opportunity for mischief, and on account of other reasons, such as the heavy burden of taxation the Government has lost something of its hold on its regular supporters.

If, as is believed, Mr. Thomas came here to ask Mr. Cosgrave to consent to a postponement of the second and later stages of the Boundary Amending Bill until October, it is believed he is asking Mr. Cosgrave to take by far the greatest risk of his whole political career. It is quite probable that Mr. Cosgrave and his chief colleagues would accept, and even would welcome, such a postponement if their hands were free, and it is certain that the body of moderate opinion throughout the Free State would hail it with the utmost relief.

It is not less certain, however, that Mr. Cosgrave's acceptance of a postponement would produce an immediate crisis in the Dail and would bring the Free State Government well within the risk of collapse, which might have grave reactions on national progress and even on public peace.

Mr. Cosgrave, it is held here, will be able to consent to a postponement of the later stages of the bill only if he gets from Mr. Thomas and Mr. Henderson such guarantees of the British Government's absolute purpose to appoint an unfettered boundary commission that will satisfy the mass of the Government party in the Dail Eireann.

It seems, therefore, that the success or failure of Mr. Thomas's mission will depend altogether on the extent and character of the guarantees which he is empowered to offer.

Feeling in Dublin this afternoon is far from hopeful. At headquarters, which retains a close touch with the Executive Council, it was stated with some show of confidence that the conference would be abortive. Information from these sources was that if the British Government refused now to pass the amending bill through all its stages in both houses before adjustment, Mr. Cosgrave would tender his Government's resignation to the Dail when it meets next Tuesday to wind up the business of the session.

Statement Deferred to Thursday.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The statement which is to be made in Parliament by Mr. Thomas on his mission to Ireland has been deferred until Thursday, in order to give Mr. Thomas and Mr. Henderson as long a time as possible to collate their impressions of their visit to Ireland.

The object of their hurried visit was to assure Mr. Cosgrave and his Ministers of the Government's firm intention to press the bill through directly the house reassembles in the Autumn, and to insist that "a higher contentious bill should not be rushed through at this stage of the session, destroying any hope of a settlement by consent."

The Cabinet are still determined to avoid going further than formally introducing the bill on this side of the recess if it can be avoided. The general feeling tonight was that in view of the announcement made by Mr. Clynes that the adjournment motion would be taken on Thursday, the Government could not possibly ask the members to change their plans again at such short notice, and continue in session to pass the bill.

BOLSHEVIST BAND RAIDS POLISH TOWN

WARSAW, Aug. 5.—In a bandit raid on Monday on the country town of Stolze, Poland, the raiders, who wore Soviet army helmets and were armed with rifles, killed seven policemen. Cavalry coming to the rescue found the town surrounded by bandit sentries. It is rumored that with the exception of a small bandit group, which succeeded in returning back into Russia, the remainder of the band were surrounded by the pursuing cavalry.

The raid caused a special Polish Cabinet meeting to be held here, but energetic diplomatic retaliation is not expected in view of the fact that although all Poland feels that such raids are encouraged by the Soviet, it is practically impossible to prove it.

RIGA, Aug. 5.—There is great disquiet in the frontier zone of Poland in consequence of the frequent armed raids into Polish territory from Soviet Russia. It is difficult to say how these raids are organized. The raiders are generally well equipped and disciplined and have the appearance of regular soldiers.

They retreat across the frontier as soon as they are confronted with Polish forces of any considerable strength.

Moscow Bolshevists constantly declare that these raiders are insurgents who are discontented with the Polish régime, and consist of White Russians and Ukrainians whose inclusion within the Polish frontiers makes them Polish citizens against their will. Well-informed persons, however, assert that these detachments are organized with Bolshevist connivance.

According to news from Moscow, the Bolshevists attach serious importance to the recent collision between Polish troops and "certain unknown detachments numbering about 100 horse and foot" which raided the Polish town of Stolbtsi on Monday night, killed seven policemen and wounded many others, plundered the post office and other establishments, seized documents and money, and after a skirmish with Polish cavalry, dispersed into Soviet territory.

Moscow expects that the Polish Government will hold the Soviet Government responsible for the outrage, and the Communists already are discussing preparations for a probable exchange of acrimonious notes.

REPARATION PERILS MOVE MAYOR HYLAN

He Writes to Coolidge Echoing Hearst Sentiments on German Loan.

SEES US PAYING INDEMNITY

And Asks President to Assure the People That Our Forces Won't Be Used to Collect the Debt.

Mayor John F. Hylan, broadening the scope of his letter writing, addressed one to President Coolidge under date of Aug. 4, which he made public from the City Hall yesterday.

Endorsing an editorial in the Hearst newspaper of the same date, the Mayor calls the attention of the President to reports that the Premiers of England and France "have acquiesced in a plan, no doubt already approved by J. P. Morgan, whereby United States investors will be given an opportunity to pay the German reparation bill."

Mayor Hylan asks the President: "Would it not be advisable to publicly advise American investors that loans advanced through the international bankers under the proposed Dawes-Morgan plan will not have the army and navy of the United States to insure the collection of such loans?" The Mayor's letter to President Coolidge follows:

City of New York.
Office of the Mayor.
Aug. 4, 1924.

Hon. Calvin Coolidge, President,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

I take the liberty of inviting your attention to a report in today's press that Premier Herriot of France and Premier MacDonald of England have acquiesced in a plan, no doubt already approved by J. P. Morgan, one of the New York's foremost international bankers and political strategists, whereby United States investors will be given the opportunity to pay the German reparation bill.

France owes the United States close to three billion dollars. So far as is known no particular pressure has been applied to the French Republic by the American Republic to expedite its payment. France claims an enormous indemnity from Germany, but through a policy of prostrating German economic life has postponed date of such indemnity payment. Suggestions, not advanced by the international bankers, that the Ruhr industries might be operated to pay all allied reparations have not received either official or unofficial attention. Yet a suggestion of this nature would, it is confidently believed in competent quarters, speed the rehabilitation of Germany. It would also permit France to take over the properties mortgaged as bonds upon the agricultural and industrial life of Germany. France would become the collector of its own indemnity.

The plan of the international bankers appears to shift the burden of German reparation collection to the shoulders of American investors. Commissions for the floating of the bonds will go, as usual, into the coffers of the international bankers. The repayment of the moneys advanced by American investors could not be guaranteed by the international bankers. Is the United States Government to guarantee such payment? Hardly. Therefore, would it not be advisable to publicly advise American investors that loans advanced through the international bankers under the proposed Dawes-Morgan plan will not have the army and navy of the United States to insure the collection of such loans.

If I remember correctly, President Wilson during the early part of his first term notified certain international bankers that if a loan of some $50,000,000 were made to one of the foreign Governments the employment of the army and navy of the United States would not be permitted under any circumstances to enforce ultimate collection. It was a plain, unequivocal statement. The American investing public would undoubtedly be grateful for a similar expression of the nation's policy in the present instance.

Admitting that American investors have an absolute right to put their money into whatever channels they desire, and this includes foreign Governments already indebted to the United States in a sum exceeding $10,000,000,000, does not fair play require that all such investors be promptly advised that no international banker nor skillful strategist in party politics can sound a clarion call for the manhood of America to drop work, home-ties and loved ones to risk or give up life or limb in defense of monies loaned on private initiative? Should they not be told that the official Government at Washington which has taken no official cognizance of the proceedings, culminating in the announcement of the latest international financial agreement, will not permit, under any plan of patriotism, moral obligation or specious pretext, the conversion of the young men of America into military and naval battering rams to enforce with official sanction that which has never received official sanction?

Respectfully yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

COOLIDGE LIKELY TO REPLY.

One Official Says Hylan States Situation "Very Clearly."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Mayor Hylan's letter in reference to warning prospective American investors of bonds under the reparations plan that these bonds would not be backed up by the American Government had not been received at the White House today at the close of business.

When the import of the letter was read to a White House official tonight he said that the President undoubtedly would make a reply to it, and since the Mayor's letter was made public, the reply would also be given to the press.

An Administration official said that Mayor Hylan had stated the situation very clearly, namely, that the bonds would be floated by the American bankers, and any investor who purchased them would do so knowing full well the guarantee for their repayment would be fully set forth in the agreement about to be reached in London.

He said that they clearly would have no connection with the American Government, and would be on the same basis as a bond of a foreign country, or, for that matter, a private corporation's bond.

Paris Newspaper Sarcastic Over the American Souvenir Habit After Elysee Visit.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—The following paragraphs in the Paris newspaper L'Oeuvre today bring into the open the rumors which had been floating around for the past week:

"There is a good deal of strange talk going on at the Elysée in connection with the recent visit of the Advertising Clubs.

"These eminent representatives of American publicity were well received by President Doumergue. The buffet was especially plentifully provided, and these citizens of a dry country did ample honor to our national champagne.

"Afterward, their natural joviality took free rein, at the expense, even, it is said, of the dignity of the President. When his guests had left M. Doumergue found that the salons of the Elysée had suffered veritable pillage. Several Napoleonic souvenirs had disappeared and, with them, two dozen gold coffee spoons.

"Everybody knows our American friends are most enthusiastic collectors of souvenirs. Those which they have taken with them from the Elysée will aid, no doubt, in spreading good-will toward France among American advertisers."

$500,000 DAMAGE IN STORM.

Wind, Hail and Floods Ravage Crawford County, Wis.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Aug. 5.—Damage estimated at $500,000 has been caused in Crawford County by a series of storms that swept a territory six miles wide during the last twenty-four hours.

The high winds demolished buildings, hail ruined crops, and floods drowned large numbers of live stock, washed fields and flooded all the creeks and rivers in the storm-swept area.

More than 150 fields of tobacco, which never looked more promising than this season, have been ruined. Roads are impassable and telephone lines are down. Railroad traffic was held up by the washouts. There have been no reports of any deaths.

NEGROES ACCLAIM A BLACK CHRIST

MARCUS GARVEY PRESIDES

The demand for a black Christ was the feature of last night's meeting at the convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association held in Liberty Hall, 120 West 138th Street, where the speakers and delegates from the four corners of the world agreed that it was the height of stupidity and self-negation for negroes to worship a Caucasian deity.

Great enthusiasm prevailed and men and women stood up and cried out "Hallelujah" when Bishop George Alexander McGuire of the African Orthodox Church urged the audience to name an international day when all the negroes of the world should tear the pictures of a white Madonna and a white Christ out of their homes and make a bonfire of them.

"Then let us start our negro painters getting busy," he exclaimed," "and supply a black Madonna and a black Christ for the training of our children."

Conspicuous in front of the speakers' platform was a large painting of an Ethiopian Christ and a black Madonna framed in gold. The white-robed choir sang hymns of praise to a black Man of Sorrows, while the assembly fervently acclaimed a Hamitic God and Christ. When the Bishop told of an aged negress who came up to the platform when a negro preacher was telling of a black Christ and offered him $5 because she knew that "no white man would ever die on the cross for me," and tumult of applause drowned the speaker's voice.

He spoke of Christ as being of a reddish brown color, and declared that if Christ ever came to New York he could not live on Riverside Drive on account of his color, but he would have to live in Harlem, "because all the darker people live here in Harlem."

The Bishop said that the white man was responsible for the color scheme in religion, and he declared that the Western negro was the only negro in the world who accepted the white man's devil as black. "Now we call the devil white," he exclaimed. He referred to Loeb and Leopold, and the many crimes committed by white men today. "Whose children are they?" he asked, and he answered: "Why, children of the devil."

He contended that the first historic man was chocolate colored, and that the only difference between a white and a black man was that one traveled south to the equator and his pigment increased, while the other traveled north and lost some of his pigment. He said that when he prayed he visualized God as a great patriarchal negro and Christ as a man of his own race.

Marcus aGrvey, President-General of the association, opened the meeting, and introduced the first speaker, the Rev. J. D. Barber, a negro from Abyssinia. Mr. Barber argued that Moses, David and King Solomon were black. He said it only took a few drops of black to spoil a man and take him out of the white race, and related how King James based his version of the Bible on the Ethiopian script, which his soldiers stole in Abyssinia.

He referred to John, caught up in the grand council of God on the Isle of Patmos, as describing Christ as a black man, with feet that shone as polished brass, hair of lambs' wool and eyes with flames of fire. Then he declared that he did not blame the white men for believing Christ was white as they wanted an ideal, and prophesied that the day was coming when the negro would have his own pictured Bible.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA BREAK NEGOTIATIONS

and capitalism, although there had been many evasive discussions of other features of Article XIV. which the Russians found objectionable.

Delegates Exhausted.

Both the Russians and the English who took part in the eighteen and one-half hour endurance test, which came to a conclusion at 7:15 o'clock this morning, were so exhausted that they immediately went to bed, and even the British Foreign Office lacks full details of the final hours of the clash between the advocates of the two widely different economic systems.

The breakdown case as something of a surprise, as the Russians and their supporters had been strongly optimistic in their statements and a belief had been created that a treaty between Russia and England would be signed shortly.

There has been much speculation in diplomatic circles as to what Secretary Hughes might have said to Premier MacDonald, during the Secretary's recent visit here, with regard to Russian recognition. Likewise, the German delegates here for discussion of the Dawes plan are eager to know whether the breakdown of the Anglo-Russian negotiations will affect their own negotiations with the Allies.

The collapse of the Russian negotiations was almost as sensational as the signing of the Treaty of Rapallo by the Russians and Germans during the Genoa conference.

Negotiations Similar to Lausanne.

The negotiations between the British and the Russians did not differ basically from the negotiations with the Soviet Government of all the great powers at Genoa and Lausanne.

For nearly four months the same arguments have been repeated in various forms. The Russians wanted loans aggregating £50,000,000 and wanted England to guarantee them; they also wanted the £10,000,000 belonging to Czarist Russia which is in English banks.

M. Rakovsky and his associates, however, apparently were unable to make any satisfactory pledges about the payment of Russia's pre-war debts and were not willing to enter into any agreement which might have been construed to imply that the Soviet Government had no legal right to confiscate foreign property in Russia.

The breakdown of the negotiations for a new trade agreement leaves the Soviet Government exactly where it stood before the negotiations began, in so far as its relations with Great Britain are concerned. The English banks will not turn over the Czarist gold.

The special Russian delegation will return to Moscow, M. Rakovsky remaining as Trade Commissioner, just as he did before the negotiations opened.

Official quarters were disinclined to comment today on the breakdown, in view of the fact that Arthur Ponsonby, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, is to make a statement in the House of Commons tomorrow regarding the situation.

It is intimated, however, that possibly the last word has not yet been spoken and that there may even be some further meetings of the delegates, although nothing definite is known as to this.

The Daily Mail says that negotiations will be resumed Wednesday morning in consequence of an investigation of the situation by Premier MacDonald, who was said to be greatly surprised to learn of the breakdown.

In Conference Since April 14.

The Anglo-Russian conference in London was convened on April 14 following recognition of the Soviet régime by the Labor Government under Premier MacDonald, in fulfillment of what was virtually a campaign pledge. The purpose of the conference was to settle all the outstanding claims between the two countries, some involving pre-war debts on the part of Russia and others growing out of the Soviet Government's seizures, under its nationalization policy, of property belonging to British subjects.

The proceedings dragged from the start, despite the efforts of the British to speed them up. The Russians made efforts to obtain a loan, which they desired the British Government to guarantee. This guarantee the British flatly refused to give, Mr. MacDonald declaring that the British bankers demanded recognition of Russia's pre-war debts as a prerequisite to any advance.

Another of the stumbling blocks was the Russians' insistence that the British recognise extensive war claims based on damages suffered in consequence of armed foreign intervention in Russia after the revolution. The campaigns of General Denikin, Admiral Kolchak and the anti-Bolshevist leaders were cited in this connection.

Christian Rakovsky, the chief Soviet delegate, after a hurried trip to Moscow, returned to London last week, bearing a new set of proposals which it was hoped, according to Moscow dispatches, would remove the obstacles to an understanding. It was thought by the Russians that these terms, described as the most liberal yet formulated by Bolshevist leaders, would result eventually in a loan under British Government guarantee.

In framing the new proposals, however, the Soviet commissars, it was added, were particularly careful to conserve the Soviet laws on nationalization of property, as they were against sacrificing any of their revolutionary principles.

MAY ALTER FRENCH PLANS.

Anglo-Russian Rupture Elicits Warning to Herriot to Move Slowly

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—The failure of the Russo-British negotiations will have an important reaction in France. In the electoral campaign M. Herriot and other radical leaders promised recognition of the Soviet Government, but following their accession to power there has been such opposition manifested to recognition without a satisfactory arrangement regarding the 25,000,000,000 francs Russia owes France's nivesting public that M. Herriot tacitly agreed to await the outcome of the London negotiations, which the leaders of the radicals here believed would be successful.

While there is some talk here that M. Herriot is not sorry to see the English parley fail because he seeks to curry favor with Moscow by according recognition, the general feeling here is that the London negotiations broke down on the same point on which the French would insist, and it is recalled that the French claims on Russia are many times greater than those of England.

The failure of Mr. MacDonald's effort to make a settlement with the Bolsheviki will certainly cause the Senate to go very slowly in approving any recognition by France, unless there should be some assurance of Russia's recognition of her debt to France.

If it is Russia's hope to get a loan from France, Moscow will probably discover less chance here than in London, unless the Soviets wish to make the concessions they refused to make in London.

The Journal des Debats tonight says: "London was in a much better position than we to make an agreement with the Soviets. The debts which the English wished recognized are infinitely smaller than the Russian debt to France. Furthermore, England was able to grant a credit if she had wished.

"Our Government, which with a light heart promised recognition of the Soviets and exemption of normal relations, will do well to study the London fiasco. We have nothing to offer the Soviets, and apparently we've nothing to gain from negotiations with them. We have everything to lose. The only result of conversations, which they would prolong as they did in London, would be to supply them opportunity to spread their propaganda here.

"Therefore, without delay, M. Herriot should renounce his Russian projects. If not, we will have to conclude that he is willing to sacrifice French rights for the purpose of internal politics. That will insure his meeting formidable opposition. We wish good relations with Russia, but that doesn't mean we wish to join in this Bolshevist adventure."

The United States cruiser Raleigh, which has been on station here attending the fliers, proceeded to sea, with her destination probably Reykjavik, where Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, the flight commander, will decide upon the further plans for the flight.

At 10:25 o'clock the fliers passed Skaftaros, seventy miles west of Hornafjord, flying in a strong gale.

In the getaway the Chicago, with Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Arnold, his mechanician, took the air first. Lieutenant Nelson and Lieutenant Harding, in the New Orleans, followed a moment later. They circled the harbor for a moment, waved farewells and then headed along the Iceland coast toward their destination.

It was the best day since the Raleigh arrived, with the sun shining brightly over the glaciers and no trace of fog. From the north came a stiff breeze which it was felt might somewhat impede the progress of the planes, but the reports from the destroyers stationed along the route indicated excellent visibility with a generally calm sea.

As on the day the planes arrived, the entire population of the little village gathered today to wave farewell to the fliers and the only hotel in town was filled to overflowing with farmers from up-country, who came to wish the birdmen good luck.

Last night the aviators were entertained at the home of T. Danielsson, a merchant who owns most of the village. A number of Iceland beauties presented them with bouquets of wild flowers as tokens of good luck.

The stay of the aviators here has been most pleasurable and they have found Iceland one of the most picturesque countries they have visited in their long round-the-world grind. Just back of the little village of Hornafjord, a small volcano—one of more than 100 active ones in the country—is surmounted perpetually by a crown of whispy smoke, while further along the south coast and just off the course to Reykjavik is Mount Hekla, which erupted in the '70s, causing great damage and loss of life.

Along the coast line the mountains come almost to the edge of the water, but there are great sweeps of sandy plains leading to the big glaciers in the valleys.

In the dying Summer it is a coast of grim grandeur with a perpetual mist drifting above the high tablelands inland. Except in the small cultivated areas, the only visible vegetation is short green grass and in some of the valleys a small species of bushlike birch.

The coast line, however, is smooth, and with the destroyers Reid and Billingsley guarding the flight and with the cruiser Richmond awaiting the aviators at Reykjavik, the present leg of the flight presents far less difficulty than the one just completed.

PORTUGUESE AIRMEN ARRIVE.

Proud of Their Attempt to Reach Macao From Lisbon.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Sympathy for Lieutenant Leigh Wade, American Army world flier, whose plane was damaged en route to Iceland on Sunday, and surprise that Major A. Stuart MacLaren and his companions had abandoned their globe-encircling flight, were expressed by Majors Sarmento de Beires and Brito Paes, and Lieutenant Manuel Gouveia, Portuguese army officers, on their arrival here last night from Vancouver, B. C., en route to Lisbon, Portugal.

"The aviators were forced down June 20 at Shamichun, near Hongkong, while attempting to fly from Lisbon to Macao, China. They left Portugal Feb. 7.

"We are proud of our flight," declared Major de Beires. "We established aerial communication between Portugal and its provinces in China. We succeeded where several others had met with failure. The trip also had historic significance because we followed the route taken hundreds of years ago by Portuguese sailors."

SAILORS HUNT POLAR BEAR.

U. S. S. LAWRENCE, INDIAN HARBOR, LABRADOR, Aug. 5.—Carrying fuel and fighting gear, a landing party of two officers and fourteen blue jackets went ashore at Poteles Bay today to hunt a polar bear that has been seen on one of the islands there. Both officers and men were from the U. S. S. destroyer Lawrence, flagship of the flotilla at anchor here waiting word to patrol the sea between Greenland and Labrador when the army aviators make that hop in their flight around the world.

Between Greenland and Labrador when the army aviators make that hop in their Word that a polar bear was on one of the islands in Hamilton Inlet was brought to the destroyers when they reached Indian Harbor last Saturday. The men at once asked Captain Russell Willson, commanding the flotilla, for permission to hunt it. Today they obtained his consent and under command of Lieutenant H. C. Hamilton and Ensign W. S. Ginn, they got out their packs and rifles and 120 rounds of ammunition apiece, and with a local trapper as guide, set out for Poteles Bay where the bear was reported to have been seen swimming from one island to another. They have permission to be absent until tomorrow night.

MACLAREN TELLS HOW WORLD FLIGHT ENDED

Caught in Dense Fog, British Airmen Made Forced Landing and Wrecked Plane.

ABOARD U. S. COAST GUARD CUTTER ANGONQUIN, Aug. 5 (By Wireless to The Associated Press, via St. Paul Island).—Dense fog and poor visibility were responsible for the accident near Nikolski, Komandorski Islands, Siberia, last Saturday to the around-the-world airplane piloted by Major A. Stuart MacLaren, British aviator, according to word received today from the Canadian trawler Thiepval.

Details of the accident were given by Major MacLaren, who, with his companions, Flying Officer W. N. Plenderleith and Lieut. Col. L. E. Broome, flight advance officer, were en route today aboard the Thiepval for Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island, in the Aleutian group. From there they are to sail for London via Vancouver, B. C.

"After leaving Petropaviovsk, West Kamchatka, Siberia, we encountered a dense fog two-thirds of the way to Bering Island in the Komandorski group," said Major MacLaren. "We were forced to fly low, owing to poor visibility. Only part of the right wing of the plane could be seen at this time.

"The first fog was encountered at an altitude of 3,000 feet after passing an unnamed cape fifteen miles east-southeast from Siberia. But there was clear water visibility until we got about two-thirds across the 119-mile stretch of open water to Bering Island. The fog then became solid and Officer Plenderleith, who was piloting the machine, descended until we were 100 feet over the water before we could see our way. After going another mile the fog bank dropped to the surface of the sea with a twenty-miles-an-hour wind blowing on the portside.

"The plane was traveling 100 miles an hour and 100 feet above the ocean. The visibility was 100 yards. Despite a dense fog which almost blinded Officer Plenderleith, he swerved the plane and avoided by a margin of two feet an island which disappeared from view a few second later.

"Judging from the time we were in the air and distance we were supposed to have traveled, there was danger of dashing against the cliffs of Bering Island. The visibility now was nil. We decided to make a forced landing and Officer Plenderleith hit the ocean along a swell.

"Both the top wing tips were shattered and wrenched off the plane, swerving it entirely around and tearing the fabric off the lower port wing. The aerileons were wrenched half loose."

ATTU ISLAND, Aug. 5 (By Wireless to The Associated Press via Cordova, Alaska).—Major A. Stuart MacLaren, the British aviator who yesterday announced that he had abandoned his effort to fly around the world, will not permit the bases prepared for him along his proposed route to be dismantled. Major MacLaren made this statement today.

Italian to Hop Off Tomorrow.

BROUGH, England, Aug. 5.—Lieutenant Locatelli, Italian airman who has flown here from Pisa and who intends to follow in the track of the American round-the-world airmen across the Atlantic, plans to take off for Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands on Thursday. He hopes to catch up with the American airmen and to fly with them across the Atlantic from Greenland to the North American Continent.

CONFERENCE REPORT IN GERMANS' HANDS

fruitful co-operation of the nations. If it is possible for the conference, as we confidently hope, to prepare the ground for the attainment of this great end, then the whole German people, as soon as the essential conditions for its free economic activity have been restored, will devote its whole strength to carrying out the heavy obligations which the experts' plan requires from it."

Mr. MacDonald then formally handed to the chief German delegate reports embodying the work of the Interallied Conference and said that as soon as the German delegation was ready to discuss those reports another meeting of the conference would be summoned.

Marx Promises to Make Haste.

Dr. Marx agreed with this procedure and further intimated that he and his colleagues would have their comments ready as soon as possible. In fact, they would make all possible haste.

In some quarters it was thought possible that a plenary session might be called for tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. MacDonald was insistent on the necessity of speeding up the conference. He remarked that the German delegates were all young and able-bodied men and were capable of working morning, noon and night. He hoped thus that they would get through their labor very quickly, and he was particularly anxious that they should, if necessary, sit through Friday night, so that he might catch the 4 A. M. express for Scotland on Saturday.

Debate in House of Commons.

There was a debate in the House of Commons later in the day when ex-Premier Lloyd George put a question to the Prime Minister in a speech which emphasized the necessity of military evacuation of the Ruhr if the implications of the Dawes report were to be followed.

The Dawes report, said Mr. Lloyd George, had declined to express any opinion on the military question, but it did express an opinion with regard to the civil evacuation and the economic evacuation of the Ruhr, as M. Poincaré when he entered the Ruhr made it clear that the soldiers went there merely to enable the civilians to carry out their economic functions. The moment there was an economic evacuation there was no further ground for the presence of those troops in the Ruhr. They were purely provocative and a source of irritation, he said.

It had been stated, he continued, that the French and Belgians intended to remain in the Ruhr for two years, until there had been complete evidence of the good faith of the German Government by the discharge of certain obligations under the Dawes plan. That was a very serious thing, and he believed the British Government should make it quite clear that it could not possibly be the case.

Speaking on the subject of separate action by France or another power, Mr. Lloyd George said it was vital that it should be clearly understood that no power was to take separate action. The Germany that would then have to be dealt with would be a different Germany. The men who remembered the horrors of the war would be passing away, and their places would be taken by the younger generation. Such action might have been taken eighteen months ago without disastrous consequences, though with serious consequences, but he did not believe it could be taken five years hence without disaster. Therefore he hoped the Prime Minister would have it clearly understood that the Allies must act together; that if there was any difference of opinion between them, either The Hague Tribunal or the League of Nations, which might then be a more formidable factor, owing to America coming in, would be called in to decide the issue.

Mr. MacDonald's optimism was no whit damped by Mr. Lloyd George's observations. He stood by the Dawes report, he said. The only thing that could be done was to take it as a whole and put it into operation, to give it a chance and to provide, so far as possible, safeguards against any calamity.

MacDonald on Military Evacuation.

Mr. MacDonald then outlined his attitude in regard to the question of the military evacuation of the Ruhr in the following statement:

"So far as the economic and fiscal evacuation of the Ruhr is concerned, it is quite definite. A very carefully drafted agreement has been made, an agreement drafted by experts who know the administration of the Ruhr and who know the administration of Germany. The French, Belgians and the whole of the conference have agreed to it and accepted it. With reference to military evacuation, the position is this:

"The experts said: 'We cannot pronounce upon that because it is not within the terms of our reference; but we want to warn you, the Governments who are going to put this report into operation, that in creating or in trying to create economic and fiscal unity you must remember that military occupations may have a bearing upon it.'

"Well, we have not forgotten it. Moreover, the French Government has made it quite clear that they went into the Ruhr, not for security, not to occupy territory, not for any purpose of a military or of a political character, but that they went into the Ruhr because Germany had defaulted—so they said—and they were taking sanctions against that default that were to back up certain economic machinery which was to yield revenue to France by what they considered to be necessary military forces.

"That was the situation. France accepts the Dawes report. France accepts the new machinery and the new method of getting reparations. I do not believe for a moment that, although French public opinion may have been very largely misled by certain newspapers, French public opinion is blind to the obligations now placed upon it by the declarations of its own Government."

Resounding cheers followed this declaration.

Alanson B. Houghton, the American Ambassador to Berlin, has come to London in connection with the conference. It is considered probable that Secretary Hughes may have been able to convey to the German delegation before it left much sound advice as to the way in which it might contribute to making the conference a success.

French Expect a Debt Conference.

LONDON, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—In French circles tonight the view was expressed that the present parleys would be followed soon by another conference at which the question of cancellation of interallied war debts would be discussed. France from the start has been in favor of cancellation, and one of her spokesmen said there was a growing hope that she would soon have her efforts seconded by Premier MacDonald.

M. Clementel, the French Finance Minister, discussed the question with Mr. MacDonald, and it is understood he found the British Premier sympathetic. It is learned that M. Clementel sought to obtain assurance from the British Prime Minister that his views had undergone no change since his correspondence on the subject with M. Loucheur. In this correspondence Mr. MacDonald is understood to have said that the question of interallied debts was closely interwoven with the German reparation question.

With reparation well on the way toward solution through the inauguration of the Dawes plan, France is now pressing for a parley to consider the debt situation.

The British Government has been reported as sympathetic toward the French views on cancellation of war debts within certain well-defined limitations, which, of course, would have to take into account Great Britain's obligations under Ex-Premier Baldwin's settlement of Great Britain's debt to the United States.

As the question of war indebtedness to the United States is considered a delicate political question in that country, none of the American delegates attending the conference tonight would venture an opinion upon a subject concerning which the American Congress laid down very definite instructions, in accordance with which the American Debt Commission had circumscribed its dealings with Premier Baldwin in arranging the British settlement.

It is therefore taken for granted here that the British settlement with the United States will serve as a precedent in dealing with the war debts of other nations to the United States, at least until the American Congress shall again express itself.

In American circles tonight it was said that with the United States engaged in a Presidential campaign it was no time to indulge in any prophesies as to what would be the position of the United States if the debt question became the subject of early discussion in another conference.

Premier MacDonald, answering questions in the House of Commons today with regard to the international reparation conference, declared he would not agree to a British soldier remaining in Cologne (the British bridgehead area) sixty seconds longer than necessary to carry out Great Britain's fair obligations imposed on her under the Treaty of Versailles.

Mr. MacDonald's declaration was made in answer to a question put to him by former Prime Minister Lloyd George, who called for information regarding evacuation of the Cologne area, in view of the fact that the five years' occupation provided under the Treaty of Versailles expired in January.

The Premier said that to those who talked about the German loan and reparation his reply would be in the form of a question, namely, "Would you scrap the Dawes report and go back to the position as it was between Sept. 10, 1923, and the beginning of this year?" He added that he personally could not take that responsibility on himself.

Thinks Default Safeguards Complete.

Mr. MacDonald argued that the safeguards in the declaration of default were so complete that if any stage of the sanctions ever was reached there probably would be unanimity on them. He believed that before long an arbitration board would be constituted which would decide the disputed points in the Treaty of Versailles. Until that was created there would be no security; but this was a matter for the treaty and not for the Dawes report.

From the very beginning, the Premier asserted, he had fought under the conviction that the conference, to use a golf term, would "hole out." He still had the same confidence and believed the members of the House could proceed with their holidays and contentedly leave the conference to finish its work. But should any unforeseen difficulty arise, he assured the members he would take the necessary steps to consult with Parliament.

GOV. FLYNN SCORES BAY STATE ARRESTS

CALLS INQUIRY SUPERFICIAL

Declares It Was Intended to "Absolve Officials of Massachusetts From Blame."

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 5.—Governor William S. Flynn today sent to Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts a letter characterizing as "superficial," and intended to "absolve the officials of Massachusetts from blame or implication in the outrage which has been perpetrated upon the officials of Rhode Island," the investigation into the arrest of Rhode Island Assistant Attorneys General by Massachusetts constabulary at Rutland, Mass., on July 19.

Governor Flynn, who was replying to Governor Cox's letter of July 31, which upheld the action of the Massachusetts police, said the mission of the Rhode Island officials was "unquestionably legitimate," and he asserted that the treatment accorded them was "discourteous, unprovoked, humiliating and oppressive."

The letter referred to Governor Cox's statement that the arrests were made "in consequence of a telephone call purporting to come from the Providence Police Department requesting the apprehension of an alleged criminal from Rhode Island, whose description was given."

This request, Governor Flynn wrote, "is, of course, well known to have been for the apprehension of one William (alias Toots) Murray, who for some weeks previously had been quartered at the Hotel Bartlett and with whom the State police officers of the Holden Barracks must have been familiar through their frequent visitations to this hotel."

He added that State Senator Sherman of Rhode Island, who has been staying with other Rhode Island Republican Senators at Rutland, notified the Holden Barracks just before the arrests that Murray was not in the party with the Rhode Island officials and told the State police just who was in the party.

The reasons which have been assigned for this absolutely unwarranted arrest of these Rhode Island officials," Governor Flynn continued, "are no more convincing than the explanations that followed in your letter with respect to the necessity of detaining and booking as 'suspicious persons' gentlemen who were fully known to be responsible officers of the State of Rhode Island.

"These persons now have very good cause to be suspicious that the action of the Massachusetts State police in this instance was calculated directly to interfere with the object of their visit to your State.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB SANE, JUDGE RULES

it having been testified that they were below seven years in emotional age.

The prosecutor, not satisfied with the Judge's ruling on the insanity angle, hammered away at it throughout the cross-examination. Dr. Healy admitted that "psychosis" is a new medical term for insanity and Mr. Crowe asked if "psychosis," "insane" or "bughouse" did not mean the same, but without obtaining a satisfactory reply.

Third Alienist Takes Stand.

Upon completion of Dr. Healy's testimony, Dr. Bernard Glueck of New York was called as the third defense alienist, despite the fact that there was only twenty minutes of the session left and the attorneys were hinting broadly for an adjournment because of the intense heat. Dr. Glueck got only as far as his qualifications as an expert before adjournment.

The hearing promises to continue at least a fortnight longer, in the opinion of Clarence S. Darrow, chief of defense counsel, "and then I am making a conservative estimate," he said.

The defense will use two or three more alienists, Mr. Darrow indicated, with an undetermined number of other witnesses, some of whom will probably be members of the families of the two defendants.

Dr. Healy resumed his testimony today by further explaining the "childish compact" he said yesterday Loeb and Leopold had entered into at the age of 13.

"This childish compact was entered into, apparently, for the sake of carrying out some of the childish notions which each had and was unwillingly acceded to in both instances, to a certain degree anyhow," said the witness.

"Doctor, you talk about a childish compact," said Mr. Crowe, on cross-examination. "In that pact these boys agreed to practice different forms of perversion, didn't they?"

"Childish forms, yes," replied Dr. Healy.

Dr. Healy said his compensation was $250 a day.

Calls Loeb the Master Criminal.

Dr. Healy told Mr. Crowe that the boys did not tell him which originated the crime, nor did he have any notes which might help him answer, that he had not gone into that phase in the examination.

Mr. Crowe sought to bring out that certain emotions displayed by the youths when their alibis were broken down could be described as "fear."

"Making those assumptions," replied the doctor, "I should say that was fear."

"Loeb is the master criminal here, isn't he?" asked Crowe.

"Yes, I think so," replied the doctor.

Loeb apparently enjoyed the fencing by Mr. Crowe and Dr. Healy, in which the doctor more than held his own. For the most part the cross-examination was going over old ground.

"Do you think they want to hang?" asked Mr. Crowe.

Denies Boys Deceived Him.

"What defense in the world have these boys except the story told by the alienists, based upon what they have told you?" asked Mr. Crowe.

Mr. Darrow objected quickly, but Judge Caverly permitted the witness to answer, and he said:

"I don't know anything about it."

Mr. Crow asked the witness a long hypothetical question, which involved use of two other hypothetical questions, including one asked by Leopold regarding the possibility of "beating" the case before a "friendly judge," and ending "what was working then, intellect or emotion."

"Fear and caution, the instincts of self-preservation," replied the witness.

The question was approximately 600 words long and included a statement by Mr. Crowe that while in his custody, before they confessed and shortly after that time, the boys had become angry at each other and refused to eat with each other.

Mr. Crowe brought from the witness a statement that "psychosis" is "in medical parlance a term now given to insanity," and that previously he had made a report that one of the defendants was suffering from psychosis, which, the doctor added, was a "relative mental disease."

Fire Marshal Has a Janitor Fined for Allowing Rubbish in Cellar.

As the first result of Fire Marshal Thomas F. Brophy's campaign to curb the activities of the west side "firebug" thought to be responsible for three deaths and six incendiary blazes Leon Sobel, janitor of Nos. 6 and 10 West 109th Street, was fined $5 by Magistrate Edgar S. Brethingham in the West Side Court yesterday for permitting rubbish to accumulate in his basement. Sobel's house was one of those in which a fire was set on Saturday night, but firemen arrived in time to extinguish it easily.

"Such carelessness must be wiped out," Fire Marshal Brophy said in court. "Loose paper in the cellars of apartment houses is a direct invitation to any firebug who happens to come along."

Marcus Garvey Pleads Not Guilty.

Marcus Garvey, President of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, appeared before Federal Judge McClintic yesterday and pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging him with perjury in having sworn falsely to his income tax return for 1921. He was held in $2,500 bail. Garvey came down town from Liberty Hall, where he is presiding over the fourth international convention of the negro peoples of the world, in an automobile. He returned to Liberty Hall by the same conveyance.

WHAT HAVE YOU READ OF CONRAD'S?

Conrad has gone. The English speaking world hails him as a master. He writes, they say, of a world of romance that has no counterpart in literature. Many read Conrad because he tells of the sea; people locked to the land for the length of life have yearnings for that strange plastic world.

Why is Conrad a master—Conrad, born in a Slavic country, a man not even native to the language over which he triumphed?

To those who do not yet know Conrad, we recommend:

DEBT CANCELLATION OPPOSED BY BURTON

He Writes Institute of Politics That Americans Are "Overwhelmingly" Against It.

BOYDEN DIFFERS IN VIEW

LEAGUE RESULTS DISCUSSED

Sir James Arthur Salter Declares That Efforts to Settle World Problems Without It Have Failed.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 6.—Though not on the program of the Institute of Politics, the question whether the United States should or should not cancel or reduce its claims upon the Allies for loans made on account of the war was injected into today's meeting of the open conference on international finance when W. S. Culbertson, Vice Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, read a letter to the conference from Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, a member of the Debt Funding Commission, who was Temporary Chairman of the Republican National Convention in Cleveland, in which Mr. Burton declared that the American people were "overwhelmingly" opposed to cancellation.

This letter drew a vigorous retort from Roland W. Boyden of Boston, formerly unofficial American observer with the Reparation Commission, who asserted that "business principles and economic facts" would compel a revision of the debts, and questioned Mr. Burton's statement that the American people were "overwhelmingly" opposed to change in the foreign debt policy.

THEODORE BURTON ON DEBTS.

Mr. Burton's letter was as follows:

Hon. William S. Culbertson, United States Tariff Commission, Old Land Office Building, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Culbertson:

The sentiment of the people of the United States is overwhelmingly against release of the so-called foreign debts. This has been indicated by votes of the Congress and by expressions of popular opinion in the press and otherwise.

The amount of the principal sum of this debt was computed on the 15th of November, 1922, at $10,100,000,000. It was made up of four classes of loans or advances; first, loans made under authority of the Liberty Loan act passed by Congress, amounting to $9,386,000,000; second, for the purchase of surplus war supplies, amounting to $376,000,000; third, advances made by the American Relief Association, amounting to $84,000,000; fourth and last, although there are sums of minor importance, debts due the American Grain Corporation for food supplies, amounting to $76,000,000.

England has funded her debt of $4,600,000,000 and payments have been made upon interest and principal. A settlement has also been made by certain other countries, including Cuba, Nicaragua, Finland and Hungary.

The reasons why it is not thought fair or just to release this debt are:

First—The cancellation or repudiation of international obligations would create not merely confusion and distrust in the financial world, but, quite as dangerous, would seriously impair future loan actions and future development.

Second—The amounts loaned foreign countries were provided by loans obtained from the people of the United States, and that with no small degree of difficulty. The advances made were not from an abounding treasury, but by the action of the Government in becoming a borrower alike with these debtors at the time. The burden of taxation is extremely heavy in our country, and in proportion to the burdens existing before the late great war the increase in national indebtedness has been far greater, and in taxation quite as great, if not greater, than in the countries of Europe whose obligations we hold.

"Burning Desire for Peace."

There is a burning desire for the maintenance of peace. In case of cancellation, what assurance is there that the resources which otherwise would be applied upon payments might not be utilized for the expansion of military and naval establishments, and thus create an ever-present threat of future conflict and destruction?

There is still another point in this connection. A very considerable fraction of the advances made were after the actual close of the war, and were for rehabilitation and the creation of new enterprises rather than for the prosecution of the war. In the war itself the United States was not subjected to the same surpassing dangers as her allies, and in the peace she sought no acquisition of territory. Indemnities are not expected by her.

It must be said that at the time these loans were made the legislation authorizing them and the popular expectation both alike contemplated payment. It should be added that when propositions were made for a pooling of the expenses of the war during peace negotiations at Paris they were rejected, not only by the United States but by other nations, and by a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

At the same time the Government of the United States is not unmindful of the interests not only of every country, but of those vast interests which pertain to the whole world, and thus a reasonable degree of concession and leniency in terms of payment is a settled policy. A period of sixty-two years for payment of principal has been agreed upon with the countries with which settlements have been made, with smaller payments at first, increasing progressively. The rate of interest is made 3 per cent. for the first ten years, a lower rate than that upon which public loans can be obtained, and after that 3½ per cent. This is true although the prevailing rate paid on most United States bonds is 4¼ per cent. Payments of principal may be made in three-year periods instead of annually, and in the first five years half the interest may be funded with the principal.

Urges Progressive Disarmament.

I cannot too strongly emphasize the fact that the only effective means to provide for payment of debts and the healing of the economic life of nations must depend upon progressive disarmament and the maintenance of peace.

At the date of making this statement the settlement of reparations in Europe is hanging in the balance. There can be no greater benefit to world finance or to economic recuperation than the final settlement of claims for reparations and obligations between the nations of Europe. Upon the decision now pending the future economic condition of all the nations must depend in great measure.

Very respectfully,

THEODORE E. BURTON.

Holding a copy of Mr. Burton's letter in his hand, Mr. Boyden said:

"This assumed overwhelming sentiment is like the assumed sentiment which delayed the creation of the Dawes report. It is a sentiment imputed to the people of the United States by Mr. Burton. Business principles and economic facts in the end are bound to cause a revision of the interallied debts. One good business principle is that when you have something necessary to do, the sooner you do it the more profitably it can be done."

Mr. Boyden said that, while he shared the general optimism expressed here over the prospects of reconstruction in consequence of the success of the London conference, he wished to utter a caution against expecting too rapid progress to be made.

Professor Allyn Abbott Young, President of Economics at Harvard University, expressed regret that the principle of delivery of reparations in kind had been retained in the Dawes report, and Mr. Boyden agreed with him.

DAWES REPORT ANALYZED.

Alan G. Goldsmith, chief of the European division of the Department of Commerce and a technical adviser of the Dawes Committee, who was introduced by Mr. Culbertson as having "had more to do with the Dawes report than he would be willing to admit," analyzed the economic features of the Dawes plan and its expected economic effects.

"The plan offers Germany," he said, "a stable currency, a sound financial foundation on which to base her future financial and commercial development, and the restoration of her economic unity. It offers the Allies the possibility of obtaining the maximum reparation payments which Germany can pay without undermining her own financial structure or injuring the economic position of the recipient nations. It offers the nations of the world in general the possibility of competing with a German industry as heavily taxed as their own, not artificially stimulated by a depreciating currency, and a German consumer who is enabled to make increasing quantities of their surplus production.

"The plan permits Germany to operate as an economic unit, and has substituted economic cooperation for military control. The charges are over all and must be distributed by the Allies, according to their best judgment, for reparations or for military and other overhead costs. A differentiation has been made for the first time between the sums Germany might raise within her own borders in her own currency, and those she could convert into foreign credits for the account of the Allies.

"The Dawes plan will increase the competition to be expected from Germany and from Europe in general, but this will be fair competition on a sound financial and economic basis. It will also increase the consuming power, not only of Germany, but of the entire world. An increase of world business, now only about 80 per cent. of pre-war, will make it possible for the world to absorb additional production, especially as all nations will directly benefit by it."

Says Plan Was a Compromise.

Discussing criticisms of the report, Mr. Goldsmith admitted that the plan was a compromise, and that the members of the committee and the technical advisers had been in disagreement on some points at the outset. But he emphasized the statement that virtually all criticisms of the report dealt with figures and details, such as the maximum annual reparation payment, and not with the actual machinery of the plan.

Another thing which critics should keep in mind, Mr. Goldsmith went on, was that the Dawes plan was not necessarily a final settlement of the problem. Too many people had assumed that it was intended to be the last word, he added.

"The Dawes plan has been the greatest step forward in the solution of the reparation problem and the stabilization of European finance since the peace conference," he continued, "but it is not necessarily the ultimate solution. Built upon sound economic principles, however, it contains within itself the possibilities for alteration which may prove to be needed in the course of its operation.

"The basic machinery exists for the stabilization of the German currency, the balancing of the German budget and an increase not only of European production but also the consuming power of the world for food and service.

"As to the criticism of figures and other details, the personnel and machinery provided for in the plan can correct such details if on trial they prove inaccurate."

WORK OF LEAGUE DISCUSSED.

Sir James Arthur Salter, Director of the Economic and Finance Section of the League of Nations, who delivered an address last night on "The Economic Recovery of Europe," opened today his round table conference on "Reconstruction in Europe and the League's Contribution." He emphasized the success of international cooperation in effecting financial rehabilitation in war-stricken countries, when this action had been taken through the League, as contrasted with what he termed the failure of such attempts made by European Governments outside of the League.

"Records of abortive failure" was what he called attempts to settle international economic problems through the conferences of Ambassadors, the Reparation Commission, direct negotiations between Foreign Offices, and "more than a dozen specially convened conferences of Prime Ministers at Brussels, Spa, London, Paris, Rome, Genoa and elsewhere."

Declaring that it was hard to find any reconstruction scheme now in successful operation as a result of such measures, he said the record of the same Governments when acting through the League was one of consistent achievement.

"The League is no super-State or separate State," said Sir James. "It has no force except that which comes from the countries which constitute its membership; it works neither by force nor majority decisions, but by agreement and consent; it has to work within the same limits as other official conferences beset by conflicting national interests and conflicting national policies. But the same Governments whose record in economic reconstruction has been so sterile when attempted by other means have, when acting through the League, brought order out of chaos in Austria, in Hungary, in Upper Silesia, in Danzig, in the Saarr.

"In some cases a country on the verge of dissolution has been rescued and restored to a position of self-supporting independence (as Austria); in others demoralized currency has been replaced by a stable one (as Dantzig); in another (the Saarr) a region has been directly administered by the League in such a way as to make the economic life of its inhabitants compare very favorable with that of its neighbors; in another (Upper Silesia) a long standing dispute (which the Allies had for many months failed to settle by other means) has been definitely ended by the League, with the inevitable result that disorder ceased and production was resumed; in another (Greece) a mass of refugees, numbering one-fifth of the total population of the country, are being placed in productive employment."

Credits Individual Workers.

From the individual worker, manufacturer and merchant, however, had come the real initiative in rebuilding Europe, said Sir James. They were slowly repairing the disorganized economic processes—links between producer and consumer, home and foreign markets—which, he said, was the main evil caused by the war. But, he added, they had been impeded by official restrictions and barriers, and such obstacles to international trade as the disputes about reparations and the fluctuations of exchange.

The most important duty of the various Governments at present, he went on, was "to give their peoples a stable basis on which to develop their economic life, by securing a stable currency, which implies a balanced budget and a sound financial position."

ECONOMIC EFFECTS OF WAR.

How far-reaching the economic effects of the war have been was shown tonight by Sir Valentine Chirol, formerly chief foreign editor of The London Times, in his address on "The Reawakening of the Orient." Taxing the movement for self-government in India as his theme, Sir Valentine told how severe economic depression, "a backwash from Europe," had combined with other factors "to swell the broad tide of non-cooperation."

"Under the stimulus of the Occident," Sir Valentine said, "the Orient has learned to develop its immense natural resources; and its markets, more and more closely linked up in trade, industry and finance with those of the Occident, respond automatically to every wave of prosperity and depression that beats upon them from London or Paris or New York."

Sir Valentine discussed at length the question of when Great Britain could grant a further measure of self-government to India, saying that "most Englishmen" doubted the wisdom of granting any further concessions than those included in the act of 1919.

Prime Minister MacDonald, with whom, before the war, Sir Valentine served on a royal commission which made an inquiry into the Indian public services, shared this doubt, according to the speaker, who said that some of the members of the Labor Government had made rash promises to India before they expected to have to assume the responsibilities of government, but were unwilling to grant any further concessions at present.

"No British Prime Minister," he added, "could venture to take any step that might spell abrupt abdication."

The growth in the Orient of racial hatred of the white man, Sir Valentine said, was very ominous. He feared that some day all the other political, social and economic problems would become fused in the color problem. If that day came, he added, it would be an evil one for Western civilization.

POLITICAL HISTORY PROBLEMS.

Opening his round-table conference on "Problems of Political History," Sir Paul Vinogradoff, Professor of Jurisprudence at Oxford University, said that the changing outlook of the world on law and the State were exemplified by the amount of current propaganda.

"Two movements are largely determining the shifts in the outlook," he said. "First, the labor movement, with its increased pressure on the higher classes, its growing self-consciousness and its greater organization; second, the scientific attitude toward problems of law and politics, a change bound to produce revision of many if not most of the solutions previously reached.

"It is certainly necessary to revise our standards of justice and expediency, and in order to do so with success, the best means is to start from first principles and ascertain what exactly has to be understood by the central ideas of political life—the ideas of the State and society. We need not surrender to the claims of anarchists, syndicalists and pluralists in this respect, but we are bound to take notice of them, and to make up our minds as to their relative importance and possible measure of justification."

Sir Paul characterized the Constitution of the United States as "the greatest monument of statesmanship produced by democratic individualism."

Regarding the controversy in America in recent years as to the proper role for the courts to play in decisions bearing on constitutionality of laws and social problems, he said:

"It seems evident that such questions ought not to be left to the hazard of chance discussions in the course of historical conflicts. Although the courts have to approach them in connection with definite claims and particular cases, it is the duty of students of social science to make-up their minds in a systematic manner as to guiding principles, and thus prepare the ground for thoughtful treatment of problems as a whole."

former State Deputy Manuel Montes, agrarian leader in that region.

John Strauss, manager of the Evans hacienda, who was wounded at the time his employer was killed, has declared that he was unable to give the number of the assailants. He is said, however, to have identified one of them, as a man living in the vicinity. According to advices from Puebla, where Strauss is being treated at a hospital, he said that the assailants made a rush for the money sack containing 2,000 pesos, which was being taken to the hacienda to meet a payroll immediately after the shooting.

Other charges which the special court of inquiry is sifting include one to the effect that Mrs. Evans recently had a serious quarrel with one of the agrarian leaders over a division of her wheat crop, part of which, it is asserted, the leader had demanded for the agrarian workers.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5.—A large American flag late this afternoon was draped over the coffin of Mrs. Rosalie Evans in the British chapel by an American World War veteran. He also placed at her side a wreath of flowers more than five feet in diameter.

"She was a good soldier and entitled to this," the former soldier said.

After his act he telephoned the United States Embassy and informed them of it. It is reported that individual Britishers also will place their flag on the coffin.

British Agent Denies Robbery Motive.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The murder of Mrs. Rosalie Evans in Mexico was the subject of another question put to Prime Minister MacDonald in Commons today and in reply the Prime Minister made the following statement:

"The United States Embassy at Mexico City has brought the murder of Mrs. Evans to the notice of the Mexican Government and requested an immediate investigation with a view to the apprehension and punishment of the murderers, and the Mexican Government has replied that energetic measures were being taken to expedite the investigation and action for the apprehension of Mrs. Evans's assailants. The United States Embassy has suggested to the Mexican Government that it would be well to place a guard at Mrs. Evans's ranch to protect her house and its contents.

"The British Consul at Mexico City informs me that Captain Hollecombe, an official of the British Legation, who has been sent to the ranch to investigate, reports that the motive of the crime was not robbery, that the Mexican Government is acting energetically and has made a number of arrests and that he is obtaining all facilities.

"I have informeed his Majesty's Ambassador at Washington that the Mexican Government should be made to realize its responsibility for this tragic development. A claim will certainly be course."

Sister Goes to Defend Estate.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Mrs. W. J. Pettus of San Francisco, sister of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, who was shot and killed by a band of armed men near San Martin, State of Puebla, Mexico, last Saturday, left San Francisco tonight for Mexico City for the declared purpose of taking over her sister's estate and holding it until the property had been distributed. According to Mrs. Pettus, the legal heirs are all American citizens.

REFUSED TO SEEK SAFETY.

Sacred Duty to Make Stand for Law and Order, Mrs. Evans Wrote.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5.—The last letter written by Mrs. Rosalie Evans to a personal friend in Mexico City showed that Mrs. Evans realised that her life was unsafe at her ranch, but stated that it was a matter of sacred duty for her to stay and uphold the law and justice. The letter, which was given to American reporters today by a woman prominent in Mexico City society, reads as follows:

Dear Emily:

Your note came this morning. It touched my heart and I am going to write only a few lines. I had your other one about weeks. I did understand, for only one day in town I tried to see you and —— told me that you were away. I am so sorry, is still having trouble. I hope that Colonel Russell is going down. It would definitely help him.

"Of all the grievous mistakes ever made by the United States with Mexico was recognition, while still red-handed in their criminal acts. I won't come in to safety. [This refers to a letter advising her to come to Mexico City.]

"It is not from sheer bravado or indifference to consequences, but now it has become a sacred duty to make at least one last stand for law and justice against robbery and assassination.

"Backed by orders, the men who burned and looted it in December are being rewarded by gifts of my land. They still run away whenever I ride up, but how long will it last? They now have armed men, Agrarians, on the hill who openly say in the village that they have permission to kill me, but they stay so far away—their shots go over our heads.

"Well, if they do kill me, perhaps the outrage will help others—for Mr. Cummings is leaving nothing undone. Thanks to Anita for her letter—she longs for the land of the citron. Chase up. Evil cannot always prosper. There is a day of reckoning coming."

Indian Dhurries for the Country House

The vivid, unmodulated colors of these dhurries—daring in their shock of contrast as any modernist palette, and not unlike those used by the Indians of our own Southwest in their textiles—are delightful in a country house setting of quiet stained or painted woodwork, dark old furniture, old pewters and brasses and walls of cool plaster. They are so firmly woven of very sturdy cotton that although they are used in India chiefly as hangings and couch covers, they serve in decorative schemes here as rugs, being strikingly effective against dark polished wood.

The colors are wonderfully clear and pure—blues of ultramarine and turquoise, orange and Indian red, and softer tones of mauve and gray and rose, in various effects of wide and narrow stripes. Ranging from 6 feet 3 inches to 7 feet by 4 feet. $18 to $35.

COOLIDGE PRAISES WARREN'S RECORD

WILSON POLICIES SCORED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—President Coolidge today formally accepted the resignation of Charles B. Warren as Ambassador to Mexico in a letter in which he said that Mr. Warren, in his diplomatic work there, has "reestablished the most cordial relations between our Government and the Government of that country, which had been interrupted for a long period of years."

President Coolidge's letter reads as follows:

The White House,

My dear Mr. Ambassador:

The request which you make in your formal letter, that your resignation be accepted on this date, is granted.

Your mission to Mexico has been attended with the most gratifying success. You have re-established the most cordial relations between our own Government and the Government of that country, which had been interrupted for a long period of years. You have solved many of the perplexing questions, and especially have provided for the protection of American life and American property and the settlement of disputed claims. I feel certain that you will look back in the future upon this work with the utmost satisfaction, as an effort that has greatly contributed to the welfare of your country.

I am not unmindful of the extremely good influence that your presence in Mexico had in promoting the welfare of the Mexican people themselves. You represented at all times the fundamental desire of our country to see such conditions established that we could assist in the development of their country and the promotion of the welfare of their people. Now that you have concluded this work, I wish to express to you the sincere appreciation of our Government and my personal gratification at the success you have met in re-establishing a good understanding and promoting cordial and friendly relations, based on the sound principles of international justice. With kindest regards, I am,

Cordially yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Hon. Charles B. Warren,
Detroit, Mich.

Reviews the Mexican Situation.

Mr. Warren, upon receiving the President's letter before his return to Detroit, reviewed some of the problems and disputes that had been settled between Mexico and the United States.

"When the Harding Administration came into power," he said, "it inherited a group of unfortunate international relations from the Wilson Administration, some of which were not results of the World War. Among these unfortunate situations were our relations with Mexico. In part, as the result of a policy of watchful waiting, while American property was being destroyed and, in part, because of two false starts, one at Vera Cruz and the other represented by the Pershing expedition in Mexico, the new Administration was confronted with a generally unfortunate situation in our relations with Mexico.

"The United States has desired only that a prosperous and stable republic should be maintained in Mexico, with which this country should maintain good relations. The United States has had no policy that conflicts with any aspirations of Mexico. It only desires that its citizens in Mexico shall be protected, their rights recognized and that trade and commerce shall flow between the two countries. Above all, it has been the desire that a spirit of cooperation and friendliness should exist.

"The American Commission, of which I am a member, went to Mexico last year and initiated a basis for a resumption of diplomatic relations. Agencies have been set up to pass upon and determine the damages suffered by American citizens during the revolutionary period in Mexico, and to pass on the questions involved in the taking of American property by the Mexican Government in its policy of reforming the ownership and holding of land in Mexico.

"A difficult problem required to be solved, growing out of the Mexican Constitution of 1917. Prior to 1884 the Mexican Government owned the oil in the subsoil of privately-owned lands. From 1884 until 1917 the Mexican Government maintained the policy of giving to the owner of the surface the combustible minerals underneath. At no time has Mexico relinquished the Government ownership of metals, such as gold, silver, copper, lead, &c. These are mined under a system of licenses and royalties.

"But in order to secure development of the country's oil resources laws were passed in 1884, 1892 and 1909 providing that the purchaser of the surface should own the oil underneath. The attempt to change the policy through the Constitution of 1917 produced conflicts of interests between the private owners of land and the Government.

Landholders Are Protected.

"During the session of last year adjustments were made so that all owners of land or leaseholders, prior to the adoption of the Constitution of 1917, could proceed to recover the oil underlying their lands, in case the owner had, prior to 1917, performed some act that demonstrated his intent to take out the oil.

"This year the basis for negotiations has been agreed upon, and a commission representing oil producers will soon meet President Obregon and his advisers in Mexico City to work out, along lines already laid down, a plan to develop the oil industry on lands acquired after the Constitution of 1917 became effective.

"The achievement of this will be of enormous benefit to Mexico, because Mexico receives over one-fourth of its entire Federal income from the taxes on oil. Further, it will enable land owners in Mexico to get some benefits from the oil in the soil.

"Since 1881 there has been no treaty of commerce between the United States and Mexico. The treaty of 1831, revived in 1848 after the war between Mexico and the United States, was terminated by Mexico in 1881, following a notice of termination given by the Mexican Government in the preceding year.

There has been no treaty of amity and commerce since then.

"While I was Ambassador to Mexico notes were exchanged agreeing to negotiations for a treaty of commerce. Some questions of policy remain to be decided by the United States Government before these negotiations shall begin. These questions will be more or less determined by the action of the Senate on the treaty of commerce with Germany, which is now pending in the Senate. Policies to be determined involve whether we shall have discriminating rates in favor of our vessels in our own ports and the nature of the 'most favored nation' question in our treaties.

"So the relations between Mexico and the United States, inherited from the Democratic Administration, have been readjusted to the satisfaction of both Governments, and I feel that means have been found to protect American property and rights in Mexico, without offending the Mexican people, or interfering in any way in her domestic policies and affairs.

"I have undertaken three missions since the Republican Administration came into power. The first was an Ambassador to Japan, the second as head of the commission to negotiate resumption of diplomatic relations with Mexico, and the last was as Ambassador to Mexico.

"I am satisfied that the vexing problems in the Far East and Mexico have been solved. The situation in Europe, with which I am not so familiar, is rapidly approaching a greatly improved status under a plan suggested by the present Administration. I feel that the Coolidge Administration will be credited with putting the international relations of America on a better basis than has existed for a long time. I am resigning and going home to my family and my own affairs because I think that the things I have undertaken to help to achieve have been done."

You ought to know that vinegar is not just a sour taste.

Real vinegar has quality, flavor, aroma and delicacy, secured by the careful selection of the materials that go into it and by slow aging and mellowing.

Heinz Vinegars are real vinegars. Once you taste their flavor-compelling qualities you will never be content with the ordinary, crude, sour concoctions that have no name and no flavor.

It surely is not an extravagance to pay a fraction of a cent more to make a salad really delicious.

FALLON ATTACKS EIDLITZ EVIDENCE

JUDGE CLEARS COURTROOM

Angered by Laughter During Testimony of Ex-Judge Johnstone, Who Said Hearst Editor Paid His Bill.

Through the testimony of a dozen witnesses, William J. Fallon, the attorney being tried before Federal Judge McClintic and a jury on a charge of bribing Charles W. Rendigs, a juror in the trial of a group of alleged stock swindlers in 1922, developed testimony which contradicted assertions made against him on the stand by Ernest Eidlitz, formerly his secretary and confidential agent.

These witnesses swore that Eidlitz had confessed to them that he had lied against Fallon and that the true story of the Fuller-McGee cases would exonerate Fallon. One of the attorneys in the Durrell-Gregory Company trial of 1922 swore that Fallon had little to do with the case, and, so far as he knew, had nothing to do with jury bribing. Fallon also called one of the 1922 defendants, who asserted he knew Fallon only casually and never gave him money for a juror.

Throughout the day, Fallon strove to support his contention that the prosecution had been developed by The New York American and that the Federal authorities had compelled Paul to testify against him by threatening to close his places on charges of liquor violations. Paul has said that he cashed a check for $1,000 for Fallon. The Government alleges that this check was for Rendigs in part payment for his vote for acquittal.

Letters purporting to have been written from Canada by Eidlitz to Fallon were introduced by the defense as evidence that Eidlitz then maintained that Fallon had been the victim of an injustice.

Reporters' Talk With Eidlitz.

The crowd which tried to get into the courtroom was so large and persistent that the Court directed Deputy Marshals to clear the hallway.

Tod Goodwin, a reporter for The Daily News, was the first of Fallon's witnesses called yesterday to offset charges made against Fallon by Ernest Eidlitz, the former confidential man to Fallon, who fled to Canada during the Rendigs perjury trial and who came back as a Government witness against Fallon.

Goodwin testified that after his office had received a telegram from Montreal informing the editor that Eidlitz could be interviewed there, he went to Montreal and saw Eidlitz. He narrated the ensuing events as follows:

"Eidlitz said Fuller and McGee were a couple of double-crossing bums who had gone back on Fallon after Fallon had gone the limit for them. He compared the importance of his story with that of the Teapot Dome. He said it was the biggest thing in this country. He wanted $1,000 for the story and said he would be glad to cut me in on the money. He said he thought he hadn't done the right thing by him and if his story were published parts of it would exonerate Fallon.

"He was bitter against the Hearst organization. He said they hadn't paid him all the money he'd been promised. He said Victor Watson of The American told him to get the money from any source and go away. He said he had treated Fallon unjustly in one or two ways and he wanted to right that wrong."

Goodwin said his paper did not agree to pay anything to Eidlitz. Under cross-examination by Assistant Federal Attorney William J. Millard, the witness denied there had been any heavy drinking while he and Eidlitz were talking.

Acquitted Broker Testifies.

John M. Gregory, one of the defendants in the Durrell-Gregory Company trial in 1922, said in response to questions by Fallon that he had never held any conversation with Fallon, having met him only in a formal way in the courtroom during the trial and never having talked with him after their introduction.

"Did you give Fallon any money to give to a juror?" demanded Fallon. The witness recorded an emphatic negative. This testimony was called for the defense to counter the story told on the stand by Rendigs that Fallon had given him two bribes of $1,000 each to vote for the acquittal of the three Gregory brothers. Rendigs said Fallon posed as an intimate friend of the brothers and described them as "good fellows" whose acquittal he sought regardless of how the other defendants fared.

The next anti-Eidlitz witness called by Fallon was Morris Selk, a manufacturer of novelties, who recounted a quarrel he overheard between Fallon and Eidlitz when he was sitting in the office of Joseph Shalleck, a lawyer, who had part of the Fallon offices in the Knickerbocker Building. Selk said that on this occasion, some time in May, 1923, he heard Fallon upbraid Eidlitz severely.

"I heard Fallon say, 'Eidlitz, you can't deny signing these checks,'" testified Selk. "'You've done it before and this is the last time. Pack up and get out of here and don't let me see you here again.'

"Shalleck and I were talking in Shalleck's office when Eidlitz came out of Fallon's office, a grip under his arm. Eidlitz said as he went out, 'I'll get even, don't worry.'"

Contends Paul Was Coerced.

Fallon then undertook to show through Pierce W. Mulroney, a friend of Fallon's for many years, that Joseph L. Pani, restaurateur, was a witness against Fallon at this trial because he feared the Government would close his place on charges of liquor violations. Mulroney told of being with Pani, Attorney Jerome A. Jacobs and Fallon in Jacobs's office one day some months ago when Pani was preparing for the largest banquet ever scheduled for the Knickerbocker Grill, of which he was, at that time, the owner. He is now out of the ownership and management. The examination went on as follows:

Q.—What took place at the meeting? A.—Pani said: "I've been brought to the District Attorney's office time and again, let me stay outside and cool my heels, and now I have the biggest banquet of the year on tonight and I get word from the enforcement people that they found liquor in possession of the guests or under the tables they'd close me up. I think it's because they want me to make statements against Fallon that I can't make. They've harassed me and I think I'll have to go out of business. They wanted me to testify about checks given me by Fallon, and I said I couldn't because I cashed thousands of checks for Fallon and couldn't remember any single one. They're after me here and at the Woodmansten Inn."

Shortly after ex-Judge Robert S. Johnstone of General Sessions had been called to the stand by Fallon as the first afternoon witness, Judge McClintic became angry at an outburst of laughter and ordered the courtroom cleared of the 200 spectators. The clamor in the hallway became such as to cause a suspension of proceedings until the corridor had been cleared by Deputy Marshals Carr, Reed and Best.

Watson Paid Ex-Judge Johnstone.

Ex-Judge Johnstone said he had presided over the first two of the three trials of Edward M. Fuller on a charge of bucketing, the first resulting in a disagreement and the second in a mistrial. The following questions and answers were recorded:

Q.—Were you retained by Victor Watson of The American in certain matters? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Watson pay you a fee? A.—I sent him a bill and received a check.

Q.—You were not paid by Fuller or McGee? A.—No, I never saw them at all about it.

Q.—Did you write an opinion? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was this opinion sent to Watson? A.—I mailed it to Watson.

When the Court upheld the Government's objection to introduction of this opinion, Fallon said: "The American was endeavoring to bring about the liberty of Fuller and McGee as the price of their testimony."

"That is improper and wrong, and I have ruled on this before," admonished the Court. "Judge Johnstone's opinion is irrelevant in this trial."

Fallon produced Jerome A. Jacobs, an attorney, as his next witness in his program of seeking to establish coercion by the authorities to compel Pani to testify against Fallon. The examination by Fallon was as follows:

Q.—What did Pani say to you about the Fallon case? A.—The first time he spoke about it he said he had been subpoenaed to see Colonel Hayward, the Federal attorney, to ask him if he knew anything about the case. He said he knew nothing about it. On other occasions, later, he said that in Hayward's office, in the presence of Eidlitz, they said they wanted him to testify he had exchanged his check for Fallon's and he had told them that he couldn't so testify. He said Eidlitz tried to intimidate him with gestures. He said that before Rendigs was indicted he told Hugo Wintner, the Assistant District Attorney of New York County, that he couldn't remember such a check incident. He said Wintner went into a rage and called him a dirty won and kicked him out of the office. He said that during the Rendigs trial they kept him day after day waiting, trying to get him to testify to the check, and he said he couldn't. He didn't testify.

Q.—Do you recall Pani coming to your office? A.—Yes. He told me he was to give a large banquet and the guests were going to bring their own liquor. Pani said he wanted to talk to Fallon. Pani came into my office and met Fallon there. Fallon said no search warrant could be issued after sundown and to station men there, so that nobody could be admitted unless they belonged at the banquet or had a search warrant. Pani said he believed the place would be raided. He said he was afraid they'd close up his place, the Knickerbocker Grill, which he owned at the time, in the event he didn't testify for the Government against Fallon in reference to the check.

Jacobs Admits Indictment.

When Mr. Millard took over the witness, Jacobs flew into a rage at the first question, which was, "Were you ever arrested?" Fallon was on his feet objecting that in permit such a question would constitute a reversible error. But the witness settled matters by insisting, "I want to answer that question as an officer of this court."

He went on, then, to say: "I was indicted on a charge of obtaining collusive evidence in a divorce case. There was a mistrial and then there was an acquittal. I want you to know, Mr. Millard, that I was innocent."

"Were you ever before the Bar Association?" pursued Millard.

"Only as counsel except one time when they told me I was there in error because of a letter from a crazy woman."

Taking up another line of defense, Fallon called William G. Cunningham, a former Judge of the New York State Court of Claims, one of the attorneys for the main defendants in the Durrell-Gregory Company trial. He said he could not recall any consultations with Fallon during that trial. Ex-Judge Cunningham, whose clients included the three Gregory brothers, said that any conversation he had with Fallon during the course of that trial was casual. He said that he believed Fallon, who frequently was absent from the courtroom for days at a time, played an inconspicuous part and that he thought Fallon was neglecting his client, Albert de Blum, because another case was engaging Fallon's attention.

Offered to "Sell" Millard.

The witness said that he never heard of Fallon being associated with the bribing of any juror in that or any other case. "But the corridors of this building are always filled with talk of that sort," added Judge Cunningham. "It was one of the sensations for me, as a country lawyer trying a case in New York. My experience is that there are men around here in the corridors who offer to sell any one. They offered to sell you, Mr. Millard, to me. Of course, I took no stock in that."

Walter J. O'Neill, who resigned May 15 last as special examiner in the offices of Controller Craig, was another witness whose testimony made him a storm centre. He said that he met Eidlitz in a restaurant last January and that Eidlitz said he had done Fallon an injustice which he wanted to right. He quoted Eidlitz as saying:

"Walter, several people have tried to talk to me about the case, but I don't trust them. I can talk to you, however. I lied about this case, and if you could go and tell Billy how sorry I am and that I would like to meet him, I'll meet him any place he says, so long as you are there."

Fallon said the witness, at first refused to meet Eidlitz, but on O'Neill's urging finally consented to the meeting. The meeting took place in a hotel, said O'Neill.

Quotes Talk at Meeting.

"I'm sick of it all and am broken down and I want to make a confession," O'Neill quoted Eidlitz as saying to Fallon. "I got $7,500 or $9,000 from The American. I want to go away for a rest. A reporter for The American suggested that story of the checks. I've been taken off The American payroll and put on Chadbourne's payroll because they told me it would not look good for me to be on the payroll of the paper while the trial was on."

"Eidlitz said that Fuller and McGee were living well," went on O'Neill. "He said they were going to get out soon. Eidlitz said he had scared Pani into telling the story he did by shaking his finger at Pani.

"I saw Eidlitz again in Billie Bennett's apartment and others were present, including Fallon and two other women besides Miss Bennett. Eidlitz told the same story. He also said, 'If I make a confession and step out, there will be no connecting link. I'm going to write Watson I am going away for a rest and when I return I will make a complete confession.'"

O'Neill said it was in the apartment that Eidlitz wrote the letter to Watson that has been referred to often in the trial. He said Fallon had the letter photographed because he did not trust Eidlitz. On Monday Fallon produced what purported to be a photographic copy after Watson had testified he could not find the letter.

Letters Put in Evidence.

O'Neill said that when Eidlitz was in Canada he received three letters from Eidlitz to be given to Fallon. Though the Court permitted these letters to be read, they were ruled as not relevant except in so far as they assailed the testimony at the trial of W. Frank McGee.

One letter, addressed "Dear Bill" and signed "Ernest," read as follows:

"I see the Rendigs trial is beginning Thursday and I would like to give you a few pointers on it.

"Banton never wanted to try that case and it took Hayward three weeks to make him do it. He told him that The American would write against him otherwise. Hayward figures that this case is a much easier one than his own cases. That's why he wanted Banton to go ahead first, knowing that his own cases are hopeless; otherwise he would have tried them long before.

"Subpoena Hayward, Millard and Watson and ask the following questions:

"Did I make a statement meeting Rendigs in McGee's house right after F. and McG. (Fuller and McGee) invented that meeting and I was talked into the statement by Hayward, Millard and Watson. Remember you only were twice in the Gregory trial, didn't know anything about jurors and I do not think that a juror would know you. I think that is a very important part of the defense.

"The statements made in this case are all wrong and untrue. And I hope you will be able to beat this case."

Hayward-Banton Conferences.

Another letter said:

"Colonel Hayward gave Banton the Federal Grand Jury minutes and testimony. I think it was unethical.

"You have to subpoena both and ask about this. These two gentlemen were lunching for three weeks in the Woolworth Building grill. The first testimony in the Rendigs case was taken in Hayward's office. Wintner and Unger and Hayward were present. Ask Fuller what three facts he kept out of his confession with the knowledge of Watson and Hayward. These were the three most important facts. This was done to assure the two gentlemen that all the promises would be kept. Do not forget to ask if he did not refuse to make any statements before he was promised 5 per cent. from money collected through his help.

"Chadbourne agreed to it and Hayward knows about it. Ask about the arrangements made on Governors Island giving these two gentlemen all freedom and privileges. Who allowed Louise Groody and Florence Ely to visit at liberty without any pass, staying overnight; better subpoena officer in command of Governors Island.

"Fuller was promised, in case Judge Nott would not let him serve judgment on Governors Island, Hayward as Governor would pardon him."

Charges False Testimony.

From a third letter references by Eidlitz were quoted as to his ability to exonerate Fallon. This letter said in part:

"There never have been more lies and falsehoods since the wheels of justice started than in the Fuller and McGee case. Promises were made for Fuller and McGee in case indictments could be found against Foley, Bondy and Stoneham and Fallon. In case you want me I will come forward with a statement that will have nothing on Teapot Dome. My nerves are shattered by several attempts on my life."

The writer asked Fallon to submit these questions to Fuller and McGee:

"Who sent a telegram to you in Ludlow Street Jail?"

"Were you, in case of a confession, promised a suspended sentence?"

"Who retained Carl E. Whitney?"

"Weren't you talked into facts that weren't in existence?"

"Did you receive whisky frequently?"

"Were you drinking it before Hayward and Millard and no complaint made?"

O'Neill's testimony that the envelope he presented with one of the letters had been pieced together from torn parts led an juror to ask how he came to piece the parts together.

"When I was subpoenaed for this trial I looked around in a desk drawer and found the pieces of the envelope, which I thought I had destroyed. I turned over the pieces to Fallon, who had somebody put them together."

The Government maintained that the writing was not that of Eidlitz. The trial will be resumed at 10:30 A. M. today.

"What do you mean, '19' Model?" a phone caller asks. "19 year size or 19 dollars?"

Neither!

"19" Model is the name we've given to the suit we've designed especially for young men. Easier than asking for "a suit like the college men wear—high button front, roll lapels, full back, wider trousers."

It has all those points of popularity and lots of points of quality you don't see but that are even more important.

Another thing in its favor—many "19" Models are included in current price revisions—$10 or $15 off.

GIANTS DEFEAT CUBS ON HANK GOWDY DAY

ORDER NAMING FIELD READ

CHAMPIONS WIN BY 2 TO 1

Bush Yields to Dean in Ten-Inning Pitchers' Battle—Adams's Errors Are Costly to Chicago.

Harry Gowdy, soldier of the World War, Color Sergeant of the 166th Infantry, veteran of the Marne, of the Meuse-Argonne, of St. Mihiel and of the Aisne-Marne, had his own day at the Polo Grounds yesterday. In the presence of prominent baseball officials and high ranking officers of the army Sergeant Hank was honored, not particularly as one of the several million Americans who entered the armed service of the United States, but chiefly as the first major league ball player to enlist in Uncle Sam's overseas forces.

Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, commanding the Second Corps Area, and Brig. Gen. William Weigel, commandant of the Twelfth Army Corps, were among the ranking army officers who gathered to pay tribute to the ex-Sergeant of the Marne and the Argonne. Brigadier Briant H. Wells, commandant of the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., presented Hank with an embossed copy of an official order directing that the new athletic field at Fort Benning be named Gowdy Field in honor of the first big league player to enlist during the war.

Preceding the presentation of the engrossed order was a review of the Eighteenth Infantry from Fort Hamilton. Home plate was the official reviewing stand, and from that spot watched General Bullard, John Heydler, President of the National League; John McGraw, manager of the Giants, and ex-Sergeant Gowdy.

Official Order Read.

When the troops had passed in review, the colors of the 165th Infantry and the Rainbow Division flag were dipped in salute to the former Sergeant and the other official reviewers. General Wells then stepped to the plate and, in a voice that could be heard in every part of the grand stand, read the official order naming the new athletic field at Fort Benning in honor of Harry Gowdy.

Ranking officers of the regular army, the National Guard and the organized reserves were represented at the ceremonies. Besides Generals Bullard and Weigel, there were Colonel Sidney Grant, commanding the Thirteenth Regiment C. A. C.; Lieut. Col. T. J. Moynahan, O. R. C., President of the New York Chapter of the Rainbow Division; Colonel Thatcher T. Luquer, O. R. C., Chief Engineers, Twelfth Army Corps; Major A. G. Rudd, chief of the Recruiting Publicity Bureau, United States Army; Major W. M. Bailey, chief recruiting officer for the Second Corps Area, and Captain Charles S. Moyer, General Buller's aide-de-camp.

As the troops marched across the green grass of the Polo Grounds and Sergeant Gowdy stood at the home plate to receive the official order from General Wells, the 10,000 fans in the stands rose to their feet and gave Hank one of the finest ovations ever tendered to any ball player on the local diamond. They cheered not Catcher Gowdy of the Giants, but the fighting Sergeant of Luneville, Baccarat, of the Esperance-Suvain and Essey-Panne. While bugles acclaimed him, Sergeant Hank, who had faced machine-gun fire and German rifles on a half-dozen fronts, blushed and stammered as he listened to the words of praise from the Generals of the army and the plaudits of an admiring crowd in the stands.

The Giants won the game—2 to 1—in ten innings after a brisk pitchers' battle between two of the youngest youngsters in the league, Wayland Dean and Guy Bush. It was a hard game for the one to win and for the other to lose, although Bush was the greater victim because two wild throws by Shortstop Adams paved the way for both the Giants' runs.

Adams's Aim Poor.

Adams had great difficulty in locating the target at first base. He made one overthrow in the seventh inning that netted the Giants a run and allowed the struggle to go into extra innings. Wilson opened the inning by getting to first when Jigger Statz, usually reliable, muffed his line drive to centre. On Meusel's slow-dragging single to Friberg, Hack went to second. Terry grounded to Grantham and a double play was in the making until Adams spoiled it. After taking Grantham's throw to force Meusel at second, the pint-sized shortstop of the Bruins hurled weirdly past Cotter, and Wilson scampered in with the first run of the game.

Bush of Wichita Falls tied the score personally and single-handedly in the next round. With Heathcote on first and two out, the kid pitcher sloughed a long double to left centre—hit on the button between Wilson and Meusel and a triple except for spry fielding by the Giant outfielders. Heathcote scored standing up and sent the game into extra innings.

Dean was steady and had good support in the latter frames, but Bush was in no such luck. A streak of wildness attacked him in the tenth and set the stage for real trouble. The youngster passed Groh as a starter and Sergeant Hank Gowdy as a finisher, the Cubs kicking strenuously on Sweeney's decision on the fourth ball. Dean tried to bunt, but pushed a pop fly which Hartnett caught at the pitcher's box.

That relieved the strain and Bush seemed to be out of trouble, when O'Connell smacked a grounder at Adams. Grantham was slow in covering the bag and the midget short fielder had to run over to the base himself to make the touch on Southworth, running for Gowdy. Thereby hurried in his throw, he tossed a wild one over Cotter's head and Groh, who had advanced to third, sprinted unmolested over the plate.

As the inning ended, the rain came down. Probably another frame couldn't have been played—which was a lucky break for the Giants.

Dean, benefited by a long rest, had a good day of it and allotted only seven hits to the Cubs, keeping them far from the plate in every inning but the eighth. Bush went him three better, allowing only four hits, but was ill supported by his mates in the field.

Caught at the Plate.

Sergeant Gowdy apparently was overcome by all the honors bestowed upon him and didn't do a thing with the bat—which wasn't unusual for the Giants in the face of Bush's airtight pitching.

George Kelly's father was buried in San Francisco yesterday and the Giant first baseman played no baseball for the day. Bill Terry taking his place at first base.

Real Frank Merriwell stuff was that pulled by Heathcote in the eighth when he rushed out to deep right and made a running leaping catch of Dean's line drive with his glove thrown high over his head. It cut down a sure triple on what Dean might have scored later.

The Giants had to win, or lose another full game to the onrushing Pirates, who scored again over the Robins at Ebbets Field.

Behind Virgil Barnes's pitching the Giants will try to make it four out of five from the Cubs today. Vic Aldridge or Elmer Jacobs will be the Chicago hurler.

Terry was weak at first base on throws from the outfield, although there was some excuse for Memphis Bill's missing Wilson's bad hopping toss to double up Grantham at first in the ninth. The runner got to second base on the error but Hartnett and Friberg couldn't move him after.

YANKS TRIM TIGERS AS RUTH HITS 35TH

TIGHTEN HOLD ON LEAD

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—The third game of the series here went to the Yankees by a score of 9 to 2. The victory increased the champions' hold on first place by several valuable points. The afternoon also increased the cash in the strong box of Road Secretary Mark Roth of the New Yorkers. There was another fine crowd, probably over 20,000, and the belief grows that Detroit has become the best baseball town in the country.

In today's throng was Commissioner K. M. Landis, who sat in his characteristic attitude, with chin resting on his arms on the edge of his box rail. The Judge hardly batted an eyelash when Babe Ruth put on the act that has made him famous. The Judge seems to be getting sophisticated, and takes even home runs by the Bambino with a sort of far-away look in his eye, as if he wished he (the Judge) were out on some golf course.

The presence of the Commissioner in Detroit is thought to have some connection with the scheduled reinstatement tomorrow of Southpaw Dutch Leonard as a member of the Tiger pitching corps. Leonard, a couple of years ago, jumped to a California league outside the jurisdiction of organized baseball, and recently came to regret it and sought reentry into the American League. He has passed his period of probationary waiting and is said to be en route here from Fresno, Cal., and by the time the Yanks get here on their last Western trip Leonard may be in shape to take a fling at them.

Ruth Scores Three.

As stated above, Mr. Ruth staged his over-the-fence specialty. It came at Lil Stoner's expense in the fifth round, with Witt and Dugan on base, and ran the Babe's total for the fiscal year to date to thirty-five. Besides his homer, Ruth had a bunt and a double. He also struck out, but what of it? Ruth wasn't the only one to go to the bat. Dugan did and so did Meusel and Lu Blue of the Tigers. The Yankee hit total was 17, and the Tiger total 12.

The game was as good as won in the first frame. Southpaw Edwin Wells, the Bethany College boy who took a conspicuous fall out of the champions at the Stadium last month, started the affair, but it was a poor pitching selection by Cobb. Wells didn't have his usual stuff, and not all the mascoting by the Tigers' new red gamecock could save him. Wells managed to dispose of Witt, but then it happened. Dugan singled, Ruth bunted, Meusel singled and Pipp tripled, and that made three runs.

It was a nice lead to stake Joe Bush to, but he had suffered from indigestion in the morning, and he gave evidence from the night before that he was still ailing, and when he opened the fourth by letting Bassler single, Huggins had a hunch that the way to save the game was to take Bush out. This he did, inserting Hoyt. With the Yanks still leading 3 to 1, Hoyt proved master of the situation, and he did not look like the same chap who the day before had been knocked out of the box in the first inning by five fierce blows. Hoyt today only allowed three hits in the rest of the game and only one more run. This was due to Cobb's double in the ninth and his unmolested usurpation of third and his chasing home on an infield out.

Yanks Clinch Game.

The Yanks had a great time in the fifth, when they made the game secure beyond dispute. Scott started with a double, Hoyt sacrificed, Witt and Dugan singled, and Ruth hit his homer. Meusel followed with a triple, but it went to waste, as Pipp and Schang popped out.

The Yanks got another in the seventh on Ruth's double and Pipp's single. Their final run came in the eighth, when Scott singled and was forced by Hoyt, who was driven in by Witt's triple. Whitey was out at the plate, trying to stretch it to a homer.

In the ninth there was a meeting of those old friends, Bob Meusel and Southpaw Bert Cole. Cole had to go to the mound, as Pinch Hitter Haney had batted for Stoner in the eighth. It was the run-in Meusel and Cole had on Friday, June 13, when Bob accused Bert of deliberately beaning him, that caused the Navin Field riot. This time nothing happened except a single by Meusel. It was a better way than quarreling to settle spats.

ROBINS SUBDUED BY PIRATES, 8 TO 1

MARANVILLE IS THE STAR

Contributes Three Spectacular Plays —Ruether and Roberts Are Hit Freely.

Hard hitting, good pitching and perfect fielding were the materials out of which the Pirates made yesterday's 8 to 1 victory over the Robins at Ebbets Field. In the telling terms of the turf, the Pittsburgh team took the game in its stride, won as it pleased and was going away at the finish. The Robins were scarcely a respectable second.

Baseball in Brooklyn is not what it used to be anyhow. In the old days the fans took the home team's defeat to heart, but yesterday the Flatbush Male Quartet sang "Somebody Stole Our Game" while the Buccaneers were making away with the contest. But all the harmony was not in the stands. The quartet in the Pittsburgh infield gave a performance that was practically a baseball symphony. Led by Rabbit Maranville, who sang in his best grand opera manner as he went about his business of robbing the home boys of base hits and participating in lightning double plays, the Smoky City four showed the assembled burghers just how the infield should be played.

Maranville made three scintillating plays around second, Traynor went clear to the left field exit to capture a foul fly from Stock's bat and Wright and Grimm were only a step behind these two in the brilliance of their play. The fielding was so lustrous that it dimmed a fine pitching exhibition by Ray Kremer.

Robins Get Only Four Hits.

The big right-hander permitted only four hits, three of them in the first inning. In that stanza the Robins made their run on successive singles by Loftus, Fournier and Brown. From then on, until the eighth, they did not make a safe blow and they failed to get a runner as far as second in the remainder of the game. High singled in the eighth but died on first.

With such fielding and pitching the Pirates did not need much hitting, but they got plenty. They bumped both Dutch Reuther and his successor, Jim Roberts, freely and scored in nearly every inning.

In the second it was Traynor's double and Maranville's triple that counted the first one and in the fourth High's error, a single by Maranville and Grimm's sacrifice fly made the two. In the fifth they put on extra steam and Kremer's single, Carey's triple and another sacrifice fly made two more. It was the same in the sixth. Stock's error, Traynor's triple and sacrifice fly the irrepressible Rabbit accounting for another pair and in the eighth Wright's single, a pass to Traynor and Maranville's third hit, a double, brought the total to eight.

Pirates Take Third Straight.

The Pirates have now won three straight in Brooklyn and only Dazzy Vance, whose turn it will be today, stands between them and a clean sweep of the series. Vance has been going great guns of late, but even he must have trembled as he heard the Corsairs' resounding yesterday.

The game was a hurling duel between Rixey and Mitchell, but the two southpaws failed to last the full route and when the final put-out was recorded Mays and Hubbell were doing mound duty for their respective teams.

70 YACHTS ARE IN HARBOR

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 5.—With the arrival here at 6 o'clock tonight of the schooner Vagrant, flagship of Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt, the annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club was officially organized. Just before the bells on the big fleet of yachts anchored off the club station sounded 6 o'clock the Vagrant swept into the harbor under sail and went to anchor just at the designated hour, firing a gun as her anchor rattled down. All yachts in the fleet, which numbered about seventy vessels of different types, dipped colors in recognition of the flagship's arrival, which had been very well timed.

Not in many years has there been such a big fleet anchored in the harbor awaiting the arrival of a flagship. The schooners were especially numerous, probably twenty-five two-masters being scattered through the anchored squadron. The schooners included some famous racing vessels of the past, such as Robert E. Tod's Enchantress and the old Sea Fox, and also brilliant new boats, with towering Marconi masts, such as Charles L. Harding's Wildfire and Queen Mab, flagship of Commodore Nathaniel Ayer of the Eastern Yacht Club. Enchantress and Sea Fox will race no more, but Wildfire and Queen Mab will be prime favorites to win the Astor Cup for schooners tomorrow.

To Race for Astor Cups.

Astor Cups, one of which is for sloops and one for schooners, will be the opening feature of the big cruise and will be sailed for tomorrow on the historic course off Brenton's Reef, where so many races have been sailed in the past. The Nourmahal, Rear Commodore Vincent Astor's big power yacht, was among the fleet at anchor when the flagship arrived. Nourmahal will be the committee boat for tomorrow's races and the cruise, carrying Gherardi Davis, Chairman of the Race Committee and his assistants, Clinton Mackenzie and Oliver Iselin.

Tonight there were many dinners given aboard the yachts and at 9 o'clock the captains' meeting was held on board the flagship at which the flag officers and race committees met the captains of the racing yachts and talked over the racing runs of the next ten days. It was said that the racing fleet for the Astor cups would be the finest that has sailed for these prizes since before the war. The sloop division was well represented with five fifty-footers, eight forties, three Larchmont "O" boats and a dozen thirties. The schooners were a remarkable gathering, including, besides Wildfire, Queen Mab and Vagrant, Winthrop W. Aldrich's Flying Cloud, H. G. S. Noble's Princess, E. Walter Clarke's Irolita, Carl Tucker's Ohomkara, F. D. M. Strachan's Zarah, F. J. Flint's Wanderer IX. and Dr. Seth Milliken's Shawna.

Caroline Is a Favorite.

Vice Commodore George Nichols's Carolina, which is fancied by many to win the cup for sloops tomorrow, was anchored close to the yacht station, and the other fifties in the harbor were H. Wilmer Hanan's Spartan, winner of two runs on the interclub cruise; Clifford Mallory's Mystic, Iroquois II., owned by Paul Hammond, and Barbara, the property of L. V. Merriman of the Eastern Yacht Club.

The Astor cups are sailed over long courses and the racing yachtsmen tonight were rooting for a continuance of the fine southwest weather that made the interclub cruise one long to be remembered. One of the Astor cups' courses covers a distance of 38½ nautical miles and the other 37½ miles. Both are triangular and the one chosen by the Race Committee will depend on weather conditions. The warning signal for the start tomorrow will be made at 11:30 Daylight Saving Time and the starting and finishing lines will be between the old lightship and the committee boat.

Cruise Starts Tomorrow.

Following the Astor Cups the cruise proper will begin on Thursday with a run from Brenton Reef Light Vessel to the head of Buzzard's Bay and on Friday morning the racing fleet tows through the Cape Cod Canal. At the eastern end or the canal the schooners and sloops will be started on the long ocean run of 167 miles to Ivesboro, Me., for the cups offered by Commodore Vanderbilt. The squadron spends Sunday at Islesboro and on Monday proceeds on the port to port runs on the Maine Coast which takes the fleet to Bar Harbor, its final destination, on Wednesday. On the following day the King's Cup will be sailed for off Bar Harbor. It is said that some of the thirty footers will make the long ocean run to Islesboro.

The racing fleet today was augmented by the arrival in the harbor here of the squadron of the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs on the joint cruise, which began at Larchmont on Saturday and took the joint fleet to Morris Cove, New London and Block Island. The cruise was attended by fine weather, all four days being featured by brisk racing breezes. Commodore Ford of the Larchmont Yacht Club and Commodore Law of the Indian Harbor Club were congratulated here today at the conclusion of one of the most successful events of its kind in years.

Mystic Captures Race.

For today's race of the interclub fleet there was a short course of seventeen miles, from the buoy off West Harbor, Block Island, to Brenton's Reef Light Vessel, leaving the whistling buoy off Point Judith to port. The racing yachts again were favored with a strong southwest breeze, known in racing parlance as a "smoky sou'wester." It was a run with spinnakers, for the entire distance, and Clifford Mallory's Mystic won the race in the fifty-foot class, defeating H. Wilmer Hanan's Spartan by almost two minutes. Mystic outran the Hanan sloop easily in the rolling sea that was running.

The Larchmont O sloops, by agreement among the owners, sailed with trysails instead of their regular main sails, and Vice Commodore Johnson's Grey Dawn won the race, beating out E. H. Auker's Nimbus and J. F. Mahlstedt's Maisie by a good margin. There was a very close finish in the thirty-footer class, W. H. Hoffman's Minx and H. F. Whitney's Alera having it nip and tuck over the seventeen-mile course, with Minx the winner by two seconds at the finish.

In a special race today on the joint cruise women skippers steered the yachts. The boats were Clarkson Cowl's Moira, a Sound schooner, which was sailed by Mrs. Kenneth Whitney, wife of Commander Whitney, and Azor, a handicap division sloop, owned by former Commodore C. A. Marsland. Azor was sailed by Miss Virginia Waldorf, daughter of former Commodore Waldorf, of the New Rochelle Yacht Club. Azor finished over two minutes ahead of Moira, but the schooner won on corrected time.

AMITYVILLE, L. I., Aug. 5.—More than one hundred sail and power yachts are anchored off the Unqua-Corinthian Yacht Club here tonight. They have gathered for the ninth annual cruise and championship regattas of the Great South Bay Yacht Racing Association, which includes the yacht clubs on Great South Bay and the yacht squadron of the Westhampton Country Club and the Cedarhurst Yacht Club.

Visiting yachtsmen assembled this afternoon at the Unqua clubhouse. Tonight Commodore Louis Smyth of the Unqua Club, who is the President of the association, will officially welcome the Corinthians.

The fleet will leave here tomorrow morning on the first squadron run. The destination will be Babylon, where the first championship regatta will be sailed tomorrow afternoon. On Thursday the fleet will continue on to Bay Shore, where another regatta will be sailed. The third squadron run will be on Friday. It will take the fleet to Bellport Bay, where another race is scheduled to be sailed in the afternoon.

Bellport Bay is as far as the squadron will continue to the eastward. On Saturday the yachtsmen will move to the westward and will anchor off the Sayville Yacht Club, where the most important regatta of the week is to be sailed. Its importance is due to the fact that the association special prize cup will be raced for next Saturday. The fleet will disband on Saturday night.

TWO TEAMS ADVANCE IN N. J. TENNIS PLAY

Two teams advanced to the semi-finals of the Northern New Jersey doubles championship on the courts of the Westfield Tennis Club yesterday, while a third match was ended by darkness with the score nearly even. John Van Ryn and Kenneth Appel advanced by defeating A. D. Prentiss and Pierre Harang, while W. D. Cunningham and S. G. Kelley eliminated S. E. Palmer and F. D. Powers. Reginald Talmage and R. Lewis had a slight lead over L. W. Knox and C. Joliff in the third set of their match, after each had won one, but darkness fell and necessitated the postponement of the finish until tomorrow night.

Van Ryn and Appel had little trouble in defeating Prentiss and Harang, taking the first set at 6-2 and the second at 6-1. The youngsters' teamwork dominated the play. They advanced to the net together, covered court with perfect understanding and so manoeuvred as to leave the fewest possible openings for their opponents. At the net Van Ryn and Appel proved deadly with their smashes, and during a great part of the match Prentiss and Harang were forced to resort to lobs in an effort to drive the pair back into their court.

MAY CHANGE RACE COURSE.

Oarsmen Want National Regatta Rowed Upstream.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 5.—The Springfield Rowing Association, which is staging the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen here Friday and Saturday on the Connecticut River, tonight sent a resolution to the National Committee asking that it change the course originally selected from downstream to upstream. The resolution is the result of growing sentiment among Springfield oarsmen that the regatta should be rowed on the upstream course.

Oarsmen are beginning to arrive on the scene. W. E. Garratt Gilmore of the Bachelors' Barge Club of Philadelphia, runner-up to Jack Berresford of England in the Olympic singles scull championship, is one of the early arrivals among the crack oarsmen who will compete. Gilmore tried both courses today.

BROOKES ADVANCES AT SOUTHAMPTON

SEVEN OTHERS SURVIVE

Kinseys, Voshell, Whitbeck, Norton, Snodgrass and Fischer Also Reach Fourth Round.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Ten years ago Norman E. Brookes of Australia, then at the height of his power, met Maurice McLoughlin of California in one of the outstanding matches of Davis Cup history. Today, on the courts of the Meadow Club, the veteran Brookes, who showed at Wimbledon that he is still to be classed among the world's ablest players in spite of his forty-six years, defeated two players of considerable skill. Not only did he defeat them but, as befitting his seniority, he gave them instructions in the science of tennis to recompense them for the decisiveness of their defeats.

In the second round Brookes defeated Irving Weinstein of the University of California, one of the latest players to come to the fore on the Pacific Coast, at 6—2, 6—2, and in the afternoon he went back on the courts to continue the lesson for the benefit of Hugh G. M. Kelleher, one of the best in the metropolitan district. Kelleher, whose victory over Walter Westbrook, one of California's stars, was a feature of the morning play, got only two games from Brookes, losing at 6—1, 6—1.

Brookes played with little effort in both matches, so little that it looked as though he had hardly more than setups against him instead of players of proved ability. His ground strokes carried little pace and his weakness of the backhand did not lend the impression that here was a world star, but in the skill with which he directed the play and fashioned the game, confusing his opponents and forcing openings for winning strokes, one recognized the master tactician who wins with his brain and not with brawn. The Australian's service stood him in good stead, although he is not so spry as he once was he took to the net frequently behind it and scored on volleys across court.

Seeded Players Score.

All but one of the eight seeded players occupied the eight remaining brackets at the end of the second day of play. The second round was completed in the morning and the entire third round run off. S. Howard Voshell of Kew Gardens, L. I., provided the only upset, if upset it may be called, by vanquishing Richard E. Schlesinger of the Australian team at 2—6, 6—2, 6—4, thus avenging his defeat at the hands of the Antipodean in the grass-court championship.

The match between the two today furnished the tensest moments of the day's play. In the final set, when Voshell, dead tired and hardly able to lift his racquet, broke through Schlesinger's service in the ninth game and then won the tenth in smashing overhand shots. The Long Island player, who has been playing tournament tennis for fifteen years, deserves great credit for winning the match. He did not arrive here until this afternoon, and was forced to play two rounds with only a few minutes' interval between matches. Louis B. Dailey Jr. of East Orange, N. J., was his opponent in the second round.

Howard Kinsey of California, John F. Whitbeck of Bronxdale, N. Y.; B. I. C. Norton of St. Louis, Carl Fischer of Cynwyd, Pa., and Robert Kinsey and Harvey Snodgrass of California constitute the six other survivors in addition to Brookes and Voshell. Howard Kinsey met with stiff opposition from Lewis N. White of the University of Texas, whose playing was one of the surprises of the day. The youthful collegian hit the ball with almost murderous force off the ground, and his service was a delight to the large gallery that watched the match. His volleying, too, was highly commendable, and his whole game of high order. Not until Kinsey changed from a driving game to chopping and broke up the Texan's vigorous attack off the ground did White fall off in effectiveness.

Norton Hard Pressed.

Norton had no easy time of it in getting by Herbert Bowman of New York, metropolitan champion on clay. Bowman playing very heady tennis, was within two points of taking the first set in the tenth game and did not yield until two deuce sets had been played. The score was 8—6, 8—6. Fisher played about the best tennis he has shown this season and put out Gerald B. Emerson, former Columbia Captain at 6—2, 6—3. Robert Kinsey advanced at the expense of Edward Feidleman of New York in a match that was closer than is indicated by the scores of 6—1, 6—3. Snodgrass was as keen as a blade in defeating Fritz Mercur at 6—2, 6—1 and Whitebeck eliminated Elon H. Hooker of Greenwich at 6—3, 6—3.

Play in the doubles will begin tomorrow with an entry of twenty-eight teams that includes the Kinsey brothers, Brookes and Schlesinger, Snodgrass and Weshrock, Norton and Kelleher, White and Thalheimer and Jerry Lang and Emerson.

The summaries:

Second Round—Howard Kinsey defeated E. M. Edwards, 6—4, 6—3; Elon H. Hooker won from Clarence J. Griffin by default; S. Howard Voshell defeated Louis B. Dailey Jr., 7—5, 1—6, 11—9; Richard E. Schlesinger defeated George Stadel, 6—0, 6—1; Carl Fischer defeated Harris B. Fisher Jr., 8—6, 6—0, 6—3; Robert Kinsey defeated Fred C. Inman, 6—1, 6—1; Hugh G. M. Kelleher defeated Walter Westbrook, 7—5, 6—0, 8—6; Norman E. Brookes defeated Irving Weinstein, 6—2, 6—2.

Third Round—Howard Kinsey defeated Lewis N. White, 6—4, 7—5; John F. Whitebeck defeated Elon H. Hooker, 6—2, 6—3; B. I. C. Norton defeated Herbert L. Bowman, 8—6, 8—6; S. Howard Voshell defeated Richard E. Schlesinger, 2—6, 6—3, 8—4; Carl Fischer defeated Gerald B. Emerson, 6—4, 6—3; Robert Kinsey defeated Edward W. Feidleman, 6—1, 6—3; Harvey Snodgrass defeated Fritz Mercur, 6—3, 6—1; Norman E. Brookes defeated Hugh G. M. Kelleher, 6—1, 6—1.

WOMEN NET STARS ENTERED

Record Number Will Start in National Championship Monday.

Although entries will not close until tonight, a record-breaking field is assured for the women's national tennis championship tournament which will start on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, on Monday. Every national titleholder for the past sixteen years is among the list of fifty leading players in the United States who have sent in their entries.

Players from various sections of the country already are beginning to arrive in this city and the courts of the West Side Tennis Club are beginning to present a scene of extreme activity due to the practice in both singles and doubles, in which the championship entrants are participating. Miss Helen Wills, who has been located at Forest Hills since the first of the week, is practicing diligently, confining her game almost entirely to contests against the men players.

WASHINGTON PRINTERS WIN.

Beat Hamilton (Ontario) Team in Baseball Tourney, 2-0.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Washington, last year's champions; Detroit and Chicago today survived the second round in the International printers' baseball tournament. The Washington types defeated Hamilton, Ontario, 2 to 0; Chicago won from St. Louis, 12 to 7, and Detroit defeated St. Paul, 5 to 3, in the first round games. St. Louis defeated Cleveland, 10 to 2.

Weissmuller Beats Own Mark At 100 Meters Free Style

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Johnny Weissmuller of Chicago today bettered his own record of 0:58 3-5 for the 100-meter free-style swim, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam, Holland. Weissmuller made the distance in 0:58 1-5. This was Weissmuller's first appearance since he swam so sensationally in London, after being one of the biggest winners for America in the Olympic swimming events.

MRS. HITCHINS WINS IN STATE NET PLAY

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Playing in such intense heat that two players collapsed after their matches, Miss Marion Leighton of Chicago, holder of the Western and Illinois State titles, fought an uphill fight in the second round of the New York State woman's tennis championship on the courts of the Westchester Biltmore Club here today, but finally was forced to bow in defeat to the champion of Mexico, Mrs. C. V. Hitchins. The match was the feature of the day, and provided a thrill when, after losing the first set at 6—4 and trailing in the second at 5—1, apparently defeated in straight sets, Miss Leighton made a desperate effort and won four games in a row to deuce the set at 5—all. She went on to win the chapter at 9—7, but the effort took with it whatever reserve strength the Western woman might have, and she lost the third set and the match at 6—2.

Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk managed to defeat Miss Margaret Blake in a three-set match, but fainted in the clubhouse afterward, and Miss Carolyn Bannister collapsed on the courts after striving in vain to remain in the tournament against Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor. Mrs. Falk found that her Boston opponent was no easier barrier to get over, and was forced to give everything in the way of strokes at her command in order to gain her third-round bracket. She won the first chapter at 6—2 but dropped the second, after a hard battle, at 8—6. It was evident that Mrs. Falk had little stamina left, but she made a desperate stand in the last set, rushed through it as fast as she could, putting away the scoring strokes with finality, and came off the courts after winning at 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

Miss Mayme MacDonald, national clay court champion, advanced to the third round without much opposition, defeating Mrs. William H. Pritchard at 6—3, 6—2, while Miss Martha Bayard, who ranks ninth on the national list, eliminated the 18-year-old Boston sensation, Miss Anna H. Fuller, who defeated Mrs. L. C. Beaupre, Quebec titleholder, yesterday. Miss Blake today showed little of the ability she displayed against the Canadian woman, being erratic in her stroking and losing many of the points through her own errors. The scores were 6—2, 6—1, and Miss Bayard never was extended to show her best tennis.

Others to advance to the third round brackets were Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., who eliminated Mrs. Green at 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Samuel H. Waring of New York, who got by Miss Caroma Winn at 6—2, 7—6, and Miss Katherine Gardner of Boston, who advanced by defeating Mrs. Theodora Sohst, 6—2, 6—2.

Play started in the doubles with the first round being completed, the feature match coming when Miss Fuller and Miss Blake defeated Miss Isabella Mumford and Miss Anderson at 3—6, 8—7, 6—3. The match was hard fought throughout and brought forth some really brilliant tennis during the three hours it lasted. After losing the first set, Miss Fuller and Miss Blake staged a desperate comeback and took the second set after twice being near defeat. In the third they continued their good work and won with comparative ease, although Miss Mumford and Miss Anderson kept the ball in play for long rallies and made gets that appeared almost impossible.

Miss MacDonald paired with Mrs. Raymond and advanced in love sets, beating Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Bailey without extending themselves. Miss Bayard and Miss Gardner also gained the second round with little effort, defeating Miss Bannister and Miss Gertrude Dwyer.

The Summaries:

Singles—Second Round—Miss Mayme MacDonald defeated Mrs. William H. Pritchard, 6—3, 6—2; Miss Penelope Anderson defeated Mrs. Green, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk defeated Miss Margaret Blake, 6—2, 3—6, 6—1; Mrs. Samuel H. Waring defeated Miss Isabella Mumford, 6—2, 7—5; Miss Martha Bayard defeated Miss Anna H. Fuller, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Katherine Gardner defeated Mrs. Theodora Sohst, 6—1, 6—2; Miss C. V. Hitchins defeated Miss Marion Leighton, 6—4, 7—9, 6—2; Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor defeated Miss Carolyn Bannister, 7—4, 6—1.

Doubles—First Round—Mrs. Bronson Batchelor and Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor defeated Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Marion Leighton, 7—5, 6—2; Mrs. William H. Pritchard and Mrs. Green defeated Miss M. Hollister and Miss A. Hollister, 7—5, 6—3; Miss Martha Bayard and Miss Katherine Gardner defeated Miss Carolyn Bannister and Miss Gertrude Dwyer, 6—3, 6—1; Mrs. Caldwell and Miss Marguerite Landini defeated Miss Baeter and Miss Grace Graham, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1; Miss Anna H. Fuller and Miss Margaret Blake defeated Miss Isabella Mumford and Miss Penelope Anderson, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Brush and Miss Penelope Davies won from Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Mrs. Theodora Sohst by default; Miss Raymond and Miss Mayme MacDonald defeated Mrs. A. M. Duncan and Mrs. Bailey, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Browne defeated Mrs. Donald Moorhead and Miss Helen Kuhn, 6—1, 6—1.

AUSTRALIA TO MEET MEXICO TOMORROW

The members of the Australian Davis Cup team, which recently advanced through the first round of the American Zone play by defeating China, 5—0, on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club, will depart for Baltimore today, where they will meet Mexico in the second round tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. The party will include Gerald Patterson, Pat O'Hara Wood and Frederick Kalms. Norman Brookes, the famous Australian veteran, who last played in this country when he helped to win the Davis Cup in 1914, will not make the trip to Philadelphia, as he is playing in the Southampton invitation tournament, but he will be available for the final round in the American Zone if the Australians are successful this week. The matches will be played on the courts of the Baltimore Country Club.

While Australia is meeting Mexico at Baltimore, Japan will play the Canadian team at Montreal, and it appears likely that the final round will bring together the Japanese and Australian players a week later.

Prior to leaving for Baltimore, the Australians filed their entry for the men's national championship, which will be staged at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, the week of Aug. 25 to Sept. 1. The entry of the Australians probably will include the full five-man combination, consisting of Patterson, Brookes, O'Hara Wood, Kalms and Schlesinger.

The leading American players, particularly those who competed at Wimbledon and Paris, are strong in their praise of the French players. Those American stars who crossed rackets with the French on European courts earlier this season, make no secret of the fact that they expect the stiffest kind of competition from the Frenchmen, both in the national singles and national doubles championships.

FRENCH CUP TEAM GETS CLEAN SWEEP

PARIS, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—The French Davis Cup team, which yesterday won the deciding match in the European zone final from the Czechoslovakian team, today made a clean sweep of the encounter with the Czechoslovakians, Henri Cochet defeating Macenauer 6—4, 3—6, 7—5, 3—6, 6—2, and René Lacoste defeating Zemla 6—3, 6—2, 6—2. Cochet's comparatively poor showing was due to the fact that he was suffering from an injured wrist. The French team will meet the winner of the American zone final for the right to enter the challenge round against the United States for the cup.

On the whole the French team outclassed their opponents, only the doubles requiring hard work. These were won yesterday by Jacques Brugnon and Cochet, who defeated Zemla and Lozelur, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4.

The French team, which sails for the United States Saturday on the liner Paris, will include Lacoste, Borotra and Brugnon, but the addition of Cochet is uncertain.

Accompanying the French team on the Paris will be Alain J. Gerbault, French tennis star and yachtsman, who will go to New York to conclude preparations for a yachting tour around the world. He intends to sail from New York in October, following the buccaneers' trail to the Panama Canal and thence to the islands of the Pacific, proceeding to France by way of Australia and South Africa.

BERNSTEIN STARTS ACTION.

Seeks to Force Boxing Body to Recognize Genaro Contract.

Phil Bernstein, manager of Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, yesterday brought an action in the Supreme Court to require the State Athletic Commission and Chairman George E. Brower to recognize and file his contract with Genaro, which still has several years to run, according to the papers filed in the action. An order, returnable today, to show why the contract should not be filed according to the boxing law, was signed by Justice Edward J. McGoldrick. The early return was said to be due to the fact that Genaro has prospects of a world's flyweight title bout with Champion Pancho Villa, and that the negotiations for the match, and other contests, cannot proceed until the matter is settled.

The commission has declined to accept Bernstein's contract with Genaro because the document does not conform with the commission's regulations concerning the financial arrangements between a fighter and his manager. The contract provides for a fifty-fifty division of the money earned by Genaro, all expenses to be paid by Bernstein. The commission regulations provide that a contract between boxer and manager must provide for an arrangement whereby the boxer receives two-thirds of his ring earnings and the manager one-third.

FAVORITES SURVIVE IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Miss Burns and Miss Cummings Reach Second Round In Western Tourney.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Both the defending champion, Miriam Burns of Kansas City, and the national champion, Edith Cummings of Chicago, survived the first match round today in the women's Western golf championship at Onwentsia Club today.

Favorites won in nearly all the matches and only three contests were close. Virginia Pep of St. Louis had to go an extra hole to defeat Madge Miller of Grand Rapids, Virginia Wilson won from Mrs. Howard O'Brien on the eighteenth green when the latter missed a short putt, and Catherine Walsh of Grand Beach, Mich., had a margin of only two up in defeating Mrs. Fred Jackson of Seattle.

Two widely known players were eliminated duri gnthe day, Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhart of Dallas, Texas, twice holder of the title and once runner up in the national championship, losing to Dorothy Klotz of Chicago, 4 and 3; and Mrs. Perry Flake of Aurora, a former Western champion, falling before the attack of Mrs. Stuart Hanley of Detroit, 4 and 3.

In the upper bracket tomorrow the two surviving Missouri golfers, Miss Burns and Miss Pep play each other, while the Wisconsin champion, Bernice Wall, meets Virginia Wilson; Mrs. F. C. Letts plays Dorothy Klotz and Mrs. J. W. Taylor opposes Mrs. H. D. Sterrett of Hutchinson, Kan. In the lower half of the draw Miss Cumings will play Virginia Gittens of Green Bay, Wis. Another match in the low bracket is between Mrs. Dave Gaut of Memphis, Tenn., and Catherine Walsh, the former having played fine golf today.

LONG ISLAND OPEN IS LED BY GALLETT

RICE AND MAIBEN NEXT

Latter Has Morning Round of 68—40 Pros and 7 Amateurs Qualify for Final 36 Holes.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. ALBANS, L. I., Aug. 5.—Forty professionals and seven amateurs remain in the running for the third annual Long Island open championship at the end of the first thirty-six holes of play held over the St. Albans Golf Club course here today. Officials of the district association in charge of the tourney decided that only those who were within twelve strokes of the leader at ten end of the first two rounds would be eligible for the final thirty-six-hole test tomorrow and the dividing point was between 164 and 165.

The leader of the field, with the first half of the test over, is Francis Gallett of Laurelton, young Scottish professional, who first caught hold of public attention when he finished well up in last year's national open championship at Inwood. Gallett turned in two rounds of 75 and 70 today to lead the field of one hundred and thirteen players by a margin of a single stroke. He has been in America about six years, coming here from Carnoustie, Scotland, and previous to going to Laurelton was located at Port Washington as private instructor to the Guggenheims.

Close behind Gallett are Charles Rice, assistant professional at the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club at Glen Head, L. I., and the veteran Jimmy Maiden of Nassau. Rice started his second round with the same total as Gallett, but took one more stroke on his second trip. Maiden, after leading the field at the end of the morning round with a brilliant 68, three strokes under par and only three shots away from the course record held by Joe Sylvester of the home club, wilted under the strain in the afternoon and needed exactly ten strokes more than his morning's total. Three golf midgets hold the next three places, Jack Dowling of the Engineers, Jimmy West of Rockaway Hunting and George Heron of Meadow Brook. Dowling finished in a tie for second place in the morning when he turned in a score of 72, but a 75 was the best he could do in the second round, when he got away to a woeful start by taking a 7 at the first hole. It took him 39 to go out, but he played perfect figures for the incoming nine, sinking a long putt on the home green for his par 4 and a 36.

West Is Hard Pressed.

West had to do some heroic playing to keep himself upon the upper level. He was far down in the list at the end of the morning round, his total being 79. Starting out with a pair of 5s at the first and third holes in the second round, he left himself something to do for the next fifteen holes to keep within hailing distance of the leaders, but he emerged with an even 70. Heron had two even rounds of 74 and 76.

W. H. (Whiffy) Cox of Marine and Field holds the next place, and immediately back of him are Jake Kramer of Brookville, E. H. Driggs Jr. of Cherry Valley and St. Albans, runner-up in the 1924 metropolitan amateur, and Rudolph Kotash of the home club.

Bill Kline of the Garden City Country, winner of the title for the last two years, is far down in the procession, being tied with six others for fourteenth place as a result of two rounds of 76 and 79 for a total of 155. Inability to control his tee shots left him far too much to do on his seconds and, although he had no really bad holes during the day, he lost strokes here and there until he is at a place where only two sensational rounds tomorrow will give him any chance to make it three times in a row.

Gallett had only one bad hole in the morning, the 177-yard eleventh, where he got into a trap near the green and then took three putts, missing a two-footer for his 4. He had seven pars on the first nine holes, with three 5s in a row starting at the sixth. Only one birdie fell to his lot, that one coming at the 303-yard thirteenth hole, where he got down in one putt. After getting pars at the first two holes in the afternoon round he lost a stroke at the third, due to a slice into the woods bordering the fairway. From there on he went along in even 4s for five holes, one of them being a birdie, and got his 3 at the ninth for a 35. On three of the next six holes he had birdies, putting two of them together at the fourteenth and fifteenth.

Iron Shot Costly.

Up to this point the only weapon that had been troubling him was his driver, which proved to be an obstinate instrument in his hands today. But here, needing only par figures to equal Maiden's 68, he sliced an iron shot off into the rough, got well out on his next, chipped down to within four feet of the hole and missed the putt.

He was trapped off the tee going to the long seventeenth, but played his next two shots so well that he was lying within twelve feet of the hole in three. His putt for a birdie hung on the lip of the cup. He had a five-foot putt left for a birdie at the home hole, but missed it.

Maiden Gets Four Birdies.

Maiden, a veteran in years and in experience, although he does not go in for much tournament play any longer, had four birdies in the morning round when he got his 68 and his only hole over par figures was the sixteenth which cost him a 4.

There was nothing especially flukey nor ravaging about his play, for at only one or two holes did he get down putts of any length. He got away to a bad start in the afternoon, taking a 5 at the first hole and another 5 at the third. Two more 5s at the sixth and seventh brought his total up to 38, and then, after two more pars, he ran into serious trouble for the first time that at the elbow twelfth. His drive was close to the trees on the left, and instead of chipping out to the fairway and taking his chance of laying his next up to within possible holing distance, he elected to try for the green via a small opening through the trees.

He almost made it, but hit a tree, and his ball was in a bad lie, in trying to play out of which he topped the shot, ran it over the green and 6 resulted. He shanked his next shot into a trap, costing him another stroke, but then finished out well with the exception of the home hole, where his second was forty yards short of the green, and his chip left him as many feet away from the hole.

Dowling Loses on Drives.

Dowling missed at least half a dozen drives in the morning round and in almost every instance he assessed himself an extra stroke by so doing. His 72, therefore, for the first round might easily have been turned in for 68. On his fatal 7 at the first hole in the afternoon he hooked his second into a trap, played out clear over the green, took three more to get on, and then had to run down a ten-footer to save himself from an 8.

He went fine from there until the seventeenth, where he hooked into a trap again and took a 6. A twenty-five-foot putt at the ninth helped him out considerably, so that he was 39 to the turn. He had even pars for the remainder of the round, holing a twenty-footer on the home green for his 4.

West's round of 70 in the afternoon was rather remarkable considering the poor start that he had. Birdies at the fourth and seventh holes atoned for fives at the first and third and he was out in 35. He clipped a stroke off par coming in.

NICHOLAS IS WINNER IN ALBANY HANDICAP

Farrell Two-Year-Old Shows Heels to Saratoga Maje in Feature at Spa.

THUNDERCLAP HOME FIRST

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Frank J. Farrell's Nicholas which, in the first start of his racing career beat Swope, this afternoon won the Albany Handicap, a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds which featured the fourth day of the meeting here. Ridden by McAtee and carrying 117 pounds, Nicholas ran the distance in 1:15 over a slow track, beating ten other juveniles and earning $4,175 for his owner. The winner was the favorite closing at 8 to 5.

Despite the intense heat and high humidity which followed an early morning rainstorm, there was another large crowd on hand and the attendance figures for the meeting to date are well ahead of those of last year. The track was very heavy in the early morning, but the hot sun dried it out rapidly and while wet spots showed in places near the outer rail the going was no worse than slow. Ivan Parke failed to put over a winner in three mounts, although he was twice in the money.

Eleven paraded for the starred event of the day in which the public could see little but Nicholas. The colt had been practically left in the Flash Stakes on the opening day and that race was discarded. Nicholas broke very fast when the barrier rose on a poor start and ran into the lead in the first furlong. McAtee rated him along in front and he handled his weight well, never being in danger. His nearest opposition was W. S. Kilmer's Saratoga Maje which ran second throughout to finish two lengths back of the winner which gained an easy victory. The Rancocas Stable's Pedagogue was a poor third, four lengths back and a length in front of Kilmer's Sun Hather.

Thunderclap Scores.

The Pittsfield Handicap at a mile for three-year-olds and up was an easy victory for the Rancocas Stable's old black gelding Thunderclap, once he got running. He was an equal choice with J. W. McClelland's Banter and they finished one, two.

Banter had plenty of speed at the start to take him into a comfortable lead of two lengths on the back stretch. He was followed by J. E. Davis's Eagerness and F. A. Herold's Rejection. On the turn into the home stretch Banter saved a lot of ground, while the others swung wide, which probably saved Banter the place, as he was tiring at the close when Thunderclap came on. The Rancocas gelding was very slow to get under way, but he carried his top weight of 118 pounds well and gradually made up ground. Bande called on him on the turn and he responded with a rush, coming around the others to win by four and a half lengths over Banter, which was a length in front of the Log Cabin Stable Resolution. The mile was run in 1:39 4-5.

Scratches cut the field in the opening number to four. The event was the Horse Haven Purse for three-year-olds and upward, over the course of seven furlongs, and the Rancocas Stable's three-year-old Fair Play colt Honor was the overwhelming choice, backed down to 13 to 20 at post time with William Martin's Brice next in favor at 7 to 2.

Honor broke first but soon gave way to Brice, which made the pace to the far turn. There Laverne Fator called on Honor which took command around the turn. Jefferson Livingston's three-year-old McAuliffe, Kilmer entry, fell down the back stretch, then came up with a fine burst of speed to challenge the Rancocas colt. Honor was unable to concede four pounds to the Western colt after his early efforts and McAuliffe drew away easily to win by a length. Honor was two lengths in front of Brice, while W. R. Coe's three-year-old gelding Courser trailed fifteen lengths back.

Myrtle Belle Sets Pace.

A slow track held no terrors for the two-year-old fillies in the five furlong claiming event second on the card. There were only four scratches out of the overnight entry of seventeen and they made an exciting race of it. Samuel Louis's Myrtle Belle had the early speed of the lot and showed the way to the final strides. Callahan held Mrs. J. A. Coburn's Miss Babe off the pace and challenged in the stretch turn, but they fought it out head and head, Miss Babe getting up in the last jump to win by a head. The Glen Riddle Farm's Red Hawk, with Ivan Parke in the saddle, came from well back to beat Real Pat's Travers for third money. Miss Babe was not fancied and went to 20 to 1 at post time.

EPINARD BALKS AT WORK.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Epinard has developed a decided indisposition to work and a temperament of his own. This morning he refused to work for Leonard Madden, his exercise boy, on the main course. After going a bit he stopped and he would do nothing until he was across Union Avenue to the training course at Horse Haven. The footing there is much easier and more like the gallops in the forest of Le Tremblay, and Epinard consented to breeze a brisk three furlongs.

When the French four-year-old gets down to real business his training companion will be the racy-looking mare Idle Girl, by Phoenix out of Uprising. It was announced this afternoon by Trainer Eugene Leigh.

The American trainer was delighted to receive word today of the victory of one of his horses in a 6-furlong race at Le Tremblay, which was won with Francais, by Nimbus, out of La Francais, over a mile and a quarter with 137 pounds up. The fact that the winner is not much over 15 hands shows that ability to carry weight does not depend on size alone. Tom Welsh says that Basse Terre, not more than 15.1 hands, was as good a mare as he ever saw over a distance with weight up. Here at home Fitzenzi, about the same size and type, was mistress of all she surveyed when it came to a distance and carrying weight.

GENARO IS WINNER IN BROOKLYN BOUT

10,228 PAY TO SEE BATTLE

Titleholder Has Opponent Groggy Several Times, but Fails to Produce Finishing Punch.

Giving a masterly exhibition of boxing ability little Frankie Genaro, West Side Italian who holds the American flyweight championship, last night scored a victory over Johnny Curtin, rugged Jersey City bantamweight, in the feature twelve-round bout at the Nostrand A. C., Brooklyn. A crowd of 10,228 fans paid $21,172 to witness the bout, and the greater part of this throng enjoyed one of the most interesting demonstrations of skillful boxing provided by a participant in a local bout this season.

Referee Patsy Haley and Judges Charles Mathison and Charles Weed rendered their verdict in favor of Genaro when the final bell clanged and the decision was accepted with demonstrations of approval. Genaro clearly established his right to the honors, outboxing and outhitting and outgeneralling Curtin at every turn throughout the entire twelve rounds.

The fact that he is a notoriously weak hitter deprived Genaro of a knockout triumph. The speedy, clever little Italian hit Curtin with every known variety of blow and had the Jersey City veteran groggy several times during the bout, but Genaro lacks the finishing punch so desirable, and lacking the necessary drive, could not score a knockout.

Curtin Fights Flashy Battle.

Curtin gave an admirable exhibition under the circumstances which would have disheartened a less determined boxer. Surpassed in every essential of ring work, at times to such an extent as to appear like a raw novice, Curtin nevertheless plodded on in the hope that with one crushing blow he could upset the defeat which stared him in the face. Though he tried his hardest, however, he was unable to reach Genaro with an effective blow. Instead, Genaro continued outboxing and outslugging his rival in a closing fury of fighting which completely forestalled any plans Curtin might have entertained of launching a last round rally of his own.

Genaro, weighing 112½ pounds, conceded a weight advantage of five and one-half pounds to Curtin and a slight advantage in height, too, but these handicaps the gamey little Italian succeeded to overcome from the start with his boxing brilliance. He outboxed Curtin in long range action from the start and at close quarters tied Curtin's arms against assault, leaving the Jerseyite was at a complete loss what to do.

With blinding speed and unerring accuracy Genaro leaped in on the attack occasionally and had Curtin's head bobbing on the end of a left and left jab. Invariably Genaro followed these jabs with hard right crosses which landed cleanly and shook Curtin.

Through the first three rounds Curtin sought to direct his fire to the body, but his efforts were discounted by the clever work of Genaro. Thereafter Curtin discarded any systematized plan of battle he might have had and went to it hand and foot, head and wherever he could. But the Jersey City boxer found an elusive target confronting him and his efforts were comparatively weak. Each round was a repetition of its predecessor as Genaro proceeded to pile up points.

Curtin Shows Marks.

The bout held no knockdown. The nearest approach to one came in the fourth when Curtin, after missing a left lead, was off balance, and with a light shove as Genaro grazed the top of his head, took a trip somewhere to the floor. He was up in an instant before a count could be started over him.

As the battle progressed, however, Curtin began to show the effects of the steady jabbing, crossing, hooking and uppercutting he was subjected to. Genaro drew blood from his rival's right ear in the sixth round. In the seventh the flyweight champion had Curtin's nose bleeding. Then, in the ninth, Genaro started a trickle of crimson from a cut under Curtin's left eye with a hard right which stung.

Mike Ballerino, rugged Bayonne junior lightweight, repeated his victory of a few weeks ago when he gained the decision over Johnny Leonard, Allentown (Pa.) boxer, in the semi-final bout of twelve rounds. As in the previous meeting between these two hitting fighters, the battle was sensational. Every minute of each round was crowded with action as the ring rivals battled for supremacy to the frantic cheers of the partisan crowd.

The decision of Judges Mathison and Wood did not meet with the unanimous approval of the crowd, but the majority of the ringside critics agreed that Ballerino, by his consistent aggressive and consistent work on the attack had clearly established his right to the decision. Ballerino appeared to be entitled to eight of the twelve rounds, Leonard won the fourth, sixth and twelfth, and the fifth was even.

Marty Sullivan knocked out Danny Frisco in the second round of the scheduled four-round battle which opened the card. In the second minute before the six rounds, Jimmy Amato knocked out Frankie Suby in the third session. Suby, battered severely from the start, was seen trying through the ropes and on the press stand in the third session, and though he was assisted back into the ring, he was plainly in danger of a knockout and the bout was stopped by Referee Patsy Haley.

SHADE NOW SEEKS SIGNED AGREEMENT

OFFICIALS UPHOLD STAND

Board Approves Flynn's Attitude and Welterweight Title Match Again Faces Trouble.

Just when it appeared that everything was proceeding smoothly with plans for the world's welterweight championship bout between Mickey Walker, the titleholder, and Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, scheduled for the Yankee Stadium on Aug. 20, another difficulty was projected into the general scheme of things yesterday which threatens the success of the proposed bout. Leo P. Flynn, manager of Dave Shade, California welterweight, who has been recognized as the foremost challenger for Walker's championship, appeared before the State Athletic Commission at its regular meeting and protested against a continuance or plans for a Walker-Leonard bout until each boxer signs an agreement he presented to the commission, binding the winner of the stadium bout to meet Shade in a welterweight title struggle.

In detailing the developments of the meeting at its conclusion, Chairman George E. Brower of the commission announced that the board had received and approved the document. An effort will be made now to have Walker and Leonard each sign the agreement.

The agreement, Flynn announced, provides that the winner of the Walker-Leonard bout will consent to box Shade for the title within a period of forty days after the stadium battle. To bind this agreement Flynn demands that Walker and Leonard post $10,000 each with the commission to be forfeited to Shade in the event that the winner fails to keep the agreement.

The document provides further that the match be arranged for fifteen rounds to a decision in this State, in conformity with the commission's rules governing purses for main bouts, which provide a maximum of 50 per cent. of the receipts for the match, to be divided 37½ per cent. to the champion and 12½ per cent. to the challenger, and that the battle go to the promoter offering the best inducements.

Denies Consenting to Delay.

The announcement that Shade had consented to delay action on his challenge to Walker until after Walker had fought Leonard, was contradicted yesterday by Flynn. The veteran manager declared that Shade only consented to step aside to permit a Walker-Leonard bout with the understanding that Walker and Leonard would sign an agreement similar to the one Flynn presented to the commission yesterday. This agreement, Flynn said, never was signed by Walker, and that it was necessary for Shade to agree to defer action on his challenge to Walker before a Walker-Leonard match could be undertaken. Flynn asserted that he will ask the commission to command and to compel Walker and Leonard to agree to box Shade after the stadium bout, and to post the $10,000 cash to bind the agreement.

"As manager of Shade it is part of my duties to protect his interests," said Flynn. "I think I am acting to protect Shade's interests when I press my claims to a match with Walker. He was recognized by the commission as Walker's foremost challenger before a match between the men was ordered. Walker refused the match and was denied a license in this State with the understanding he would box Shade when he consented to box Shade to a decision for the title. When the Walker-Leonard match first was talked of a request was made that Shade withdraw his claims to a bout for the title until after Walker and Leonard had fought. He agreed on condition that both Walker and Leonard be bound by an ironclad agreement and a money forfeit. No agreement ever has been signed to date I know and Shade, therefore, has not consented to withdraw his legitimate claims to a welterweight championship match.

"I have requested the commission to compel Walker and Leonard to sign a binding agreement to insure Shade a match for the welterweight title. I want the boxers to do more than merely sign an agreement. There have been agreements signed in the past which were not worth the paper they were written on. When a boxer is compelled to deposit a substantial sum of money, however, he will think twice before ignoring a legitimate agreement. I think the commission can proceed on precedent in forcing Walker and Leonard to sign an agreement and post a $10,000 forfeit."

Cites Similar Cases.

"The commission compelled Eugene Criqui to post a forfeit and sign an agreement binding him to box Johnny Dundee after Criqui fought Johnny Kilbane and this agreement was signed in advance of Criqui's bout with Kilbane. Joe Lynch, as bantamweight champion, likewise was compelled to enter into an agreement to defend his title against Abe Goldstein. I mention these instances only to point out that I am merely following precedent in pressing Shade's claims. I think it is within the province of the commission either to compel Walker and Leonard to sign an agreement and post a forfeit, insuring Shade a bout against the winner, or to prevent a Walker-Leonard match until after Walker has disposed of Shade as his foremost challenger."

MACDONALD VS. LA FOLLETTE.

A whipped-up rage against "international bankers" is a sacred part of the La Follette ritual. His Cleveland platform, in the section that reads like a comminatory service, solemnly denounced "the mercenary system of "degraded foreign policy in the inter-"est of financial imperialists, oil mo-"nopolists and international bankers." It may be that Senator JOHNSON of California beat LA FOLLETTE to it in setting up this new political bogy—successor to how many of the kind, once terrifying but now universally ridiculed—yet the La Follette party now assumes exclusive proprietorship of it. If you can't think of any other wicked source of all our woes, just direct a few shrieks and curses toward the international bankers.

If this is the true faith of labor and progressivism, then RAMSAY MACDONALD is a heretic. While the London conference was trying to come to an agreement about the German loan, under the Dawes plan, there was a good deal of indignant yapping at English and American bankers. They were rushing in with their accustomed greed and ruthlessness to upset the whole arrangement. But in his statement in the House of Commons the Labor Prime Minister, the avowed Socialist, the leader of the movement in England which Senator LA FOLLETTE has hailed as twin with his own, took occasion to rebuke and disown all this ignorant clatter. His words were:

> I may take this opportunity of expressing my regret that it has been so often stated that the difficulties we encountered in this part of our work were created by the bankers and financiers. They confined themselves to advising as to the state of mind of the investing public and guided us against coming to agreements that would fail to produce the loan required. We are all much indebted to them for the information and help they gave us.

It is not necessary to elaborate the contrast, which speaks for itself, between the two men. The position taken by Prime Minister MACDONALD is about as severe a rebuke to Senator LA FOLLETTE as if it had been expressly designed for that purpose. And the best of it is that this is a rebuke which "Battling BOB" is forced to take lying down.

RIFTS IN THE LUTE.

The third party, that isn't a third party, is a singular mish-mash, as HUGH LATIMER and Mayor GAYNOR used to say, of incongruous elements artificially and temporarily held together. There is such a play of cross-purposes among them; there are such alternate strains of opportunism and fanaticism, of present and opposed ultimate object in it, that only the name "progressive," so ironical in view of Mr. LA FOLLETTE's attitude in 1912, unites this motley company. Republicans like Senator LADD and Senator FRAZIER of North Dakota, who cling to Mr. LA FOLLETTE and yet remain, as say they remain, in the Republican fold; a Democratic Senator like Mr. WHEELER, who takes the "progressive" nomination for Vice President yet works for the re-election of his Democratic colleague, Senator WALSH, and for the Montana Democratic ticket, add new windings to the political maze.

Many inconsistencies and complications must arise in many States out of this curious and essentially insincere situation. The Badger Boss has too many strings to his bow. In Mr. WHEELER's own State an incident, trivial enough in itself, is not without instruction to students of this rambling coalition. Mr. DEWEY DORMAN has been appointed the Western administrator of Mr. LA FOLLETTE's political fortunes. The Honorable "SAM" TREGARDEN, a name to resound for ages, swims into our ken as a probable candidate for United States Senator on the ticket of the "La Follette Progressive Party of "Montana." Now wrath is directed against the wretched, rash, intruding DORMAN, who invaded Montana, according to the Honorable "SAM" TREGARDEN, "at the urge of Senator "WHEELER to aid the candidacy of Sen-"ator T. J. WALSH." Such is the reward of Mr. WHEELER's ambidexterity. The Montana LA FOLLETTE Progressive Party takes a queer remedy for its grievances. To punish Mr. WHEELER for abetting a Democratic candidate for Senator, the young party is trying to substitute the name of the Democratic nominee for Vice President as Mr. LA FOLLETTE's associate. Representative NELSON, Mr. LA FOLLETTE's national campaign manager, disowns the too independent anti-Wheeler, anti-Dorman "progressives." The Montana row "is probably the work "of some local organization which has "nothing to do with the national La "Follette campaign." The Montana situation has been muddled "by peo-"ple who have nothing to do with our "work." Such muddling is inevitable in the circumstances. It isn't and won't be confined to Montana. Other "progressive" foundlings will be left on Mr. NELSON's doorstep.

In Nebraska the "progressive" State Central Committee has nominated "DAN" BUTLER, City Commissioner of Omaha, "a 100 per cent. La Follette man," for Governor, and has called upon all candidates whose names are on the "progressive" as well as the Republican or Democratic ticket "to publicly declare their ad-"vocacy of the election of LA FOL-"LETTE and WHEELER or withdraw "from the Progressive Party ticket." Senator WHEELER can support Democratic candidates in Montana. Only straight, untainted, 100 per cent. La-follettians need apply in Nebraska. The Progressive National Committee wants to steer clear of State tickets. Some brethren in some States are more enthusiastic and proscriptive. In such virtuous bosoms the thought of swapping local for Presidential votes cannot arise. The interlapping and interplay of State and national elections are usually hard to check. The heterogeneous composition of the La Follette party makes numerous in it the sources of controversy and division.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN BREAK.

Collapse of the Anglo-Russian negotiations means more than the failure of a commercial and financial parley. It renders nugatory the recognition of the Soviet Government by Great Britain. When MACDONALD welcomed the Russian delegates on April 14 he said: "If de jure rec-"ognition is to mean anything at all "beyond my seeing Mr. RAKOVSKY "here in formal conference, it must be "followed by efforts on both sides to "deal in a practical manner with the "actual facts of the situation. * * * "Our first duty will be the liquidation "of the past."

Mr. MACDONALD included "the con-"sideration of intergovernmental ob-"ligations, the claims of British hold-"ers of Russian bonds and of British "subjects who have had their prop-"erties taken away from them." But the conference apparently broke down on the revival of the original Communist philosophy on the subject of "nationalization"—another name for confiscation. RAKOVSKY, who went home by airplane to secure further concessions from his Government, seems to have found Moscow completely in the power of the Communist militants. While everybody was waiting to see what London would do about loans to Russia the smash-up came on a totally different issue.

It is conceivable that British bondholders might consent to forget the past in return for future guarantees. British bankers might lend money to Russia and British merchants might extend credit to her if the evidence was convincing that sanity and stability of policy had finally been attained at Moscow. But the evidence has been all the other way. The old crusading spirit once more dominates the Communist ruling powers. A new campaign against "wealth" is under way. Under such circumstances there was plainly no inducement for Great Britain to involve herself further in Russia. The basic element of security was lacking; not security in the sense of specific collateral for specific loans, but the more fundamental security involved in the Soviet state of mind. Now that Russia is in full cry for the war on "capitalism," a meeting of minds becomes impossible.

For MACDONALD the outcome is a serious disappointment. It casts doubt on his personal method of recognizing a Government first and finding out what it expects to do afterward, as against the older, Hughes method of waiting to see whom and what it is you recognize before recognizing. Had the London parley succeeded, it would have been followed by French recognition of the Soviets, and no doubt increased pressure would have been felt in this country. At present HERRIOT's wait-and-see with regard to Russia and HUGHES's demand for clean-cut evidence of Soviet good intentions are justified. For Moscow the set-back is grave. Today it is on the record that a Labor Prime Minister, with the best intentions in the world, cannot find reason at Moscow.

Why the Soviet Government should have chosen to be obdurate at such a critical moment is a mystery, unless the wave of Red fanaticism has mounted even higher than has been suspected. Russia is on the verge of another great famine. Her grain exports are bound to shrink to the vanishing point. Her gold standard will be endangered. Just when Moscow needs friends she breaks with her most powerful friend.

ISLANDS OF HOPE.

Sir ARTHUR SALTER, speaking at Williamstown of what the League of Nations has done in Austria and Hungary, referred to those countries, which but a little time ago were morasses of depreciation, impoverishment and disorganization, as "islands" of order, stability and assured peace. They are more than this. They are islands of hope, which give promise of what the Continent will be if the same agencies continue their redemptive service. We are much too pessimistic over here, says Sir ARTHUR, who has seen at first hand these recreative forces at work. It is as if he had been present at Creation and had seen "the dry land appear." This evolution is what the scientists would call contemporaneous.

No extravagant claims for the League are made by Sir ARTHUR. It has done specific things: the stabilising of the currency in Danzig, the economically successful administering of the Sarre Basin, the ending of disorder in Upper Silesia and restoring production there, the simplifying of formalities of international travel and transport, and, not least, the offering of models to experts in the preparation of their scheme for Germany. There are, however, other forces than the League at work—forces inherent in the peoples themselves. Poland has built a strong and prosperous economic life in the face of all disturbances; Czechoslovakia has reached apparent stability; Northern Europe is generally sound. The disorganization in the Ruhr has not caused such extensive harm as was feared. France is conscious of her strength to meet emergencies, and the position and prospects of Great Britain are at least better than they have been for years.

There are "islands of hope" other than those of purely economic nature. The "happy isles" of music and of the other arts rise above the misery and squalor of submerged life. For example, Vienna in her most despondent economic days had her opera: MOZART came from his pauper grave and STRAUSS conducted. The Wagner Festival has been resumed at Baireuth.

> They are not now the strength which in old days
> Moved earth and heaven, that which they are, they are.

A GREAT INDUSTRIAL QUESTION.

How serious is the problem of supplying the growing demand in this country for pulp wood, the basis of the manufacture of paper, is set forth in a comprehensive bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. Our consumption of paper for all purposes in 1922 was 8,000,000 tons—more than was used by all the other countries in the world. Newsprint paper is made of wood pulp. Of the total paper consumption in 1922 newsprint called for 2,450,000 tons, or 31 per cent. of the total requirements. Writing paper of the finer kinds was used to the amount of 350,000 tons. Wrapping paper passed the million-ton mark. Papers "classified under boards" were 27 per cent. of the total. To account for the remainder, blotting, hanging, fibre, carbon, tissue, crepe, wax, manila, imitation parchment, leatherette, carpet-felting, tar and building papers were only a few of the miscellaneous kinds in daily use. In 1919 wood supplied more than 90 per cent. of the raw material for the paper made in the United States. Rags, manila stock and straw entered into the manufacture of the other 10 per cent. Pulp woods to be turned into wood pulp by chemical and mechanical processes must be found in our own forests or be imported. In the past ten years the demand for paper has been rapidly increasing, and we are on the eve of an expansion which is indicated in this painstaking report:

> A reconstructed Europe will need more paper than it can purchase now. New paper markets are being created. The reawakening of the Near East and the Orient, the development of Latin America, the settlement of the parts of the world heretofore unoccupied, are all accompanied by increasing requirements for paper.

For thirty years we have imported pulp wood from Canada, "because our "supplies of material tributary to the "existing paper mills have been re-"duced, while our requirements for "paper, pulp and pulp wood have "been expanding." But the time is coming when Canada will absorb the pulp wood which is now being shipped to the United States. Already the Governor in Council has authority to restrict pulp-wood exports. There is no evading the conclusion that the United States must make haste to increase the output of pulp wood from its own forests. Locality is an important factor. The pulp and paper mills of the United States are to be found chiefly in the New England, Middle Atlantic and Lake States and in the vicinity of stands of spruce, fir and hemlock. Modern forestry methods must be used to increase the supply of these trees. Here is a fact that shows how near we are to a deficiency: "More than half of the forest mate-"rials for all the paper used in the "United States comes from outside "our boundaries." To put it into cords: We needed 9,148,000 in 1920 for paper, of which 4,498,000 were cut from our own forests.

By 1950 we shall be using 11,250,000 tons of paper. The United States is the world's greatest paper market. European production is comparatively small. Therefore it is an arresting fact that less than a third of the original timber stand of the Continental United States remains. The present hope of the papermakers is Washington, California, Oregon and Alaska, pending the application of forestry methods to the old areas in the Middle West and East. The Forest Service, which has made this report, says:

> The most urgent phase of the pulp and paper problems of the immediate future is to secure annually an additional 870,000 cords of spruce, hemlock and balsam, and 180,000 cords of aspen pulp wood from our own forests, to offset pulp-wood imports.

The bulk of these amounts must be got from the Rocky Mountain forests in Montana and Idaho as well as from the northern Pacific States and Alaska. The people must authorize the enlarging of publicly owned forest lands and the growth of pulp wood. Forest taxation must be reduced. There will have to be more experiment stations. Otherwise the time will not be distant when the demand for paper will be much greater than the supply. It has become a great industrial question.

ABLE CHAIRMEN NEEDED.

Governor SMITH's Commission for Mediation, which brought about the recent settlement in the cloak and suit branch of the women's garment trade, will soon choose an "impartial Chairman" for that industry. The settlement agreement provided that the representatives of the workers and the employers should make the selection, and only in case of failure to agree would the matter be referred to the commission itself. The settlement recently signed between the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union and the employers in the men's clothing trade also provides for impartial machinery in the New York market, and a Chairman for that industry has been secured in the person of Mr. BILLIKOPF. Upon the appointees will largely rest the promising program for industrial reform.

Especially significant is the rapprochement effected in the cloak and suit trade. Three months ago there was utter lack of coordination between the four groups in that over-complicated industry. It had reacted seriously upon the New York market as a whole. The rise during the past few years of the "jobbers"—distributers who employed submanufacturers and contractors to perform the actual manufacturing processes under conditions of cut-throat competition—had taken the bulk of production from the large manufacturing firms. This caused dissension horizontally as well as vertically; not only did the multiplicity of contractors and their scramble for orders intensify the labor problem by lowering the standards of the workers, but the rivalry between the jobbers and the large manufacturers caused friction among the employing interests themselves.

Into this chaos Governor SMITH's commission brought a blueprint of order and system. Acting with rare courage and political sagacity, it got together all four groups for the first time into a common agreement to effect certain definite and far-reaching reforms. Not the least of these is the establishment of impartial arbitration machinery to settle disputes that may arise. There could hardly be a more important or a more exacting task.

In the men's clothing industry the impartial Chairman will not be charged with duties quite so far-reaching. But there, too, an issue of unusual importance is at stake. The union and the employers have agreed to the establishment of "scales of "minimum wages based upon pro-"duction." This means an effort scientifically to correlate the wage of the workingman with his output, and goes to the heart of the most controversial issue between the union and the employers. The union has fought for week-work or flat-scale wages—so much per week regardless of output; the employers have contended for piecework wages—so much per unit of actual production. There has been, to an outsider, an astonishing amount of emotion bound up in the advocacy of each of these views, and there is a widespread resentment among employers that the union should have been the more successful in imposing its view upon the industry. The possibility of effecting a cure of this industrial sore will doubtless depend largely upon the wisdom, tact and personal force of the man who fills the chairmanship. The impartial Chairman in modern industry must be judge, statesman, administrator and business man combined. He must even be human—and that is perhaps the most exacting qualification of them all. A certain homely common sense about people and how to get along with them is just as necessary for such a man as knowledge of business technique, executive capacity, long-range vision and an even-handed temper.

THE CITY'S PIER SPECULATION.

Mayor HYLAN is to be congratulated upon the arrangement with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad whereby his Staten Island piers are to be made of some use. They will not earn the 7½ per cent. on $30,000,000 which was expected, and perhaps not even a low interest on their cost. Only time can show what they can earn at wharfage rates. It would be borrowing trouble to suggest that the cut rates on this supply of pier space may reduce the demand for the city's remaining stock of it. It is more agreeable to hope that the demand for terminal facilities may be great enough to justify raising the earnings of the Staten Island piers to totals now unsuspected.

Hitherto it has seemed that the piers were a misfit. Delivery to Staten Island is no more delivery to the ultimate consumer than is delivery to Jersey City terminals. Piers on Staten Island will be of no use to the Mayor's Wallabout Market. The Baltimore & Ohio is an excellent railway, but alone it is not equal to the task now performed by a dozen railways. It is true that the plan is for the Baltimore & Ohio to give its competitors access to the terminals which the city supplies, but will they appreciate the privilege? Each of the railways has its own terminals. With one accord the railways refused to use the city's Staten Island piers and preferred the plans of the Port Authority for a unified terminal with a pick-up and delivery service at store doors.

There can be little use made of the Staten Island piers without service either through a tunnel or by lighters. Even if the city supplies the tunnel, or the railway supplies the lighter service, there will be an increase of cost and inferior service instead of a division of expense and the betterment of service by unifying the whole port system. The new departure will doubtless reduce the loss from the city's pier speculation. But as a solution of the port problem it leaves almost everything to be desired. The piers are good piers. The defect in their plan is that it ignored established trade routine, which it is harder to revolutionize than to upset a Government. The Mayor finally had to cooperate with a single railway. He would get much further on if he cooperated with the dozen railways which serve both the local and national needs of the entire port.

GERMAN COOPERATION.

Thanks to the moderation and cordiality of the German Chancellor the second act of the London conference opened auspiciously. The reply of Chancellor MARX to Mr. MACDONALD was sufficiently full to show that Germany is as earnestly desirous of a settlement as are the Allies. He declared that "the entire German people, as "soon as the essential conditions for "their free economic activity have "been [illegible] will devote their en-"tire strength to carrying out the ob-"ligations involved in the Dawes re-"port." Despite the obvious reservation about the restortaion of economic unity, the absence of truculence and quibbling is encouraging. What constitutes the complete restoration of free economic unity to the German people is a question which is certain to arouse discussion. It involves the withdrawal of Franco-Belgian economic control in the Ruhr and Rhineland and, from the German point of view, also includes military evacuation. These are complicated matters, on which sharp difference of opinion may be expected. But none of them threatens to prove insoluble.

In requesting the Germans to be ready to discuss the questions at issue today, the British Prime Minister wisely cautioned them that the only business before the delegates is the Dawes report. It should prove possible to keep out issues which might otherwise provoke discord. It is to be hoped that the Germans will be able to resist the temptation to air Germany's views on other subjects, and to avoid some capital blunder such as they seem fated to commit in emergencies. They will naturally raise numerous objections to the proposed agreements. Some of these may be expected to encourage the pessimists here and abroad. But unless something unforeseen arises there is no reason to believe that the conference may not conclude its sessions early next week. It is now more than probable that the machinery for the Dawes plan will be ready for operation on Oct. 15, or at the latest on Nov. 1.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Plucky MacLaren's Failure.

After flying 11,000 miles Major MACLAREN had to give up his flight around the world when the wings, floats and tail of his plane were smashed in a forced landing at Nikolski, Komandorski Islands, Siberia. The fog-bound Pacific was his undoing, as it came near being disastrous to the American expedition. MACLAREN is on his way to Vancouver, where, as a philosophical British soldier, he will cheerfully tell his story and vow to try again. This was the second, really the third, expedition of the British to fail, and for the same reasons—lack of Government backing and funds, without which no undertaking of the kind can be well organized and properly equipped. Adventurers have to make the best arrangements they can for the patronage of aircraft and supply manufacturers, and "go it alone." Even the Air Ministry did not officially recognise Major MACLAREN's attempt. He had its good wishes, and was speeded on his way with the usual formula, "the best of luck." His luck was rather bad from the first.

A crash in the harbor at Akyab, Burma, was the worst of his mishaps, for he had no machine to go on with. The Major was able to continue his flight only by the friendly intervention of the American destroyer John Paul Jones, which brought him a plane in reserve from Hakodate. It was an act of sportsmanship which had a touch of Commodore TATNALL's "Blood is thicker than water." The Major made handsome acknowledgments. So the adventure ended not without a pleasant, if distressful, memory of more help given a British aviator in trouble by the Americans, the Japanese and the Canadians than by his own countrymen.

The Lion and the Mouse.

Men going about the proud business of conquering the air will from time to time get their taste of defeat. But there is likely to be a trawler about. Lieutenant WADE's crippled airplane was last reported on its way to the Faroe Islands in tow of a trawler. MACLAREN salvages his hull and engine on board a Canadian trawler which ultimately will bring him to Vancouver.

The fishing boat has this dramatic habit of turning up in a crisis for the double purpose of lending a hand and encouraging a due sense of humility in the conquerors of nature. KIPLING, who had brought into juxtaposition the leaking, straining, overburdened tramp and the proud liner swimming past "like a damned hotel," obviously could not resist the contrast between the trawler, to which fell the dirty work of mine-sweeping the North Sea, and the mighty battleship, for which the sea lanes had to be made clear before they dared venture out of harbor.

Great Britain alone has nearly twenty-four thousand fishing boats regularly on the register, of which one-third are steam, with nearly another twenty thousand boats on part time, employing a fishing population of ninety thousand men and boys. Little Norway keeps busy just as many men in the cod and herring and mackerel fisheries. These boats are the permanent traversers of the seas, available for rescue work in peace as they were in the war, when victims of German submarines were a regular part of the trawler harvest. The race of men who were the pioneers in the discovery of America has far from disappeared. The common vernacular in England during the war spoke of them as "mind-sweepers," and in one very real sense they are. When airplanes crash and gas and electricity and wireless are brought to a standstill, the humble trawler appears to sweep the human mind clear of any excessive boastfulness about its many inventions.

Education in Hygiene.

In commenting on the fact that practice in public health is years behind knowledge, Dr. FREDERICK F. RUSSELL, Director General of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, places the blame on the lack of administrative machinery for putting scientific knowledge to work reasonably, effectively and cheaply. Sound as is this observation, the fact remains that the public at large is still woefully ignorant of the principles of hygiene and public health. This is even more true of personal than of communal hygiene; but even in the latter case the length of time which it has taken to impress city and town governments with the necessity for even the simplest sanitary precautions shows that a lack of understanding is at the bottom of much of the trouble. The scientific knowledge exists, but it is the property of a few.

The fight to install suitable water and drainage systems, for example, has been carried on largely during the last half century. It is but recently that the relation between epidemics and a bad sanitary system was generally recognized. In many small communities this is not yet appreciated, and innumerable are the households where even the commonest laws of hygiene are daily violated.

One of the great works which the Rockefeller Foundation has undertaken is the education of the public in these matters. Its efforts have not been confined to this country alone, nor has it been the only agency doing this invaluable service. But there is room for more of this work than has yet been projected. The teaching of public health must be carried into the homes, in order not only to help prevent disease but to improve body and spirit. The field is limitless.

He Died Too Soon.

The lecture on "imaginary disease" delivered on Monday in Paris by a professor of medicine must have made the shade of MOLIERE in the Elysian Fields uneasy. He would have liked to return to the glimpses of the moon, not only to get the modern view of the "Malade Imaginaire," but to amass new material for comic treatment of doctors who conceal their ignorance under an array of learned terms.

The professor referred to, Dr. HENRI JEAN, maintained, seriously enough, that an illness which existed only in the imagination might, after all, be real and require medical attention. It is not always possible to distinguish between disordered nerves and mistaken mental impression. The sick man may not have the disease that he thinks he has, but there is something wrong with him even if he does not know what it is. Dr. JEAN suggested the theory of two different nervous systems in the human body, amounting to two different electric currents pervading man, fearfully and wonderfully made as he is. If the two currents are not of the same tension, nervous explosions and derangements are sure to follow.

Without expressing an opinion on this hypothesis, it may be fancied what great play MOLIERE would have made with it, and with other up-to-date medical notions. He would have had a pedantic doctor inquiring of the patient whether his electric current was direct or alternating. And we may be sure that he would not have neglected to make the solemn medical attendant demand evidence to show whether the sick man's vitamins were not "hypothetical." Dr. JEAN said that the cure for this new disease, real though imaginary, had not yet been found. The shortest way might be to call up MOLIERE in the spirit world.

"Crackpot" an Authentic Word.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some of your readers, and even the members of your staff, seem to be surprised at the use of the supposedly unconventional expression "crackpot" in the political amenities that the present season has inspired.

It had, however, found its way into respectable literature long before the current debates as to its real meaning. For example, one may read in Frank Swinnerton's "Young Felix," on Page 301: "Why, you old idiot!" stormed Felix. "You don't know what an artist is. You old crackpot!" J. A. S.

BULGARIA AND BOLSHEVISM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A dispatch from Paris, which appeared in the issue of THE TIMES of Aug. 2, in speaking of the Bolshevist agitation in the Balkans says that it is "financed by Bulgaria and equipped by Soviet Russia."

If the word "Bulgaria" is not a misprint or an error in the transmission of the dispatch for "Russia," the assertion is wholly gratuitous and false. To say that the Bolshevist agitation in the Balkans or in Bulgaria is financed by Bulgaria, or, what amounts to the same thing, by the Bulgarian Government, is to say the Government now in power in Bulgaria wishes to commit suicide. The idea, of course, is absurd.

The present Government of Bulgaria has no sympathy with Bolshevism or Communism. On the contrary, it has declared the Bulgarian Communists to be an illegal party and has spared no efforts to counteract and suppress their agitation. The above dispatch certainly exaggerates or makes a false statement in speaking of "Communistic revolts which have broken out in the various country districts of Bulgaria, * * * which in the past week have been bloodily repressed." Neither my information nor any press dispatches, to my knowledge, confirm this statement.

I think I can give an explanation of the alarming reports which have recently appeared in the press of Bolshevist activities in Bulgaria and to which perhaps an undue importance has been attached. In its issue of July 8 The London Times published a communication from its Sofia correspondent in which he asserted that the Bolsheviki, through the Bulgarian Communists, are preparing a revolution in the Balkans, which is to begin in Bulgaria. Large sums of money intended for these preparations, and especially for corrupting the army and the police, have been sent from Moscow from time to time.

Besides money, the Bolsheviki have managed to smuggle great quantities of arms and munitions by way of Vienna and Constantinople. The arms from Vienna, the correspondent asserted, enter Bulgaria by way of the Danube and sometimes through Yugoslavia, while the arms from Constantinople are landed on desert places along the Black Sea coast. Small bands of so-called brigands, but really disguised Communists, have been organized for the purpose of terrorizing the people and of creating frontier incidents that might bring about a conflict between Bulgaria and the neighboring States—Serbia, Greece and Rumania.

The correspondent rightly observes that should the Bolshevist plan to overthrow the present Government of Bulgaria prove successful, the Bolshevist movement might easily extend to all the Balkan countries.

The London Times evidently attached, as well it might, great importance to these reports of its Sofia correspondent. In its issue of July 9 it drew, in a long editorial, the serious attention of the powers to this Bolshevist agitation as a menace not only to the Balkan States but also to all Europe. While recognizing that intervention in Balkan affairs is not easy or desirable, it can be avoided, the editorial added that the moral influence of the principal Western powers and of the United States was very considerable.

Almost at the same time that this correspondence and editorial appeared in The London Times the Bulgarian authorities discovered the existence of a Communistic organization in a mountain village. This organization, composed wholly of young men imbued with Bolshevist ideas, had ramifications in several places of the country. In arresting the conspirators the police seized their correspondence and secret code, a number of photographs, arms, bombs and munitions. A searching inquiry has been ordered and is being conducted by the authorities, which will probably lead to some startling revelations. At any rate, the timely discovery of this organization has nipped in the bud a conspiracy that might have had serious effects, and proves the vigilance of the Bulgarian Government.

I am inclined to believe that the articles in The London Times, the veracity of which cannot be questioned, and the discovery of the Communistic organization have been the cause of the alarming reports that Bulgaria was on the eve of a revolution and that political and social conditions in it were unstable.

We may rest assured that the present Cabinet of Bulgaria will do all it can to combat the intrigues of the Bolsheviki and, by saving the country from future peril, safeguard the peace of the Balkans and perhaps of Europe.

In conclusion, I am glad to see from an Associated Press cable from Sofia, published in your Sunday issue, that at the request of the Bulgarian Government a mixed commission of inquiry is going to Greek Macedonia to investigate allegations that Greek officers bound and shot nineteen Bulgarian subjects. Such inquiries are the only reasonable way to probe the authenticity of various insinuations, charges and counter-charges, and bring their truthfulness or falsehood to light.

ESPRIT.

But why should I ask gentleness of life
When the enduring hills wait with set heads
Through rocking days?
When their peace pulls the mantle of long strife
From my bent back, with quiet hands,
And shows me ways
Which shiver in the wind, but sing a song
Under their breath?
When happy rocks, on motionless bruised knees,
Crouch in the sun—as unconcerned as life
That there is death?
What can it be to them that hot tears burn
On my cold face? They see but little drops
To make a sea
Of sacrifice, defeated pain, which turn
To beauty. . . . How their long and wond'ring eyes
Look out at me;
For sorrow is to them a mere decay
Of tarnished things—unhappiness is growth—
And strife is waste.
There is a speechless glory in the way
The young corn bends before the wounding wind;
It bears the taste
Of strong and stinging rain that spears upon
Its tongues like sweeping javelins of night.
And I—whose soul
Was fashioned on a subtler plan, and won
Favor among the gods—I am afraid

CREDIT FOR THE MONITOR.

Part Is Claimed for George Reynolds, Engine Builder.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES yesterday morning had an interesting article on the anniversary commemoration of Captain John Ericsson. Now, there is no doubt that Ericsson deserves all the credit for having built the Monitor, but the credit for having produced the Monitor at the psychological moment in Hampton Roads is not to be credited to the Captain, but rather to my old friend and partner, George Reynolds of Connecticut, the greatest mechanical engineer America ever produced, the head of the Delemater Iron Works during the period of its great prosperity fifty years ago; a man whose inventions recorded a distinct step forward in engineering.

In the '50s George Reynolds invented an engine that was a great improvement over anything that then existed. One of these engines was placed in a famous Sound steamer, which thereupon ran away from its nearest rival and for a long time caused the boat in which it was placed to remain the champion speedster of our great inland waterway.

While Ericsson was rushing work on the Monitor he was also trying to complete an engine of his own device. The Government was pushing him to the extent of the speed limit in getting the Monitor under steam. He finished the boat in time, but not the engine. His friend Reynolds had one of his own engines at the Delemater works and finally induced Ericsson to permit the Monitor to be equipped with it. This was done, and the Monitor proceeded on her way to victory.

If Ericsson had held out, as he stubbornly did for a long time, the Monitor would not have reached Hampton Roads in time to interrupt the leisurely destructiveness of the Merrimac; nor, perhaps, to have prevented her from bombarding Northern coast cities. Ericsson deserves the greater credit—he built the Monitor; but George Reynolds should be remembered at the same time, for it was an engine of his invention that he himself put into the little insides of the Monitor which gave her the life impulse that enabled her to be on the job at a critical time in the history of the United States.

George Reynolds died about ten years ago, full of years and honors. He lived for many decades on a beautiful farm not very far from Bridgeport. I think that one of his sons is still living, and on the old place. He was a very remarkable man, a pioneer engineer of very great distinction, who conferred honor upon the land of his birth. While we are celebrating the anniversary of our great Swedish-American engineer, we should not forget his friend, George Reynolds.

Appreciation of John Quinn.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a close friend for many years of John Quinn, it does not seem to me either fair or proper to let him pass into that next and unknown world to which he has been summoned without a few words of good-bye in addition to the very generous estimates of his character and achievements given to the world through the newspapers.

He had a right to a longer stay on earth, where his work and talents fitted him for a later and supplementary career in capacities in which there was much need for his talents and his work.

Few men that I have come to know intimately, through a fairly long life, have had so many gifts or more high qualities of character than those which centred themselves in the human entity known here as John Quinn.

In the first place, he had an energy and independence seldom found working together in the same body governed by a single mind. When such a man comes into the world, finds himself in a given environment, without any artificial aid other than his own ability, industry and tact, there is no touch of a tendency to patronize him when, by the studious use of such qualities, he brings himself from what is said to be obscurity to a measure of success too often thought to be the reward of extraneous agencies, when, in truth, the intervention of these elements into such a life would be wholly foreign to its needs and to its possibilities.

We speak freely of the opportunity which liberty, educational facilities and influential connections bring to society, and then we proceed with deliberation to forget that these gifts and qualities are wholly useless except when they come into the possession of those fitted to use them for the advantage of society and themselves.

This was what John Quinn, in common with so many of his fellow-travelers through this world, proceeded to do. Happily, everything except that magnificent brain of his had to be conquered by his own efforts. If he wanted to become a real lawyer, not a mere legal machine, he could only achieve this position by hard work, persistence, patience and a tact that never lost its force. If he wanted to have friends, he could do so by following the injunction that "he who would have friends must be friendly," because whatever people may say or think, sympathetic human association only comes to him who does something both to win and deserve it.

He did his part in the routine work that fell to his lot, but this did not content him. He stood for great principles; he looked honestly after the interests of his clients. His was attached to the larger ideas that lay back of his country and his time, but he never forgot that the assertion of these, their energetic and intelligent pursuit, demanded more than a routine attachment.

So he early saw that a knowledge of the achievements and possibilities of religion and science, matters requiring vision, foresight and watchfulness, bore the very closest relation, even to the material needs of men, and so, without any partisanship or bigotry, he did what he could to promote them.

Gifted with artistic tastes of a high order, he was not satisfied to let them lie dormant, but was one of the most industrious and faithful of those who recognized here a painter, there a sculptor, or now a struggling author in just the way that each needed it and at the time it would be the most welcome. He was not looking for applause for himself, but if he believed in a man or in a cause, he did not hesitate to say so in any way given to him, so long as it would promote the good objects he had in mind.

It would lie outside the scope of the few words that I can ask to speak of the Quinn charm to tell of his unusual social qualities, to emphasize the sense of loss which his friends feel when they realize that just as they were anticipating for the future the indefinite continuance of that post which had rendered him so dear to them, and that, instead, he had been called away from them just when his usefulness was at its highest. Cruel as such a fate is, it seems to be one of the world's decrees, but it will be many a day before John Quinn will be forgotten or his memory slighted by those privileged to know and love him.

Bigotry Brewers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are quite a few brewers out here at Somerville, N. J. The town has no local brewery and the brew is not at all the kind that made Milwaukee famous.

Bigotry brewers, from parts unknown, infest of late day after day this peaceful town and with their corrupt minds contaminate the youth of this community.

NEW OPENINGS SHOW GRACEFUL FASHIONS

VELVET WILL BE POPULAR

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Lenief and Philippe & Gaston, among the latest houses to open shows of Winter creations, have confirmed the impression given by other openings that this coming season's fashions are going to be graceful and attractive and with good new features.

Lenief's frocks are short and narrow with the same straightline effect that has been so popular for some time. Their special fature, as always with this house, is wonderful color combinations. Plentiful use is made of Chinese patterns, especially on slim tunics. Frequently, however, Lenief makes quite a distinctive feature of a combination of colors in the same gown. There are some with deep yokes in a contrasting color to the dress, others are swathed around from the knees to above the waistline with some wonderful startling shade in vivid contrast with the material of the frock itself.

Sleeves are of great importance in Lenief's coats and afternoon gowns. They sometimes are very wide. Sometimes they don't exist at all, in the sense that the sleeve doesn't cover the arm but only the shoulder, from which it falls in long graceful folds almost the full length of the dress.

Lenief's coats are straight and always buttoned at the side, a curious individual note which is extended even to evening wraps.

A number of velvet gowns, wraps and coats shown prove how popular this material is going to be. Even for evening gowns, white velvet embroidered with gold is used, though there also is a plentiful display of laces.

At Philippe & Gaston's opening there were noticeable some Directoire ideas, such as long revers in new gowns. The line is still straight, but there are revers and here and there a band of gold embroidery indicates a tendency toward a short waistline, though dresses are still straight. Most of the straight gowns are designed to show four panels outlined with embroidery. Some have a single long rever opening on lingerie or a silk front. Sleeves of this house are widened at the elbow and gathered in a narrowe cuff.

Another attractive new feature is a scarf, narrow in the middle and widening in a circular way at both ends, so that when crossed twice around the neck its ends cover the entire width of the cape. Often the scarf is edged with fur. Dinner and evening frocks are all slightly draped on one side, a tunic effect being greatly used.

As in other houses, greater freedom is being given to skirts, by the use of godets.

A great deal of beautiful embroidery is used on one dress, the soft, thin material being covered with large golden beads. Fur trimmings of fanciful leopard and panther are being used on collars and in narrow strips. Lizard skin bands on sports suits have an attractive effect. Some very beautiful brocades, reminiscent of the older fashion, are used, but in a style which is altogether modern and attractive.

Molyneux is an exception to the general rule in that he keeps the straight silhouette, his dresses being short without a belt and even without godets. As always, this house goes in for wonderful effects of bright coloring. All afternoon gowns are of two shades with straight sleeves, rather wide and without cuffs. There are fringes everywhere—a woolen fringe on the edge of a duvetyn morning coat and suit, a chenille fringe on velvet or satin, beaded heart fringes on chiffon gowns.

The newest feature is given by the use of small tulle bands tipped with black beads and used as a fringe on a satin sports and velvet coat. Magnificent embroideries are used on skirts. On coats the feature is a very high fur cuff from the wrist to the elbow.

Drecoll also does not employ the now almost universal godet. His belt waistline is very low and dresses are much longer than those of Molyneux and Patou. Many pleatings, however, are used and pointed panels on the side, sometimes a square piece of material forming a drapery on one side of the gown from the shoulder to the hem.

Many black satin lace and velvet dresses are shown and black velvet coats trimmed with red fox. Sleeves are very large and bell-shaped on coats and widening also on dresses. Not so much embroidery is used as in other collections, what is used being of the original material design. For instance, on black velvet, golden leather is worked in a square spangled effect. Red fox fur is used on an ivory white evening gown, and on some coats there are bands of black, gray or red fox or of gazelle skin or natural monkey. Cock feathers are used both by Drecoll and Molyneux as fringe.

SUES FORDS FOR $500,000.

Ayers, Detroit Toolmaker, Claims Credit for Dodge Deal.

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—Warren W. Ayers, a toolmaker, who charges that he brought about the deal whereby the stock owned by John and Horace Dodge was sold to the Ford interests in 1919 for $26,000,000, today filed suit in the Wayne Circuit Court against the Ford Motor Company for $500,000. Ayers in his petition asserts that he worked for six months negotiating the sale and then had to return to his trade as a toolmaker in the Ford plant without a commission. He argues that the amount he seeks would be a reasonable fee.

Although he never had an understanding with the Ford Company Ayers asserts that he conceived the idea of obtaining the minority stock for the Fords and he was encouraged to carry it out.

THE SCREEN

JANICE MEREDITH, with Marion Davies, Holbrook Blinn, Harrison Ford, Macey Arbuckle, Mattie Delano, May Vokes, Otis Rowland, Spencer Charters, Mildred Arden, Douglas Stevenson, George Nash, Joseph Kilgour, W. C. Fields, George Siegmann, Tyrone Power, Helen Lee Worthing, Princess Marie de Bourbon, Kenneth Maynard, Robert Thorne, Harlan Knight, Wilfred Noy, Russell Powell, Colonel Patterson, George Cline, Burton McEvilly, Lee Beggs, Edward Argus, Nikolai Rosenberg and Mrs. Maclyn Arbuckle; special music score by Deems Taylor. At the Cosmopolitan.

No more brilliant achievement in ambitious motion pictures dealing with historical romances has ever been exhibited than Marion Davies's latest production, "Janice Meredith," which was presented last night before a notable and enthusiastic gathering in the Cosmopolitan Theatre. Familiar faces of the fair, the brave, the vampires and villains of the screen world were on all sides. Miss Davies was not present, being in California, but her friends roundly applauded her shadow on many occasions. The audience was often thrilled, constantly interested and frequently amused during the projection of this photoplay, which has taken more than eight months to produce and has cost a fabulous sum.

Long before the title appeared on the screen more than 2,000 picture enthusiasts flanked the carpets leading to the door, finally intruding as far as the inside portals. This great throng, attracted as moths to the flame of lights thrown on the theatre, was an annoyance to persons with tickets for the show, and at 9 o'clock the police reserves and special officers were called upon to clear the theatre lobby.

There are a number of famous historical episodes in this film which were used by David W. Griffith in his production, "America." One of them, the ride of Paul Revere, is possibly not quite as dramatic as the scenes in "America," but it is always gripping and perhaps more realistic than Mr. Griffith's sequence. It was with intense earnestness that Mr. Griffith depicted the indomitable courage of the men at Valley Forge, and his effort appears to have inspired Mr. Hopper, who directed "Janice Meredith." The chapter in the latter film is highly dramatic and very beautiful, but hardly rivals the pace set by Mr. Griffith.

However, Mr. Hopper has taken full advantage of an opening left to him by Mr. Griffith. It is the unforgettable crossing of the Delaware by Washington. This sequence is to "Janice Meredith" what Paul Revere's ride was to "America." It is something in moving picture photography which will be remembered for years by all those who see it, even if they behold it twice.

Mr. Hopper pictures Colonel Rahl and his Hessians at Trenton; they are gloating, bombastic, sneering and supercilious as the time Washington and his troops are heroically embarking from shackle boats on the far bank of the river. To these men of iron the ice-filled waters meant something that must be conquered. Then a picture of Washington in a familiar pose, inspiring his men, who with oars, boathooks, sticks and bayonets are pushing, pulling and shoving to get their craft to the other side, making woefully slow progress in their short but perilous journey. One sees men in the water being rescued from great cakes of ice. Slowly, very slowly, the boats made progress, and in this film it all seems as if life had suddenly been given to the well-known oil painting. There is eight hundred feet of this stretch, without a dull second.

The "feel of the Colonial mansions, of life in those old days, of the Boston Tea Party, of the great ball given by Howe in Philadelphia, are as fine as anything one could hope to see. One almost gasps at the beauty of the scenes of the French Court, with the King and Queen receiving Benjamin Franklin. The costumes are superb and the crowds are handled with exceptional dexterity.

Miss Davies proves her histrionic ability in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and also in "Little Old New York," but in many scenes of "Janice Meredith" she gives even a better performance. The costumes suit her beauty, especially one she wears with a hat turned down on the right side. She is enthusiastic, loving, mischievous, petulant, fiery and imperious. Her every flash of anger, twinkle with smiles, become tearful in affection and narrow in fearlessness. Her mouth bespeaks her moods for the scenes in a most impressive manner, her lips are being pursed in happiness, separated in joy and exhilaration, and curled in defiance. She wears more than twenty costumes in this film, and each one of them makes her appear a refreshing sight for the eyes.

Holbrook Blinn impersonates Lord Clowes, the man who is the height of elegance and the depth of villainy. He adores the beauty of Janice, but never forgets that he is a Tory of the first water. Somebody appears to have surrounded Mr. Blinn with men who are all of greater stature than himself, but nevertheless he shines in every sequence in which he takes part and is especially clever in the duel scene.

Joseph Kilgour is dignified and imperturbable as Washington. Princess Marie de Bourbon has the part of Marie Antoinette, and Helen Lee Worthing is Mrs. Loring, the fickle English beauty once adored by Charles Fownes (Harrison Ford). Mr. Ford is more pleasing in this production than he was in "Little Old New York," but his appearance is better suited to harsher characters.

Maclyn Arbuckle is admirable in the role of Janice's father, and nothing could be more perfect in characterization than George Siegmann's impersonation of Colonel Rahl. One could go along the great cast and praise all in this picture, the story of which was adapted from Paul Leicester Ford's novel of the same name.

Without being hypercritical one might suggest that several sequences should be cut, especially the Valley Forge stretch and Washington praying. A couple of hundred feet at the end showing Washington and his reception of Janice Meredith and her parents have been produced in colors, and some of the scenes are truly beautiful, while others are quite indistinct.

This is a picture story which every admirer of courage will thoroughly appreciate. The story is well told; in fact, it is more inspiring than the love story in "America."

FOREIGNERS SHUN GERMAN HIGH PRICES

PROF. GLUECK ARRIVES

Heidelberg Botanist Will Study Thistles to Introduce Them as Food.

American passengers arriving yesterday from Hamburg on the American liner Mongolia said that all the foreign tourists had been driven away from Germany because of the high prices since the stabilization of the currency. The exchange is 4 gold marks 20 pfennigs to the American dollar, but strangers are lucky if they get four marks for it. The average rate allowed in the restaurants, hotels and stores is about 3.90.

A room and bath in a second-rate hotel in Hamburg costs $5 a day and $9 to $10 in a first-class hotel. Breakfast from $1.35 to $1.50 and a moderate luncheon for two with beer costs about $5. The bed linen is changed once a week, the travelers said. Hand towels, about the size of a small pocket handkerchief, are changed twice a week. No soap is provided. The tax of 80 per cent. on hotels for foreigners has been reduced to 40 per cent.

Among the German passengers who arrived on the Mongolia was Professor Hugo Glueck, who holds the Chair of Botany at the University of Heidelberg. In the course of a three months' visit Professor Glueck will travel through New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts to study edible thistles with a view to introducing them into Germany for the people to use as an article of diet.

He said that the enrolment at Heidelberg University for the Summer season totaled 3,500 students, while an equal number had attended the previous session, which closed in June. This had been the largest number of students at the old university on the banks of the Neckar since the early Summer of 1914 before the war.

Another passenger was Ralph M. Laurer, foreign manager of the Robertson Leather Company, who is on his way to Buenos Aires. He said the German manufacturers were paying as high as 60 per cent. annually for loans obtained from German banks. One of the largest shoe leather concerns in Germany obtained a loan of $600,000 from the Disconto Geselschaft, just before he left, at a monthly rate of 4½ per cent., and was forced to mortgage its plant to get the money.

Karl Steffan, 82 years old, a retired farmer who had lived forty-two years in Nebraska, arrived on the Mongolia to visit his six children who live at Harrington, Wash. Ten years ago he went back to Germany to spend his declining years in his native city, Hamburg.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Pressure was high Tuesday night over the Northwestern States, along the North Pacific Coast and from the East Gulf States eastward to Bermuda, and it was low over practically all other regions, with centres of minimum pressure over Quebec, Kansas and Southern Arizona. This pressure distribution has been attended by local thunder showers within the last twenty-four hours in the North Atlantic States, the upper Ohio and upper Mississippi Valleys, the lake region, the middle Missouri Valley, the Plains States, the southern Rocky Mountain region and along the South Atlantic and East Gulf Coasts. The temperature continued to rise Tuesday in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, while cooler weather overspread Iowa, Minnesota, the Central Plain States and the central Rocky Mountain region. Cool weather continued throughout the Northwest during Tuesday, and abnormally high temperatures again prevailed from the lower Mississippi Valley westward to Western Texas.

The western disturbance will move eastward and it will be attended by local showers and probably thunderstorms almost generally over the States east of the Mississippi River within the next two days. The weather will remain generally fair Wednesday, however, in Tennessee, the East Gulf States and in the Atlantic States south of Pennsylvania. There will be little change in temperature in the Washington forecast district Wednesday, but lower temperature will prevail in the Ohio Valley and the Lower Lake Region Wednesday night and Thursday and in Tennessee and the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States Thursday and Thursday night.

TRANSIT COMMISSION HIT

Violated Agreement to Withhold Its Report Until He Had Seen It, Says Froessel.

Bankers, contractors and other business men of Queens were drawn yesterday for the new Grand Jury in that county, which next Monday will begin an investigation of the Long Island Railroad wreck in the Sunnyside yards, in which a woman was killed and thirty-six other passengers of a Port Washington train were injured. The jury was selected under direction of County Judge W. Bernard Vause.

County Judge Burt Humphrey, on a vacation in New Hampshire, had granted the request of District Attorney Newcombe for an immediate Grand Jury investigation and had asked Judge Vause to direct the inquiry.

Assistant District Attorney Charles W. Froesset yesterday replied to a statement of Transit Commissioner LeRoy Harkness. Mr. Froessel said:

"The statement in the press attributed to me is absolutely untrue and without any basis of fact. I never, in form or substance, stated to any one that 'the District Attorney's office does not care what the commission publishes.' On the contrary, I was concerned about the commission's first report, as submitted to me, because it showed how incomplete their investigation had been and it was in fact an exoneration of the railroad company and its officials, whereas my preliminary investigation indicated that there had been culpable negligence on the part of said officials. I positively requested Major Mathews to withhold publication of their report, and the best proof of this fact is that the only report submitted to me was never published.

"As to the second report, based upon further investigation by the commission at our request and a joint inspection by representatives of both offices, I was present when it was arranged between District Attorney Newcombe and Major Mathews that this report would first be submitted to the District Attorney, the following morning, for his guidance in the examination of additional witnesses. The necessity for secrecy as to the result of this second investigation was thoroughly understood by Major Mathews and the commission's engineers, and this is evidenced by the fact that when their engineers, Mr. Selmer and Mr. Daniels, called at our office the morning following the publication they stated that they could not understand why the report was made public in advance of its submission to the District Attorney, for which very purpose they had called.

PLEA FOR DAVIS IGNORED

W. B. Wilson Asked Council to Get Nominee's Views Before Making Endorsements.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 5.—The reasons why the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor failed to comply with a request to withhold action on Presidential endorsements until it had the speech of acceptance of John W. Davis before it will be set forth in a communication which President Samuel Gompers will write within the next few days. It was admitted today at the headquarters of the Federation in the Hotel Ambassador here that such a request had been received from William B. Wilson of Pennsylvania, a prominent labor man and Secretary of Labor in the Wilson Cabinet.

It was made plain today by Matthew Woll, Vice President of the federation, that that organization not only would not oppose Defense Day celebration plans, but he quoted a decision of the Executive Council to show that while labor "opposes militarism, it holds that it is the duty of a nation to defend itself against injustice and invasion."

The message from Mr. Wilson is supposed to have been received by the labor chiefs last Friday. That they did not honor it is shown by the fact that their report endorsing La Follette was adopted the next day. Mr. Wilson's message requested that action be withheld until Mr. Davis's views on labor problems, as contained in his speech of acceptance, were available. His letter contained a summary of Mr. Davis's record on behalf of labor.

"The letter from Billy Wilson," said Matthew Woll today, "was received and the council has authorized Samuel Gompers to answer it, which he will do within the next few days. Mr. Wilson wrote to me as one who had been requested by the Democratic National Committee to assist in the election of John W. Davis."

Word was received at headquarters today that Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico, would arrive in Atlantic City Thursday or Friday to visit the labor chiefs in session. President-elect Calles is a labor man and has had personal associations with Samuel Gompers. Mr. Calles is credited with the belief that through this organization contacts can be obtained which will work out to the advantage of both Mexico and the United States.

Not to Oppose Defense Day.

It was announced after the morning session that the council, contrary to previously expressed forecasts, would not take any special action in regard to National Defense Day. Instead, Matthew Woll, who has been acting as Mr. Gompers's spokesman, made a statement in which he said labor already had made its position clear as opposed to both militarism and pacifism, adding that much of the criticism was a result of "a part of the world-wide organized pacifist propaganda and hostile to American democracy," Mr. Woll's statement on Defense Day follows:

"We have denounced both militarism and pacifism. We understand the designs of the militarists who would take advantage of every opportunity to feed and promote the war spirit, and we likewise understand the designs of the pacifists who would disarm America first and other nations later. Most of them prefer to disarm all nations except Soviet Russia, so that the dictators of Moscow may find easier their road to a greater dictatorship. We oppose that move of all.

"Mr. Gompers has said with truth that 'there is something too craven for words' in those who snarl at the burden of the price of liberty. It is true that the suggestion for civilian mobilization on Defense Day has opened the door to much pacifist criticism, also by those who are not at all pacifists, but I am confident that at least a great deal of the criticism is insincere, a part of the world-wide organized pacifist propaganda and hostile to American democracy. Defense Day itself is a matter of law, and I think most labor men will feel that our military establishment may participate properly in the exercises. Our military establishment is not a force apart, but composed of Americans who are just like the rest of us in their love of freedom and their love of their country.

"The Communists lose no opportunity to turn loose destructive propaganda to undermine American institutions. We know this propaganda from contact and we know its purpose. The most active pacifist influences at work in America today are those directly under Moscow control.

"We oppose militarism at every turn. We have set forth our belief in regard to world peace and we do not delude ourselves into the notion that it is coming through the efforts of pacifists. It will come through proper world organization, and perhaps not in a great hurry.

Cites Labor Decisions.

"Let me cite a decision of the Executive Council in its meeting on Dec. 10, 1922: 'The American Federation of Labor is devoted to the cause of peace. It has attempted from the earliest days of its existence to promote that cause. The American Federation of Labor, however, believes in peace with freedom, and is not willing to lay down any condition which will make impossible resistance to the aggressions of tyrannical autocracy and to freedom.'

"Even more to the point is a paragraph from the proclamation of labor's position in peace or war, adopted by representatives of national and international unions in Washington on March 12, 1917, just before we entered the World War:

"Our labor movement distrusts and protests against militarism, because it knows that militarism represents privilege and is the tool of special interests, exploiters and despots. But while it opposes militarism, it holds that it is the duty of a nation to defend itself against injustice and invasion.'

"Finally may I point out what the Executive Council said in reporting to the A. F. of L. convention of 1918:

"'International anarchy creates the opportunity for aggression on the part of strong, resourceful nations seeking an outlet for unemployed energy and excess of production. Where there are no established agencies or methods for dealing with such aggressors, militarism manifests itself and can be eliminated only when the field of international relations is justly organized.'

"The record is ready and for that reason the council is likely to find no need of a further statement of position."

A Call to the Masses.

The other important event of the day was the drafting of an appeal by the Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee to carry into effect the endorsement of Senators La Follette and Wheeler. The committee, which made the original endorsement report, consists of President Gompers, Secretary Frank Morrison, Vice President Matthew Woll and James O'Connell, President of the metal trades department.

In addition to organized labor, the appeal is directed to its "friends and sympathizers," and to "forward looking men and women generally." The committee declares there is already manifest "a tremendous degree of enthusiasm and determination." The appeal was drafted and adopted today and it is announced that it will "be in the mails to some 40,000 addresses by tomorrow." It calls "upon the great masses of the people of our republic to rally with all of their energy and strength to the cause of progress, justice, freedom and democracy," and says "the American Federation of Labor proposes to engage in this campaign with its full resources." The appeal asks for contributions "immediately and as generously as possible."

It is pointed out that campaign work will be begun immediately.

There is a disposition on the part of some of the observers here to interpret the way the Executive Council has handled the political questions brought before it as indicating its desire to sound out its strength and the sentiment of its rank and file with a view, should conditions warrant it, of putting a real workers' party in the field by the time of the national campaign of 1928.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—Reports of differences between the Political Committee of the American Federation of Labor and other so-called "La Follette groups" today brought from the Executive Council, which is in session here, a statement intended to clarify its position. This statement was a warning to all other party organizations that the American Federation of Labor had assumed leadership in the choice for Congressional candidates for labor to support and would brook no interference. The statement was almost a challenge, concluding, as it did, with these words:

"We will announce our list of acceptable candidates for the Senate and House. We are not concerned and will not be guided by what Morris Hillquit of the Socialist Party or any other group leaders may do.

"If they run counter to our campaign that is their responsibility. We will not subordinate our program to that of any one else."

HARVARD WANTS PLANS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

Invites Architects to Compete for Award to Build $4,000,000 Business School Group.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 5.—President Lowell today announced that the university would conduct an architectural competition for a complete group of buildings to house students attending the Harvard Business School. The designs are to be used in the erection of about ten buildings of the school, made possible by the recent gift of George F. Baker of New York. The complete development will cost approximately $5,000,000 and will be located on the Boston side of the Charles River, near the stadium.

The proposed group of buildings will include not only those used for strictly educational purposes, like classrooms, library, administration and research buildings, but a complete living unit for students of the school. It is the belief of the Faculty of the school that the right type of training for the profession of business is as much dependent upon the character of the living influences which affect the students as the work done in the classroom. The new plant will furnish full opportunity to demonstrate this educational theory.

The competition is to be in two stages, the first of which is open to all American architects in the United States, no plan to be paid for. Six winners will be selected who, together with six architects chosen by the university and the donor of the buildings, will enter the final paid competition. It is expected that the final jury will include Mr. Baker or his representative, two representatives of Harvard University and two architects chosen by the final competitors.

It is assumed that the cost, including architect's fees, of the portion of the project covered by this competition will be approximately $4,000,000. The sum does not include the cost of factory building, power house and heat supply tunnels, filling and landscape treatment, equipment, expenses of competition, &c. The architectural style is to be in consonance with Harvard tradition.

The following architects, who have designed satisfactory buildings for the university, for Harvard clubs, or for the donor, or who have official connection with the School of Architecture of the university, have been selected to participate in the final stage of the competition: Coolidge, Shepley, Bulfinch & Abbott of Boston; Professor J. J. Haffner and associates of Cambridge, Guy Lowell of Boston, McKim, Mead & White of New York; Parker, Thomas & Rice of Boston, and Walker & Gillette of New York.

CHEAP TAXIS TO STAY.

President of U. S. Cab Corporation Believes Low Rates Will Stand.

Henry Weiss, President of the United States Cab Corporation and Vice President of the Empire State Taxicab Chamber of Commerce, declared yesterday the twenty-cents-a-mile rate was here to stay. Before the cut-rate war Mr. Weiss said the cabs were unoccupied 60 per cent. of the time. Now, he asserted, the "dead" time has been decreased to 40 per cent. He predicted that more cabs will be in use 80 per cent. of the time. There is no chance, he said, of the companies increasing the present rates beyond the recent increase of thirty cents for the first mile, instead of twenty cents.

Julius Becker, Vice President of the Mogul Checker Cab Company, announced that this company, like the Luxor Cab Company, had added ten cents to the first mile. Seventy-five per cent. of taxi riders, he said, ride for a mile or less.

The Premier cabs, like the United States taxis, are maintaining the rate of ten cents for each half-mile.

In view of the charges that some chauffeurs neglect to take off anything from the amount registered on the old meters, Mogul cabs will be equipped with signs reading "One-third off." This is supposed to serve as a reminder to the passengers to make one-third from the total on the meter.

FASCISTI PLAN REFORMS.

Program Includes War on Profiteers and End of Bureaucracy.

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 5.—The National Fascist Council meeting in Rome may result in sweeping constitutional reforms, the Popolo d'Italia, personal organ of Premier Mussolini, edited by his brother, Arnaldo, declares today. The newspaper sets forth the following guiding principles of these reforms:

First, ridding the Fascist Party of profiteers.

Third, reformation of the bureaucracy, especially in the central administration of the chief city of each province.

Fourth, a defensive struggle against Freemasonry, shattering the army, judicial body and bureaucracy on the basis that it is indissoluble that State officials may take a secret oath.

Fifth, study of the problems of unions, syndicates and corporations governed by special legislation.

TINNEY, SUED, SAILS; FOLLIES DROPS GIRL

A few hours after he had been served with papers in his wife's separation suit, Frank Tinney, the comedian, sailed yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Columbus. For four hours before the whistle blew "all ashore" he talked in a cabin with Imogene Wilson, the Follies girl who recently charged Tinney with assault. It required the combined persuasion of Tinney and the ship's help to get Miss Wilson off the liner, and it was only at the final whistle that she fluttered down the gangplank, the last to leave the ship.

She walked right into more trouble, for in the afternoon Florenz Ziegfeld Jr. dismissed her from the cast of the Follies after reading of her farewell to Tinney on the ship.

"I dismissed Miss Wilson from the cast of the Follies this afternoon because she promised me that she would not have anything further to do with Frank Tinney," Mr. Ziegfeld said when asked why Miss Wilson's engagement with the Follies had been terminated. "She broke her promise and I discharged her on account of the notoriety and also to prevent a possible disruption of the morale of my cast."

Failed to Have Tinney Arrested.

Tinney had tried to keep his departure a secret by boarding the Columbus at midnight, although she was not due to sail until noon, but first Miss Wilson turned the spotlight on him and then a newspaper photographer tried to have him arrested.

Nicholas Peterson, the photographer, said he tried to take a picture of Tinney and Miss Wilson as they were leaving a Broadway restaurant on Saturday night and that Tinney struck him and smashed his camera. When Peterson applied to Magistrate Freschimann in the West Side Court for a warrant for the comedian's arrest the Court said that Peterson had no right to take the picture and dismissed his complaint.

Mrs. Tinney was not at the pier to bid her husband bon voyage, but at Baldwin, L. I., where the Tinneys have a Summer home, she did not hesitate to discuss the climax in their affairs. Tinney, she said, was at home on Monday and bade her good-bye.

Her lawyer, Harry H. Oshrin of 1,476 Broadway, said that if her husband had not been at home for several days and then sailed for Europe, simply because he was never coming back, it would be ample basis for a charge of desertion. "And that," he said, "is substantially what happened." The papers were served on Tinney soon after he boarded the Columbus, and probably will be filed in the Queens Supreme Court on Friday.

Mrs. Tinney, who was Edna Davenport before her marriage, said the suit had nothing to do with the assault charge brought against her husband by Miss Wilson last May.

"I could say a whole lot of things," she went on, "but what good would it do? I don't want anybody to think that I'm ready to join the rest of the mob that wants to jump all over Frank. He has a whole lot of good qualities, but he apparently hasn't sowed all his wild oats and perhaps never will. There never will come a time when I won't be a good friend of Frank's and help him all I can. There is no ill feeling, but I've had about all I can go.

"I don't want to answer any questions about any other lady or ladies that may be in Frank's life. I don't want to be coupled with these various individuals in any way, shape or form. I'm plugging along in my own way about it and for enthusiasm from skyrocketing persons who need a brass band and a three-ring circus to keep them happy. As a matter of fact, I'm not bringing this suit because of Imogene Wilson. It's being brought for another reason entirely.

Wife May Return to the Stage.

"Yes," she said in reply to a question, "I'll go back on the stage and live out here in Baldwin on thirty-five acres which surround this house. A fellow ought to be able to live on thirty-five acres all right, don't you think so? These acres are nice and flat and the boy and I living here makes the two of us on the level anyway. That's the only way to live in this world, I guess."

Mrs. Tinney was quoted by Peterson as saying "You'll get a postage stamp only once and I guess that about describes me," but she declared that she didn't quite mean it that way.

Julius Mendes & Kendler & Goldstein, 1,540 Broadway, Tinney's counsel, said the suit was no surprise to him at all, "as Mrs. Tinney had been talking about it for some time." He said there have always been the friendliest relations between Mrs. Tinney and the lawyers. He said he thought that the trouble might be adjusted amicably.

"The object of this suit, as I understand it," he added, "is merely to protect the property rights of Mrs. Tinney and her son, and to protect Tinney himself, for that matter. In a measure it is a welcome suit. Tinney has valuable real estate in Nassau County and also other property.

"The whole thing is a question of Frank Tinney. When he is in his right and sober mind, he doesn't do the things he is apt to do when he is otherwise. He might even be influenced to give some of his property away—perhaps to the Wilson girl. I know that Mrs. Tinney does not desire a divorce. She just wants to protect herself."

FIND HARVARD GUIDE DYING.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 5.—The police are investigating the mysterious death of John Ahearn, 50 years old, who was picked up shortly before midnight last night in an unconscious condition on the sidewalk on Boyleston Street a short distance from Harvard Square.

According to the police story, Ahearn, who was known to them as a guide at Harvard College, was seen by passersby as he was thrown from a taxicab onto the sidewalk on Boyleston Street. The police say the taxicab drove up to the sidewalk and the man was thrown out by a number of men. He was taken to the Cambridge Hospital in an unconscious condition and did not regain consciousness. He died about 3 o'clock this morning.

The attending physicians say there are no marks of violence on the man's body. All inquiries were referred to Medical Examiner David C. Dow. Dr. Dow would say nothing except that he would perform an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

SAYS KLAN BRANDED HIM.

Reporter of Woonsocket French Paper Burned With "K."

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Aug. 5.—Lucien C. Sansouci, reporter for La Tribune, a French language newspaper here, appeared today with the letter "K" burned on his forehead and left arm, saying the marks were made by hooded Klansmen with a heated iron and torch in the woods between Branch Village and Blackstone, Mass., last night. They had discovered him hiding in the grass near the scene of a Klan meeting, he said.

Sansouci reported the matter to Judge Mayotte of the District Court, to Chief Coe of the Woonsocket police and to Town Sergeant W. J. Allaire of North Smithfield. The place is in the latter's jurisdiction, and he was understood to be coming here to question Sansouci preliminary to making an inquiry.

Dry Agent Owens Accused of Perjury In Asking for Raid on De Fritsch's Home

Hugh McQuillan, Chief of the Intelligence Unit here for the Internal Revenue Bureau, said yesterday that it was on his recommendation that the Treasury Department in Washington last Monday dismissed from the service Prohibition Agent Robert J. Owens.

Mr. McQuillan said that in his report, after an inquiry into the seizure last Friday of $7,500 worth of liquors from 142 East Fifty-fourth Street, the home of Hugo Gibert de Fritsch, clubman and real estate dealer, he charged that perjury had been committed in the affidavit in which Owens swore that the building was a four-story brownstone house, the first two floors of which were given over to restaurant purposes from 10:30 o'clock at night until late in the morning. It was on the basis of the sworn contents of this affidavit that Federal Commissioner John N. Boyle issued a search and seizure warrant with which Agents Owens, Yost and Gallo conducted their raid.

Mr. McQuillan pointed out that the de Fritsch home was of three stories and had a white front. He said none of the floors was given over to restaurant purposes, and that invasion of a private residence when there was no evidence of the unlawful sale there of liquors was a violation of the law. It was pointed out that the building at 142 West Fifty-fourth Street, the address originally given in the affidavit and later corrected to read East Fifty-fourth Street, was a four-story brownstone house.

R. Q. Merrick, Divisional Enforcement Chief, said yesterday that he still believed that an honest mistake had been made by Owens, and that he had acted on information received by him in good faith from the man who supplied the tip, which proved false, that the walled house was given over to the sale of liquors on two floors.

CALLS HIRSHFIELD'S OFFICE SPY BUREAU

ALSO WATCH FOES OF HYLAN

Controller Charles L. Craig, who issued subpoenas upon more than fifty of the office employes of David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, made public last night a statement covering the results of his examination of some of these men. The Controller's statement follows:

"The examination today of employes of the office of the Commissioner of Accounts in connection with the audit by the Controller of expense vouchers submitted has disclosed an almost unbelievable condition. From admissions made under oath by various examiners, accountants and clerks of the staff of the Commissioner of Accounts, it appears that a system of espionage against city officials and others has been conducted by that office, sometimes by direction of Mayor Hylan and sometimes on the direction of Hirshfield.

"The office of the Commissioner of Accounts seems to be looked upon by Mayor Hylan as a sort of detective agency, with all that implies. Any one against whom the Mayor has a grudge or a suspicion of not adhering to his views is subject to 'investigation'; which sometimes has descended to shadowing, and other spying methods typical of political despotism.

"Some of Hirshfield's investigators flatly refused to reveal the sort of work they were doing, or the object of the expense, describing their activities as 'absolutely secret, 'private' and 'confidential.'

Called "Executive Inquiry."

"The character of much of the work has been camouflaged under the heading 'Executive Inquiry' on the vouchers submitted. Hirshfield's men explained that this term was used to cover 'confidential activities,' usually on the order of Mayor Hylan through Hirshfield. In many of these investigations only verbal reports were made.

"Such 'confidential' or 'executive activities' included the shadowing of city officials, 'looking up the party enrolment' of various individuals, watching a city official from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M., 'following' automobiles, and 'looking up' persons who criticized the city Administration, and private citizens associated with them.

"One operative of Hirshfield's office admitted that he had spent three days 'tracing' an official of the Controller's office. This occurred on March 6, 7 and 8, according to his testimony. On March 20, the same man, in the course of an 'Executive Inquiry,' spent the day shadowing one of the Controller's deputies. On another occasion, five days were spent 'investigating' the reported sale and delivery of 'hooch' in a car used by a Deputy Commissioner of Markets.

"An investigation that the Borough Presidents have been under almost constant surveillance by Hirshfield's agents. Some of these investigations have been made under direct orders from Mayor Hylan, practically all of them without the slightest warning or notice to Mayor Hylan's associates on the Board of Estimate. The only object the could be attained by such a reign of 'secret espionage' would be the intimidation of the heads of these boroughs in case they did not vote with Hylan on some of his projects.

Citizens Investigated Also.

"Beyond the use of the 'secret service' on the departments under the Mayor, such as the Health Department, where the investigator described his work as 'absolutely secret,' the Fire Department, the Public Welfare Department and numerous others are the other 'private' investigations of citizens who displease either the Mayor or Hirshfield.

"For example, The Brooklyn Daily Eagle does not agree with the Mayor. Therefore, an investigator is sent out to make an 'executive inquiry' as to the activities of the head of the Children's section of that paper, Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, one of the Christian Science leaders, published some views that Hirshfield did not like. Therefore, a high-priced employe, receiving his pay from the taxpayers, spends considerable time and effort to find out where Mrs. Stetson obtained her money. And, to crown this 'investigation,' this lady is forced to suffer the humiliation of being subpoenaed for examination by Hirshfield, all at public expense.

"This audit has merely scratched the surface, thus far, but the publication of the information already obtained will give an idea of the depths to which Mayor Hylan and Hirshfield are going to advance their own fortunes."

WOMAN IS SOUGHT IN CASHIER SLAYING

Police Also Looking for Auto in Which They Believe Body Was Taken to the Bronx.

ROBBERY SEEN AS MOTIVE

Dead Man May Have Had the $600 Missing From Restaurant Where He Worked.

A woman and a blood-stained automobile were the chief objects of the search the police were making yesterday for the murderer of Frank J. Nagle, Brooklyn restaurant cashier, whose body was found in a thicket in the Bronx Monday morning.

The woman sought was the one to whom Nagle said Sunday night over the telephone as he was about to leave Silver's restaurant, 581 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, where he was employed, "All right, dear; I'll be over in five minutes." The search for an automobile started after an investigation showed that it was probable that Nagle had either been slain as he was being driven from an outing of a political club held at Rye Beach Sunday night, or that his body had been transported to the Bronx after the killing had taken place in Brooklyn.

District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx and Captain John Duane of the Bronx Detective Bureau expressed the belief yesterday that Nagle had been murdered for money he had in his possession. At first the finding on the dead body of $40 in cash, a watch and a valuable ring led them to doubt this. However, the detectives learned that two days' receipts, amounting to $600, of the restaurant where Nagle worked, were missing Monday morning. A letter from Sam Silver, proprietor of the Silver chain of restaurants, saying that unless he kept his accounts in better condition he would be discharged was also found on the body. Louis Peltier, manager of the Fulton Street Silver restaurant, however, would not say whether or not he believed that Nagle had taken the missing money.

The detectives were inclined to think that Nagle might have been seen displaying the cash at the political outing, lured into an automobile by a woman and then slain. The $40 and the jewelry might have been left on the body, the detectives said, for the purpose of making the motive seem other than robbery.

Both Brooklyn and Bronx detectives felt certain that Nagle was not slain on the spot where his body was found. Captain Sullivan of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau held to the theory that the man had been killed in a rooming house in that borough, and he ordered his men to canvass all rooming houses to try to discover either a man or a woman who might have taken a heavy bundle containing Nagle's body from the house. He also told his men to try to discover a taxicab driver who might have driven the person with such a bundle to the Bronx.

The Bronx officials declared that the killing had taken place either in or near the Bronx. A white collar button, a black visor, found in the bushes near the body, led them to the supposition that Nagle might have been murdered at the outing of the political club. The headquarters of the association are located near Nagle's home and he was known to have been interested in politics in a minor way. The cap bore the inscription "Member of the M. G. A.," and was similar to those worn at the outing. Last night the detectives had not succeeded in finding any participant in the outing who had seen Nagle there Sunday night.

The autopsy performed by Medical Examiner K. Sellars Kennard at the Fordham Morgue showed that seven, not five, blows, had been inflicted on Nagle. The blows, Dr. Kennard said, had been dealt with a blunt instrument, very likely a wrench or a tire iron.

MOVE TO CLOSE DEAL INN.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 5.—A petition for a padlock injunction under the Volstead act was filed here today with United States Judge Bodine against the Deal Inn, 29 Richmond Avenue, Deal, Monmouth County. The application was made by Assistant United States District Attorney Harlan Besson on evidence gathered by Stanley Boylan, prohibition enforcement agent.

Boylan said that on May 8 last he went to the inn and arranged with an employe for a wedding supper. He was told, he said, that the supper would be served for $6 a plate. Boylan said he then asked if he could bring some liquor to be served to his guests and was told that he needn't do that for the inn would serve anything he wanted. Boylan swore that he then asked for a sample and for 75 cents was served a drink of Scotch.

Mr. Besson also filed bills for padlock injunctions against seven saloons in Newark, two in Paterson, three in Jersey City, three in Orange and one in Perth Amboy.

Disarmament Nearer

DAVID HUNTER MILLER, legal adviser to the American Peace Mission at Versailles, an expert in international affairs, predicts that Europe, now that the Dawes plan has been accepted, will soon take definite steps to disarm. He forecasts something novel, even spectacular, to take place at the September meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations, which will be attended by several Premiers.

Mr. Miller also analyzes the so-called American plan, or draft treaty, of disarmament. He writes an interesting article on an internationally absorbing topic.

NEW COUNTRY CLUB SUED BY PROMOTER

ALLEGE A BAN ON JEWS

Ex-Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock, Who Is President, Denies the Charges.

Difficulties in the promotion of an exclusive country club to occupy part of the country estate of the late William Rockefeller, known as Rockwood Hall, in Westchester County, were disclosed in the Supreme Court yesterday in a suit of Harold Bolster, promoter of the enterprise, against Rockwood Hall, Inc., a corporation formed recently to take title to the Rockefeller property, for the appointment of a receiver of moneys collected and for an injunction restraining the officers and agents of the corporation from disposing of any of the assets.

The case came before Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick, who denied the application on the ground that sufficient reason for the appointment of a receiver and the granting of an injunction had not been shown in the papers. An affidavit by Mr. Bolster submitted by his attorneys, Compton & Delaney, stated that one of the differences among the organizers had arisen from the fact that an effort is being made by the members of the Board of Governors to exclude wealthy Jews who had been aiding Mr. Bolster in the enterprise.

Mr. Bolster's affidavit stated that the Board of Governors consists of Vincent Astor, A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr., Leroy W. Baldwin, William Braden, Robert W. Chambers, Bainbridge Colby, Edward L. Doheny, T. Coleman duPont, Charles Dana Gibson, Major General J. G. Harbord, Frank H. Hitchcock, Messmore Kendall, Darwin P. Kingsley, Frank A. Munsey, Louis E. Shipman and Melville E. Stone.

Memberships Refused.

Mr. Bolster charges that Frank H. Hitchcock, former Postmaster General, who has been in charge of the organization of the country club in recent months, and has arranged for the purchase of the Rockefeller property from the executors, has refused to issue life memberships in Rockwood Hall to several persons who have taken a financial interest in the enterprise "because the members of the Board of Governors will not tolerate any one of Jewish extraction as a member of Rockwood Hall." Mr. Bolster asserts that this rule "is untrue, and is an excuse devised by said Frank H. Hitchcock for the purpose of depriving the members of Tarrytown Realty Syndicate, Inc., Christian as well as Jewish, of their right to participate in the profits of the enterprise."

Describing his plan to buy the Rockefeller estate for a country club last April, Mr. Bolster states that he was in sole charge of the venture from September until April last, when he became ill and was in the hospital for several months. He formed a syndicate, including a few personal friends, to be composed of fourteen members, of $2,500 each. The bulk of this money was to be used as the first payment on the contract to purchase the Rockwood Hall property from Mr. Rockefeller and John D. Gardner, the executors. He said he promised the syndicate members a prospective profit of $50,000 from the sale of the realty to the club, and also each participant was to get a life membership in the country club to be formed. The first payment was made in October.

He states that in December a second payment on the Rockefeller property was due and that Prime the Tarrytown Realty Syndicate, Inc., was formed, composed of the original subscribers to the syndicate, and the Sleepy Hollow Estates, Inc., was then formed as an intermediate corporation through which the property was to be transferred after it had been conveyed by the Rockefeller estate. This corporation was in turn to transfer such of the Rockefeller property as was desired for country club purposes to Rockwood Hall, Inc.

Expected $300,000 Profit.

Mr. Bolster assigned his contract for the purchase of the Rockefeller realty to the Tarrytown Realty Syndicate, Inc., composed of the original subscribers to the promotion syndicate, and this corporation then assigned the contract to the Sleepy Hollow Estates, Inc., for $85,000, which was to include the repayment of moneys already invested and $50,000 profit. The Sleepy Hollow Estates, Inc., then entered into a contract with Rockwood Hall, Inc., the country club, for the sale to the latter of about 400 acres, consisting of the bulk of the estate, for $1,250,000 and was therefore to have a profit, in case the venture succeeded, of $300,000, and the balance of the real estate purchased from the Rockefeller estate.

He states that he induced Frank H. Hitchcock to become President of the country club, but that he never received anything under his contract because Mr. Hitchcock insisted that it would be improper to use the funds collected from members until the club took title to the property.

Mr. Bolster alleges that after he became seriously ill in April, Mr. Hitchcock took charge of the country club plans, but that the membership campaign lagged. He said that for some reason Mr. Hitchcock decided to negotiate directly with the Rockefeller estate for the purchase of the Rockwood Hall property, and accordingly made a contract in June by which the estate was sold directly to the country club corporation "to the utter exclusion of myself, the Tarrytown Realty Syndicate, Inc., and the Sleepy Hollow Estates, Inc."

A replying affidavit by Mr. Hitchcock asserts that Bolster defaulted on his contract with the Rockefeller executors and that he then took charge of the enterprise. He contends that he faced the alternative of dealing with the Rockefeller executors individually in behalf of the club, or abandoning the club. He asserted that the club is not in financial difficulties and that there is no ground for a receivership.

Mr. Hitchcock submitted a financial statement in behalf of the club showing that the assets, including the clubhouse and grounds, are worth $1,818,000, and that the liabilities are only $17,000.

Turkey Forbids Polygamy Except in 'Unusual Cases'

Copyright, 1924, by Chicago Tribune Co.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 5.—Polygamy has been forbidden in principle in Turkey. A law has just been confirmed by Parliament to forbid marriage to more than one wife, except in "unusual cases."

These new regulations only place the seal of legality on what has been the drift of public opinion in Turkey for many years. While the Koran permits four wives, most Turks have long been monogamous, partly for economic reasons and partly on principle.

SALARY OF $20,000 PLANNED FOR O'SHEA

NO MORE FOR TEACHERS

Hearing on Budget of $102,000,000 Tomorrow—Action to Follow the Next Afternoon.

Dr. William J. O'Shea, City Superintendent of Schools, will receive a salary increase of $8,000 a year if the recommendation of the Budget Committee of the Board of Education is approved at a special meeting of the full board Friday afternoon to pass on the budget for 1925.

Every indication at present is that the recommendation will be carried and that Dr. O'Shea, as the executive head of the city's public school system, will receive a salary of $20,000 a year after next Jan. 1.

Announcement of the proposed increase aroused interest yesterday because of the short time that Dr. O'Shea has been in office. He became City Superintendent of Schools last May 1, after the Board of Education, following directions of Mayor Hylan, refused to re-elect Dr. William L. Ettinger, who had opposed the Mayor on many points of school policy. Mr. Hylan charged that Dr. Ettinger had failed to cooperate with the Board of Education. During Dr. Ettinger's term of office the question of increasing his salary came up, but favorable action never was taken.

The Budget Committee decided against increasing the pay of teachers until after the survey now being made of the schools has been completed.

The budget for the coming year will be approximately $102,000,000 an increase of about $4,000,000 over this year's budget. The largest part of this increase will be used to defray salary increments of teachers, as provided by law. The original requests made to the committee by the various departments of the board totaled $116,000,000. The cut of $14,000,000 was made by Dr. O'Shea and M. Samuel Stern, who represented the Board of Education on the committee.

In contrast to the former policy of the board, only one public hearing on the budget will be held this year. This will take place tomorrow evening, less than twenty-four hours before the meeting of the Board of Education at which it is proposed to pass the budget. Last year several public hearings were held.

TWO COUPLES KILLED IN CROSSING MISHAP

Two men and their wives were instantly killed shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were riding to a berry picking outing stalled on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad at New Lisbon, N. J., ten miles from Mount Holly, and was struck by the Seashore express on its way from Long Branch to Camden.

The victims of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Haines, parents of five small children, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bush, who had three small children, all of New Lisbon. Haines was driving the car and Bush was seated beside him. Their wives were in the rear seat. As the car approached the crossing, which is near the New Lisbon State Hospital station, persons on the station platform heard the whistle of the express, which then was about a mile away.

Haines, aware of the time of the train's approach, put on speed, but when the little car got in the middle of the track something went wrong with the motor, and it stalled.

William Bowe, the engine driver on the train, whose home is in Long Branch, saw the automobile coming toward the crossing, and kept sounding his siren. When his train, going at top speed, got nearer to the crossing, and he discovered that the automobile was not moving, he held his siren open in one shrill shriek.

Bowe threw on his emergency brake, but it was too late, as the train was going too fast.

Coroner Ridgeway of Pendleton immediately began an investigation. He questioned the many witnesses on the station platforms and vicinity, as well as passengers. They all exonerated Bowe. Coroner Ridgeway said that no inquest would be necessary, that the defective motor of the automobile had caused the crash.

Patrick Filomino of 1,112 East 213th Street, the Bronx, was driving his car in the heavy shower through Pauiding Avenue in the Bronx last evening when, at 213th Street, Robert Valensky, 3 years old, of 852 Tilden Street, running through the rain in the direction of his home, dashed into the path of the car. He was thrown ten feet and was unconscious when Filomino took the little fellow to Fordham Hospital, where he died three hours later. The police, after questioning witnesses, said that they were satisfied that Filomino was not to blame.

George C. Boldt Jr., who retired recently as manager of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, was slightly injured in the forenoon when he was knocked down by a taxicab at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-first Street. He refused to permit Policeman Mawloy of the Traffic Division to call an ambulance and hurried to the University Club, Fifty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue, where he is stopping, and was attended by a private physician. He lodged a complaint against Albert de Maggeo, chauffeur of the machine, of 249 East Seventy-seventh Street for failing to stop at the crossing. De Maggeo will appear in the Traffic Court today on a summons issued by the policeman at the crossing.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

That bond market prices, notably for European Government issues, should have advanced again yesterday and that European exchange rates should have moved upward with them, but that prices of stocks and grain should have fallen back, was not at all unnatural. The New York stock market and the Chicago grain market have been "discounting" the situation in their respective fields continuously during many weeks, whereas the foreign exchanges had been moving cautiously and doubtfully until the agreement at London and the bond market had been reflecting almost automatically the extremely low rates for money. It followed that speculative engagements for the rise must have grown far more rapidly in stocks and grain than in foreign exchange or investment bonds.

Under such circumstances, the sales to take speculative profits which occurred in large volume yesterday, with resultant reaction in the price of stocks, wheat, corn and oats, were natural and entirely salutary. It is markets in which the successful "bull speculator" can never induce himself to turn his profits into cash, and in which he uses paper gains as a basis for fresh ventures on the side of rising prices, that are really dangerous. That was the lesson of 1919. Yesterday's stock market reaction was orderly and evenly distributed, ending with prices mostly around the lowest.

On the other hand, four of the Liberty bonds touched new high prices for their history, the French dollar bonds went into new high ground for 1924, British and French Government loans advanced on the London and Paris Stock Exchanges. All this was a logical response to the turn of events in Europe and the home money situation; so was the steady recovery in what European writers used to call the "reparation exchanges." The general bond market moved similarly; apparently the influence of low money rates had not yet spent itself. In ordinary years, it is apt to do so before the end of August, when plans for Autumn trade come into sight in the money market. Whether this year's circumstances are or are not sufficiently out of the ordinary to prolong the influences working on the bond market remains to be seen.

Rising prices for commodities being usually an incident of trade revival, considerable interest attached to the monthly "index numbers" published yesterday. The advance during July is computed by Dun, on the "weighted average" basis, at 1% per cent. and by Bradstreet, on the basis of flat month-end averages, at 3¼ per cent. Both computations show that, although the rise since the year's low point (in June) has been considerable, the general average of prices is still below the monthly showing of last Spring. The breadstuffs group, as might be expected, is an exception. Its present average is no less than 18 per cent. higher than that of April 1, when the list of commodities as a whole reached the high point of 1924 to date; but other products are mostly under the prices of that month.

One inference from these facts is evident: there is as yet, at any rate, no sign whatever of the "inflation boom" which was predicted in certain quarters as a sure sequel to the continued piling up of idle gold in the Federal Reserve and the fall in money rates to the lowest since our entry into the European war. Thus far the rise in commodity prices has resulted almost exclusively from a change, notably with cereal products, in the relation of supply and demand. If, as is highly probable, price should presently advance in the other groups of products, that movement also will undoubtedly reflect an increase in actual demand at a time when output and available supply have been sharply reduced. But it is often a hopeless undertaking to induce the up-to-date imaginative economist to accept such commonplace reasoning. Philosophers of the Keynes and McKenna schools are even now telling us that what has really happened is that the Reserve Board, by some unexplained hocus-pocus, "sterilized" the gold in the Reserve banks and prevented it from exerting its normal inflationary influence, until the pressure became too strong to be resisted any longer.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, AUG. 5, 1924.

Tenor of money market was one of evenness, as previously, light demand for both day to day and fixed-period accommodation restricting business. There was some calling of loans on the Stock Exchange in the forenoon, but it had no effect on the rate, which continued at 3 per cent., while 1½ per cent. was made outside. The bid of 3¼ per cent. was strongly put for the distant maturities, but there was no money on offer at this figure. Both commercial paper and the acceptance markets were moderately active, good inquiry being reported, but sales were somewhat limited because of scarcity of paper.

DENY NEW CONTROL OF BIG POWER CO.

EXCHANGE MADE INQUIRY

Henry H. Pierce of the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, who is a member of the Executive Committee and general counsel for the American Water Works and Electric Company, stated yesterday that there had been no change affecting the ownership or control of the company. He made the statement in the absence of H. Hobart Porter, President of the company, who is in the West on a vacation. It follows:

"In view of the persistent rumors regarding attempts to purchase control of American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., which have been current during the last few weeks, it seems desirable to state the fact, which is that there has been no change in the control of the company, that the control lies today with the friends of the present management, and has not at any time been threatened or in doubt. The management doubts very much if there has been an attempt on anybody's part to purchase control of the company."

The foregoing bears out what many in Wall Street have regarded as a salient feature in relation to the reported passing of control through buying in the open market of American Water Works and Electric shares. That was, that if control had been bought in this manner it had been done without the cognizance or consent of the management.

The interests most frequently mentioned in connection with the reported deal were the Electric Bond and Share, the public utility management and financial subsidiary of the General Electric Company. Others were mentioned, however. S. Z. Mitchell, as President of the Electric Bond and Share Company, last week denied a report in a trade newspaper that his company had bought control of American Water Works and Electric, or had any intention of obtaining control. The effect of his denial was to divert the story to other public utility interests which might be in the market for such a property or chain of utility properties controlled by American Water Works and Electric, a $250,000,000 corporation. A canvass called to reveal that such was the case.

Several weeks ago when the stock of the American Water Works and Electric started its advance from around $70 to above $117 a share—the latter price being reached last week—it was reported in Wall Street that a "corner" had been established in the shares. The Business Conduct Committee of the New York Stock Exchange at once started an investigation, but found that nothing resembling a corner had been effected, or was likely, and that a "free and open market" existed in the stock.

Officials of the company are understood to have conducted a canvass of outstanding stock, including shares held in Holland, which were reported to have changed hands, with the result that substantially more than a majority of the stock was ascertained to be held by the present management and its friends.

GEORGIA AND ALABAMA HIGHLY PROSPEROUS

Crops Good and Business Prospects Best in Seven Years, Says Railroad Head.

Business prospects in Georgia and Alabama are more promising than at any time since 1917, according to L. A. Downs, President of the Central of Georgia Railway, who is here on his way to Canada for a vacation. He predicted that his company would earn a greater gross and net in 1924 than last year.

Car movement on his road in July was the largest in its history. Previously the largest movement was last March, when the farmers purchased large quantities of fertilizers. With the exception of coal, all commodities moved in large quantities during July.

He expected the cotton crop of Georgia would exceed 1,100,000 bales, compared with 700,000 in 1923. The corn crop promised to be much larger than in several years, and other products in Georgia and Alabama, besides being bountiful, would bring good prices to the farmers.

He accounted for the improved conditions since the war partly by the fact that the farmers were no longer leaving the work entirely to their negro help, but were going into the fields themselves and directing it. Diversification of crops also had improved conditions.

A large number of negroes who had come North, he added, were not satisfied with conditions and were returning to their homes in the South, so that there is no shortage of labor.

PRESS STOCK FRAUD WAR.

Investment Bankers to Discuss Methods at Next Convention.

The war on bucket shops and fraudulent promotion schemes will be brought to the fore in the next annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America. This convention will be held in Cleveland, Sept. 22-24, inclusive.

With the cooperation of various State governments, the Investment Bankers' Association has this year carried on a successful campaign against fraud, and it was said yesterday that one of the latest weapons utilized by the association and State authorities cooperating with it has been the radio. By means of the radio, the State of Ohio has checkmated the selling plans of many false security venders and similar plans have been placed before authorities in other States.

The Ohio plan has been perfected to a high degree of efficiency. The State authorities, running across the trail of fraudulent security sellers, tip off the banking agencies who send word out over the radio, describing the salesmen, their wares and their methods of approach. In the meantime, the State agents continue the work of search and persons approached have frequently benefited from the warning received via radio, and have followed this up by notifying the State authorities of the whereabouts of the swindlers.

The Investment Bankers' Association, of which John W. Prentiss is the retiring President, will also discuss national legislation. A Federal law, patterned after the Martin act of New York State, will be advocated. The bankers will also discuss tax legislation.

PRESSED STEEL CAR PASSES DIVIDENDS

EXPECT TO RESUME SOON

Vacuum Oil and the Timken Roller Bearing Company Announce Extra Distributions.

Directors of the Pressed Steel Car Company, at a meeting yesterday, suspended dividend payments on the preferred stock for the first time since the incorporation of the company in 1899. Annual dividends have been paid at the rate of 7 per cent. The directors also suspended the payment of dividend on the common stock. The announcement was not made in Wall Street until after the close of business on the Stock Exchange. Both the common and preferred stocks, however, were weak in the closing hour. The common closed with a net loss of 2½ points at 41¼, and the preferred on a few sales dropped 6¼ points to 70.

The passing of the dividend on the common was generally expected and was discounted by the decline in the stock from 62 to 41 since the beginning of the year. Suspension of dividend on the preferred, however, was a surprise. Yesterday's price of 70 on this stock compares with 90 quoted earlier in the year.

F. N. Hoffstot, President of the company, said that under its charter, counsel advised the directors that dividends on the non-cumulative preferred stock for any fiscal year should be paid only out of the net profits for such year. In view of this, he said, the directors decided to defer dividends on both the preferred and common until the net profits for the fiscal year have been determined. Mr. Hoffstot also said that business this year had been below normal, but expressed hope that net profits for the year would be sufficient to enable the directors to resume dividends at the regular rate.

Directors of the Vacuum Oil Company declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. Both dividends are payable Sept. 20, to stockholders of record Aug. 30.

The Timken Roller Bearing Company announced an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 75 cents a share. Both dividends are payable Sept. 5, to stockholders of record Aug. 20. The company has paid extra dividends of 25 cents quarterly regularly since September last year.

MONEY MARKET DELAYS PAYING NATIONAL DEBT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Money market conditions are now having the peculiar effect of delaying slightly the process of paying off the public debt of the United States.

Treasury statements of finance operations today showed that last year between July 1 and Aug. 5 the Government spent $35,470,500 in paying off its outstanding debts to the sinking fund. For the same period this year no money was expended.

The reason assigned for the situation was that at the present time all obligations of the United States in the form of bonds, notes and debt certificates are selling at a premium, which in the case of one issue is above 5 per cent. The law does not allow the sinking fund payments to be invested in anything but Government obligations, and to make sinking fund investments at this time would occasion a loss by reason of the fact that the Government would have to pay above par for anything that it purchased. Sinking fund purchases may be made at any time during the current year, and in consequence the Treasury is exercising the discretion of holding its funds in cash instead of putting them out and paying the premium.

The net cash balance in the general fund today was $237,540,634, a part of which must be used before the end of the fiscal year for paying off debts through the operation of the sinking fund. One payment to the United States of $10,000,000 was received yesterday as interest from France on the $400,000,000 indebtedness which arose from the sale to that country after the war of all the American army supplies which were not returned when the army came home.

On this debt France has regularly paid interest, though on the loans made by the United States to the French Government for the purpose of fighting the war, which total a much greater sum, France has paid neither interest nor instalments on principal.

PACIFIC GAS DIVIDEND.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company, in announcing yesterday the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the preferred capital stock, payable Aug. 15 to stock of record July 31, reported gross earnings for the six months ended June 30 of $22,198,596, and net after taxes, &c., of $8,461,878. There was a balance of $1,851,359 after depreciation, prior charges and dividends on the preferred stock. Earnings were equal to $6.38 a share on the preferred.

The regular quarterly dividends of 1¼ per cent. and 1¾ per cent. have been declared, respectively, on the 6 per cent and 7 per cent. preferred stocks of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light Company, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 15.

Permits Five Roads to Merge.

The Michigan Public Utility Commission has granted permission for the merging of the following railroads in Michigan and Ohio, according to word received in New York yesterday: the Pennsylvania & Detroit, the Cincinnati, Lebanon & Northern, the Cleveland, Akron & Cincinnati, the Toledo & Columbus and Ohio River and the Manufacturers Railway. The consolidation is to be known as the Pennsylvania, Ohio & Detroit Railroad Company.

Hartman Corporation's Sales.

The Hartman Corporation reports gross sales of $1,061,775 in July, against $1,082,675 a year ago. Gross sales for seven months were $11,297,224, against $10,664,664 in the same period last year.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Rates Soar to New Highs Early, but Realizing Later Cancels Improvement.

European exchanges were irregular yesterday. In the forenoon, a continuance of the buying lifted sterling and the Swiss francs to new highs for the year, with substantial improvement in French francs and Continentals. About midday there came a severe break, which sent rates through opening prices, but the decline was not great enough to impose overnight losses. Not a great deal was done on either side of the movement, the initial strength being attributed to the presence of higher cables and Paris and Amsterdam orders, and the selling, while not concentrated and coming from any particular source, represented the action of those who were straightening their market position by taking profits. Nothing in the news, at least, was responsible for the break.

Sterling rose in the forenoon to $4.46¾, a gain of 1¾ cents, but yielded later to $4.45¾. Paris francs advanced 15¼ points, to 5.55 cents, but weakened to 5.40½ cents. Belgian, Italian and Holland bills were alternately strong and weak, while the Swiss franc gained 8 points, to 19.81 cents, a new high. Scandinavians were weak. The Far Easterns and South Americans were firm; so, too, was the Canadian dollar.

HEAVY PUBLIC BOND AWARDS DUE SOON

State and Municipal Issues Totaling $50,000,000 Scheduled Within Next Three Weeks.

MUCH INTEREST DISPLAYED

Recent Quiet Period in This Class of Securities Expected to Result in Lively Bidding.

Approximately $50,000,000 worth of State and municipal bonds are to be awarded within the next three weeks, all except one block in small issues. There will be much interest in the awards because of the recent quiet period in municipal financing. Following on the heels of active bidding in which new high levels were set on tax-exempt securities, the approaching issues will be watched closely. Opinion among investment bankers seems to be that peak prices for this year in the tax-exempt issues have been closely approached if not reached.

Included in the offerings now in sight are $12,000,000 State of Illinois bonds, divided into $9,000,000 of highway 4s and $3,000,000 of soldiers' bonus 4½s, on which awards will be made Aug. 16. The highway issue will be sold at public auction and the bonus bonds by way of sealed bids, the highest bidder, with all other things equal, receiving the issue.

Other awards to be made follow:

On Aug. 11, $3,830,000 Cincinnati, Ohio, 4½s; $5,000,000 Los Angeles school district 5s, and $3,000,000 Charlotte, N. C., 4½s.

On Aug. 13, $2,000,000 Los Angeles City 4½s; $1,100,000 Cleveland, Ohio, 4½s, and $703,000 State of Maryland 4½s.

On Aug. 14, $1,649,000 City of Trenton 4½s.

On Aug. 15, $12,000,000 State of Illinois bonds.

On Aug. 18, $1,000,000 State of Alabama 4½s and $1,000,000 City of San Francisco 5s.

With the soldier bonus program and the State highway building work for 1924 now virtually all cared for, bankers said the second half of this year would be quiet in the State and municipal group. Demand for tax-exempt bonds, they said, continues strong. Even allowing for a sharp shrinkage in business, the second half, as compared with the first, they said, the total for 1924 would probably exceed by several hundred millions the $1,000,000,000 mark.

VAN SWERINGENS HOLD TWO MERGER MEETINGS

The Van Sweringens of Cleveland continued their conferences on the proposed Nickel Plate merger yesterday, and also their policy of saying nothing regarding their various meetings. So far as the financial district could hear there were two conferences during the day, the first at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. with representatives of that firm, and another in the afternoon with representatives of J. & W. Seligman & Co., who are bankers for the Pere Marquette.

On account of the wide ramifications of the Van Sweringen activities the opinion was expressed by both bankers and railroad executives that a large amount of detail would have to be worked out before the Van Sweringen plan could be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission, as it stands today the plan is said to be one of the most elaborate that has ever been attempted, and by far the largest of many ventures that the Van Sweringen interests have attempted in recent years.

F. E. Taplin, President of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia, representing interests which acquired control of the property several months ago, in a statement given out yesterday declared that the interests he represented were still in control of the property. He said that the Van Sweringens might have an interest in the property, and they might not, he did not know.

Salvador Customs Collections.

F. J. Lisman & Co. report that the Salvador Customs collections for July were $251,466. The interest and sinking fund charges on the 8 per cent. Salvador bonds for July amounted to $56,053. For the first half of 1924 the customs collections totaled $3,180,006, while the sinking funds and interest on the bonds amounted to $411,599.

SINCLAIR EARNINGS GAIN IN SIX MONTHS

CHAIRMAN ON THE DIVIDEND

The statement of earnings of the Sinclair Consolidated Corporation for the first half of 1924 shows gross earnings of $62,438,184, against $55,586,809 in the same period last year, and net income of $9,053,104, after all expenses and charges but before reserves for taxes and reserves, against $7,284,359 in the same period last year. The net income for the first six months of this year was equal to $1.84 a share earned on the 4,491,893 shares of no par value common stock outstanding, after allowing for regular preferred dividends, against $1.44 a share earned in the first half of last year.

Exp., maintenance, ordinary tax, &c.	50,561,564	46,794,808
Net earnings	$11,876,620	$8,792,001
Interest discount, &c.	2,823,516	1,507,732

H. F. Sinclair, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in a statement to the stockholders said, in part:

"At this juncture in the petroleum industry a progress you may welcome an outline of the steps taken to protect your corporation's interests and assure full participation in the improved conditions which must come.

"My investment in the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation is in its common shares. Your interest and mine are identical.

"The omission of the common dividend was due to the desirability of conserving cash during the present unsettled condition of the industry as a whole.

"This unsettled condition is due to overproduction of crude oil, accumulation of excessive stocks of refined products and recurrent public agitation dictated in part by the selfish motives of demogogues and in part by the sincere criticism of those who do not understand the fundamental principles underlying the petroleum industry.

"The first two of these problems will find their own solution, but the third can be solved only by the public. An income statement of all petroleum operations in America combined undoubtedly would show that the industry is operating at a loss. Demagogues are seeking to hold the industry to that level or force it even lower, and so long as the public gives them sympathetic, or even passive, encouragement they will continue more vigorously to attack not only the petroleum industry, but all other forms of business. Their course leads toward widespread unemployment, general weakening of the country's credit structure, lessened production of the necessities of life, poorer values and ultimate disaster to all American industries.

"Under the adverse conditions of the first six months of 1924 the volume of sales was increased 33 per cent. and operating expenses were relatively reduced. As a result, though prices were lower, the amount of earnings available for surplus and reserves, after deducting interest charges, was $9,053,103.99, as shown in the income statement herewith.

"While this gives evidence of the company's ability to withstand adverse conditions, it does not reflect the company's normal earning capacity, which is much greater today than ever before. The company's operations are now more perfectly balanced, its properties are larger and more efficient, and its organization is thoroughly co-ordinated."

OIL MEN'S TRIP TO MEXICO.

Committee to Discuss Problems With Government—Go Next Month.

Members of the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico held a meeting yesterday to choose a committee which will visit Mexico City in the near future to discuss the problems of the oil industry with officials of the Mexican Government. The personnel of the committee was not decided on, however, according to Guy Stevens, Director of the association, as it is not yet known whether the executives of the larger companies will be able to make the trip, some of them now being in Europe. The committee will leave for Mexico in September, on a date to be chosen.

Arrangements for the visit, it was explained, were made at the request of the Mexican Government. Mr. Stevens said that there was no foundation for reports from Mexico that the committee will be empowered to discuss a loan to the Mexican Government.

Sales reports of the larger chain store organizations covering July show further expansion compared with the corresponding month last year. The companies which reported increases in sales as compared with last year included F. W. Woolworth Company, J. C. Penney Company, Inc., F. & W. Grand Stores and the Jones Brothers Tea Company.

The F. W. Woolworth Company reports gross sales of $15,950,247 for July, against $14,001,775 in July last year, the increase of $1,948,472 in sales being equal to 13.92 per cent. in the aggregate. BUSY MOVING BIG BANK.

Trucks Taking Federal Reserve Records to New Home Night and Day.

In order to complete the big job of moving the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from its present scattered offices to the new bank building on Nassau Street at Liberty, a day and night shift has been employed. The institution will be housed in its new quarters some time in September, and moving trucks are working at all hours to speed up the work.

Five floors of the new building are now occupied, it was said yesterday, and other floors are nearly ready for occupancy. The accounting, bookkeeping and various record departments have been moved. The headquarters offices of the bank, where the executive work is done, will be retained in the present site of the Equitable Building until the last step in moving.

The work has been done with little if any interference in the heavy traffic of narrow Nassau Street. Guarded trucks approach the Reserve Bank, are quickly loaded, and go on their way without attracting much more than casual interest of passersby who normally are ready to gather in big crowds around any spot where there seems to be action.

COPPER PRICE ADVANCED.

Following the lead of the London market, the price of copper advanced one-quarter of a point here yesterday. Copper is now held at 13⅜ and 13½ cents a pound delivered in the Connecticut Valley. These quotations represent an advance of ⅜ to ½ cent.

A much better demand was reported from abroad, and prices of export copper advanced ⅜ of a cent a pound, with the price aside ship in New York now 13⅜ cents a pound.

How to protect your estate and your family

1. If you die without a will, your property will be liquidated and distributed according to the laws of the State; your family will be involved in the intricacies of court procedure at the very time when such details are most distressing; and their inheritance may become the prey of inexperienced or unscrupulous persons.
2. Only by a will can you designate to whom your property shall go, preserve any part of it, such as real estate or a business interest, in existing form, and yourself appoint a capable executor to settle your estate.
3. But if your estate is distributed outright, who will guide your wife or other beneficiaries in the investment of principal so that it will be conserved and a steady income be assured? Records show that the average estate lasts only seven years.
4. By your will, you may not only insure safety of principal and income for your beneficiaries, but also may relieve them of the trouble and worry involved in the management of investments or real estate.
5. This can be accomplished by the creation of a trust fund by which you turn property over to a trustee to hold and manage for a beneficiary to whom the trustee makes fixed income payments.
6. This form of protection more and more is being employed by far-sighted business men to protect a widow against designing adventurers or her own inexperience; to assure separate income to a married daughter; to preserve a son's inheritance until he has arrived at the years of discretion; or to insure capable management for a business.
7. The Equitable is in the business of settling estates and conserving inheritances. We have been entrusted with some of the largest estates in New York; we welcome the duty of conserving modest estates. We can settle your estate and protect your family faithfully, wisely and economically.

Our booklet, "How to Protect your Estate and your Family," will be mailed upon request. But you are invited to come directly to any of our offices and talk with a trust officer—without obligation and in entire confidence.

"How long will your estate last?"

Make sure now that your estate and your family will be protected.

COTTON ENDS HIGHER AFTER EARLY BREAK

MORE CROP ESTIMATES

Though an opening decline of 20 points occurred in cotton and both the grain and stock markets proved reactionary throughout the day, reports of deterioration in the plant in drought sections brought a recovery in prices of 24 to 34 points yesterday. A general disposition to even up interest in advance of Friday's report caused irregular fluctuations on a smaller volume of business than prevailed last week. Several private reports appeared, two of which estimated the condition at 68.5, the same as that issued by Washington as being the outlook on July 16. There was no relief in either the Central or Western producing regions, though rains fell along the Atlantic coast.

The Liverpool Exchange reopened after the bank holiday with a sharp decline in quotations both for spots and contracts.

State details showed precipitation at only four points in Texas, the heaviest being .88 inches at Cuero, in the southwestern part of the State. During the month of July, twenty-five stations received less than half an inch, many of them only a trace in 31 days, while only eleven stations had over an inch of rainfall. The average for the State was about 1¼ inches in 1922 and over 1¼ inches in 1923, both drought years. Only four stations in Texas received as much moisture as the average for the entire State two years ago. The low record for Texas in the past twenty years was 1.05 inches in 1918. As contrasted with this deficiency in the Southwest, Charleston, S. C., has received 7.80 inches in the past four days.

Live Stock Prices at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Hogs were 25 cents higher early, but closed with part of the advance lost. An early top of $10.65 was made, but half the upturn was lost after urgent shipping orders were filled. The day's average was $9.55, or within 20 cents of the recent high made a week ago. Receipts were 16,000. Arrivals of lambs and sheep of 24,000 were the second largest for a Tuesday since January. Prices, however, were steady, with top lambs $13.90 and bulk at $13.50@$13.85 for range stock. Natives reached $13.35. Cattle were 15@25 cents lower for good to choice, with prime long fed steers up to $11.40 and yearlings $10.85. Thin grassy steers were hard to move.

GENERAL ADVANCE IN PRICES DURING JULY

The monthly index number of average commodity prices, as of Aug. 1, compiled by Dun's Review, shows increase of 1.4 per cent. during July. In the seven groups of articles, advances were scored in all except dairy and garden products and miscellaneous articles. The month's advance was greatest in the breadstuffs group, where average values rose 7¾ per cent. Meat products rose on the average nearly 6 per cent., and clothing and textiles almost exactly 3 per cent. The average price of breadstuffs is now the highest shown in Dun's monthly averages since November, 1920.

As compared with the low monthly average of the year, reached on June 1, the advance up to the beginning of this month had been 1.8 per cent., and the present average is still 1.6 per cent. below the high point of the year, reached on March 1. As compared with the low level of after-war reaction, in July, 1921, the present average shows an advance of 17.6 per cent. As compared with the high point of May, 1920, there has been a decline of 28.6 per cent. The present average exceeds that of Aug. 1, 1914, by 55.6 per cent.

Bradstreet's index number as of Aug. 1, based on the actual prices of that date and not on a "weighted average," works out an advance of 3.2 per cent. for the month of July. It figures the average to be 18.8 per cent. above the low level of June, 1921, and 45 per cent. above the average of Aug. 1, 1914. Of the thirteen groups of commodities into which Bradstreet classifies the list, ten show advance over July, while three, including fruits, building materials and chemicals, lost ground. It is further stated that during the month forty-one products advanced in price, twenty declined and forty-five remained unchanged.

PURE OIL REPORTS PROFITS

Humphreys Fields, Bought Last August, Yield $14,000,000.

The Pure Oil Company made announcement yesterday of the operations and profits on the properties purchased by it from the Humphreys Oil Company last August. At that time Pure Oil paid $22,500,000 cash for the outstanding three-quarters of the stock of the Humphreys Company. It already owned the other one-quarter.

From September, 1923, to June 30, 1924, these properties, acquired last Fall, produced 9,700,000 barrels of oil, and net profits before depletion and depreciation from this ten-months' output, including operations of refinery and pipeline included in the purchase, were approximately $14,000,000. The company's announcement added that the Humphreys leases are now producing approximately 700,000 barrels per day.

WHEAT GOES DOWN MORE THAN 3 CENTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Scattered liquidation developed in all grains and the technical position in the pit counted for more than anything in the way of news. Highest prices were made early and the lowest toward the close with net losses of 3¼@3½c on wheat, 1⅝@2⅝c on corn, 1¼@1⅝c on oats and 1¼@2c on rye.

Hedging pressure continues in the wheat market and has been on in volume for several days, which with the profit taking has finally filled up buyers and induced many of the eleventh-hour bulls to get out.

Reports from parts of Kansas indicated that the crest of the after-harvest movement had been passed in some sections and that interior haulings were smaller. Nat C. Murray and R. O. Cromwell were out with reports on the Canadian crop, the former estimating the total for all sections at 255,000,000 bushels, while Cromwell looks for 244,000,000 bushels, with an outside chance of 262,000,000 bushels. Last year's final returns were 474,000,000 bushels.

In parts of the Canadian Northwest, yields will be only three to five bushels per acre, and in sections where rain was received at the proper time, better than twenty bushels will be secured.

Drought in Argentina, strength in Liverpool and in foreign exchange and the rust talk from Manitoba were forgotten after values started downward.

Winnipeg was off 2¼@2⅝ cents at the last. Export business in all positions was estimated at 500,000 bushels.

WILSON PLAN DELAYED.

Bankers' Arrangements Await Auditor's Report on Packing Concern.

The report of the auditor on Wilson & Co., the packing concern whose reorganization or capital readjustment under the plan advanced several months ago is alleged to have been blocked by the Swift packing interests, was to have been ready by Aug. 1, but has been delayed pending the receipt of information from abroad, and until the figures are complete any statement in connection with the bankers' plans for the company would be premature. This, in substance, was the statement made yesterday following a conference of members of the bankers' committee at the Biltmore and presided over by Frank A. Wetmore, President of the First National Bank of Chicago.

The report has been that the Directors and bankers for Wilson & Co. had decided upon friendly receivership proceedings as the only way the company could put through a capital readjustment, following the refusal of the Swift interests to accept even the modified conditions submitted to them. Although Mr. Wetmore has stated that friendly receivership proceedings had not been discussed, and this was reiterated yesterday by one close to the company, others are not so sure but that something of the kind will prove necessary. It was said yesterday that the plans for the company's future are dependent upon what the auditor's report will show.

GERMANS SEEK LOANS.

Overtures Made Here in Anticipation of Dawes Plan Agreement.

Some German industries have been sounding out American bankers on the possibility of getting loans, it was stated yesterday, in anticipation of a successful conclusion of the reparations negotiations. American bankers have been hesitant about entering into commitments save in instances where sufficient security has been found in the form of actual commodities back of the loans to justify short-term advances.

The German Government offering of presumably $100,000,000 of bonds in this market would be only a starter in the expected call for American funds, it was said. Further financing would be in the interest of the iron and coal interests of Germany and for industries of lesser importance.

Through the entering wedge obtained some time ago by the Equitable Trust Company and by the Chase National Bank, acting separately, the American banking group was said to hold a slight advantage over the British bankers, who are second on the ground. At the present time, as a result of progress in the Interallied Conference, representatives of probably fifty important American and British banks are now in Germany going over the subject of prospective loans.

Barnsdall Bonds Reduced.

The Barnsdall Corporation reduced the amount of outstanding bonds by $900,000 during the second quarter of this year, according to announcement yesterday. This was accomplished, officials stated, in spite of unsettled conditions in the oil industry, in keeping with the company's desire to trim down its carrying charges. The funded debt of the corporation, which included its subsidiaries, was reported at $7,000,000, a reduction of $4,000,000 since 1921.

Mississippi Power Company Plans.

According to J. M. Barry, Vice President and general manager of the Mississippi Power Company, this company is negotiating for the purchase of a number of public utility properties in Mississippi in response to the demand in that State for hydroelectric power. He said the properties would be served from the system of the Alabama Power Company.

GONDORFS ARRESTED AGAIN

The Gondorf brothers, George and Fred, who in years past were the subject of much concern to the police of many cities here and in Europe, were locked up in cells in Police Headquarters last night on another swindling charge.

It was the first time since 1915 that the brothers had been taken into custody here, or since Fred, who is 60 years old, was sent to Sing Sing for a year and a half for swindling a man out of nearly $350,000. This time they were arrested at Columbus Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street by Detective Sergeants Raftis, Finn and Mugge of the Pickpocket Squad.

They were charged with swindling George Johnson of the Herald Square Hotel out of $1,340 in giving him spurious tips on horse races. They were alleged to have led Johnson to an elaborately fitted out fake pool room in which energetic "bookmakers" relieved him of the money.

The detectives made public records which they alleged showed that George, who is 65 years old, began his criminal career in 1879 when he was sent to Cranston Prison at Providence, R. I., for five years on a burglary charge.

The prisoners deny that they ever met the complainant.

FOLEY SUCCEEDS QUIGLEY.

Sworn in as Assistant District Attorney in the Bronx.

District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx announced yesterday that he had appointed Samuel J. Foley to fill the post of Assistant District Attorney made vacant by the resignation of William Quigley, who was recently made Commissioner of Licenses by Mayor Hylan. Foley took up his new duties immediately after being sworn in by Henry Shifter of the Bronx County Clerk's office.

Until yesterday he was a member of the law firm of Chapman & Foley. He is 33 years old and a graduate of the Georgetown University Law School. He was a football and basket ball star while at college and during the war served in France and was wounded. He is the son of the late Samuel J. Foley, who represented the old Twelfth District in the State Senate for many years.

OUTPUT OF GASOLINE DECREASED IN JUNE

BUT BETTER THAN JUNE, '23

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—Reports to the Department of the Interior show that there was a falling off in the production of gasoline by the petroleum refineries of the country in June, having a total of 737,080,701 gallons, as compared with 754,773,232 gallons in May. The daily decrease at this rate was 598,192 gallons, or 2.4 per cent. The June output of gasoline, however, was 16 per cent. greater than in June, 1923.

The reports show that stocks of gasoline on hand at the refineries decreased 51,095,536 gallons during June, with 1,598,858,219 gallons on hand at the end of the month. Exports increased 18,451,190 gallons over the figures for May. The total exports were 115,330,959 gallons. Total imports, with very little change, were 13,628,926 gallons.

The consumption of gasoline in June by the millions of automobiles and other gasoline-driven machines broke all previous records. Domestic demand was 686,974,204 gallons, a daily increase over the preceding month of 1,163,464 gallons, or 5.4 per cent., and a daily increase over June, 1923, of 8.4 per cent.

More Kerosene, Less Fuel Oil.

The production of kerosene in June amounted to 183,141,014 gallons, a daily decrease of 346,068 gallons, or 5.4 per cent. from the preceding month, but a daily increase of 2.3 per cent. over the production of a year ago. Total stocks on hand at the end of June were 293,322,967 gallons.

The output of gas and fuel oils was 1,106,711,936 gallons, a decrease of 40,223,844 gallons from the May production. Stocks on hand increased 62,900,663 gallons during the month.

The production of lubricants amounted to 90,804,523 gallons, a decrease of 7,444,014 gallons from the May production. Stocks on hand increased 4,853,566 gallons during the month. While the production of lubricants decreased, stocks increased during June, indicating a lower domestic demand for these two products.

During June the department received reports from 254 operating refineries with an aggregate daily crude oil capacity of 2,215,572 barrels, running to stills a daily average of 1,747,869 barrels of both foreign and domestic crude, or about 79 per cent. of their operating capacity.

This shows a decrease of 1 per cent. from the operations of the month before, and an increase of 1 per cent. over the operations of June, 1923.

2 Sentenced for Business Fraud.

Sol D. Snitow, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with concealing assets from a trustee in bankruptcy, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Garvin to ten months in the Westchester County penitentiary and fined $500. Harry Halmovits, who was named in the same indictment, was sentenced to fourteen months in the Atlanta Penitentiary and fined $1,000. Another co-defendant, Morris Savitsky, will be sentenced on Aug. 29. Assistant United States District Attorney Carl Brecher said that Snitow was in business as the Crown Cotton Mills.

Headgear for Men and Boys.

A new specialty offered this year by a leading hat maker is a rolled brim hat for small boys. It comes in tan or gray polos and with or without bands. Softings, sweeds and some suitings are the favored materials. Another special style for small boys is a miniature of a model worn by men, with a small peak and in a variety of shapes and colors. Men's caps are selling much better than usual. In some instances, about one-third more business is being done in this line. The best selling type has eight sectors, with a small button at the top to match. Peaks are smaller. Many caps of softings are being sold.

Vogue of Button Effects.

The vogue of button effects for women's dresses for this Fall is expected to give some much-needed stimulation to the button business. It is believed that by September the effects of the new style trend will have reached the button manufacturers. Profits have been poor lately, and competition is said to be so strong that there is very little money in the business, no matter how active it may be. Prices are at rock-bottom and the prospective increase in the demand is expected to send them up in a few weeks. The style trend is toward small buttons throughout where they are used for trimmings and to have them match the materials.

Forecasting Winter Styles.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Botany Worsted Mills that the fourth edition of "The Trend" is now being distributed. This book, prepared by the fashion service department of the Botany Mills, is an illustrated resumé and forecast of styles for the coming Winter in fabric, silhouette and color. The edition is the second to be printed in color, a new process particularly adapted for fashion work being used. The title page and initials are inspired by medieval manuscripts. A special editorial section is inserted in which Henry T. Farrar, manager of Bergdorf & Goodman, discusses "The Essential Fine Points of Dress" and A. Schwartz of Pedemode, Inc., "Tailored Styles in Shoes." While the fabrics featured in "The Trend" stress cashmere, stock napped coatings and dress fabrics, a wide range of cloths for tailored and sports wear is also included.

Yarn Demand More Active.

A larger volume of business has been placed in worsted yarns during the last four weeks than during the past five months, according to a leading yarn seller. The demand for the weaving trade has been the most active in preparation for the forthcoming light-weight openings. It is the belief, however, that further covering will be done, as some of the largest users have purchased very lightly. The buying of wool by the spinners has made for a larger wool movement over the past four weeks. This has been a contributing factor to the greater firmness in raw wool and as a result spinners have advanced prices from 5 to 7½ cents, with offerings subject to change. In dress goods yarns most of the business has been in single warp and filling yarns, with further sales of 2-50, 66s. There have been substantial increases in the bokings of orders for jersey cloth, coat sweater and bathing suit yarns.

Women's Belts Much Varied.

The present uncertainty about the size and location of the waistline is reflected in the women's belt industry by the variety in output and the orders placed. While advices from Paris show a preference by dress designers for the wide leather girdle, the narrow one is not out of favor here, and the demand in the local market is about equally divided between the belt of three inches or over and that of about an inch. The wide belts which at first were worn around a lowered waistline are now making their appearance snugly adjusted to a normal set, and some advance styles from Paris show belts at a high Empire waistline. These style factors, it is pointed out by the United Belt League of America, contribute to a big and varied volume of business.

Fall Trends in Neckwear.

The bulk of the present neckwear business is being done in bandings, scarfs and made pieces. Alencon lace, especially when combined with other laces, continues a favorite for vests. Bandings show a liberal use of heavier laces combined with Valenciennes and net. These are used for the long panels which are applied to the straightline dress and matched with rounding yoke goods for the neckline. A good demand for scarfs is indicated for the coming season. These show a tendency toward elaboration for evening wear, as the fur scarf will compete with the silk one for street wear.

Gray Goods Slightly Easier.

Trading in gray goods yesterday was not particularly active. Although cotton closed about 30 points higher, most of the strength was shown in the late afternoon. The prices of leading constructions of printcloths were slightly easier, the business, however, being almost entirely in spot or quick goods. Sales of 38½-inch 60-48s took place early in the day at 8½ cents for spot goods. For 38½-inch 64-60s buyers paid 9½ cents, while 10¼ cents was the ruling price for 39-inch 68-72s. Sales of 39-inch 80 squares were made at 13½ cents. In sheetings, 5 yard goods sold at 9¾ cents, and 5.50 yards at 8¾ cents. Drills were inactive, as were also sateens. The remainder of the market was bare of feature.

Higher Priced Garments Taken.

In the higher grades of women's coats there is less buying than there was last year at this time, but the business going on is in higher priced garments, and, consequently, manufacturers are not doing so badly financially as compared with the profits up to this time a year ago. In some cases they are further ahead in monetary returns than they were then. A lively business by Labor Day or shortly thereafter is forecast. The demand is more for dressy goods than sporty effects. Straight lines predominate in these garments, and draped-on-the-side patterns. Practically all are fur trimmed, with revers in much demand. Jap minks and squirrels and beavers are the outstanding furs. Cashmanns is the most favored cloth, with penny brown, saddle, kaffir and lebanese as the volume colors.

Outlook for Men's Clothing.

The beneficial effect of the crop situation in the West is being felt by the men's clothing trade and it inclines manufacturers to the belief that it may lead to a change from the hand-to-mouth policy which is widely prevalent among retailers. Greater activity is anticipated from now on, with the peak of buying expected by the end of this month. A factor in the situation is the idea in the minds of some buyers that prices will come down later, but little likelihood of this is seen by manufacturers. Materials are not deviating to any extent from the regular standard kinds. The staple stripes, including the customary pencils, are in good demand as usual. Conservative styles are selling well, with a two-button effect going strong.

Types of Sport Dresses.

Novelty sport dresses are in strong demand. The business has been good for some time, with gradual increases, and by the middle of this month promises to develop an especially big rush. There appears to be no indication of any material change in price levels. The volume goods are flannels, plain and striped crepe, charmeuses, twilleng and failles. An exceedingly wide diversity in colors is the order, with hairlines, stripes and plaids all going strong.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Joseph Back is no longer connected with the office of Ben Sykes, resident buyer, of 1,185 Broadway.

Isaac Woops, formerly a partner of the Dominick Dress Company, has become treasurer of the firm of Hugh A. Schroeder & Co., Inc.

Frederic Cool has been released by J. H. & C. K. Eagle, Inc., from a contract as sales manager of their dress silk department which was to have terminated at the end of next year, so that he may join the Phoenix Silk Manufacturing organization at once as Vice President and general sales manager.

GARMENT WORKERS START AID FOR IDLE

SANITARY LABEL ADOPTED

Dr. Henry Moscowitz Will Inspect Plants to See That Its Use Is Warranted.

Details of the garment workers' unemployment insurance fund, which will be used to aid members of the trade out of employment during the slack seasons, were announced yesterday by Morris Sigman, President of the International League of Garment Workers' Unions. Arthur D. Wolf, Vice President of the Chatham and Phenix Bank, has been appointed director of the Unemployment Insurance Fund Bureau and is now arranging for headquarters to house his staff of assistants. This fund, Mr. Sigman said, will be maintained by weekly contributions from the workers and employers. At a meeting held last week it was decided by the four representative units of the trade that the workers should devote 1 per cent. of their week's pay to the maintenance of the fund, and that the manufacturers should give 2 per cent. of their weekly net profits.

This fund has been made necessary, Mr. Sigman declared, by the seasonal fluctuation of the trade and the consequent unemployment of thousands of workers. A universal scale will be used when alloting assistance to members out of work. A detailed account of every worker's record of employment, hours spent in labor and amount earned will be kept by the bureau, as will also tabulated records of the employers showing their weekly earnings and the records of their payments to the fund. The bureau will handle all re-employment. Mr. Sigman said, and the rule of "first man out, first man back" will be adhered to.

This plan was unanimously adopted by the Protective Association, the Merchants' Association, the American Association, the unions and also received the approval of the Governor's Commission on Conditions in the Garment Trade in New York City.

A distinctive type of sanitary label to be placed on all garments made under sanitary labor conditions recognized by the associations was adopted yesterday by representatives of all units of the trade at a meeting held in the offices of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control at 31 Union Square. Dr. Henry Moscowitz, who has long been a member of the Sanitary Control Board, was appointed Director of Sanitary Labor. He will be in complete charge of the issuance of all labels, and they will be affixed only after a careful survey of the applying factory.

"Lost" Scientist Found in Toronto.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—Sir George Greenhill of Woolwich, England, member of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, who yesterday was reported missing from the party gathering for a convention in Ottawa, was found in Toronto today. He reported at the local headquarters of the annual meeting here, where he expressed surprise that any anxiety should have been caused by his disappearance.

5,000 K. OF C.'S HERE IN 42D CONVENTION

Praises Their Work During and After the War and Says They Unite God and Man.

Described as members of "an order that unites God and man, champions of American principles and ideals," more than 5,000 members and friends of the Knights of Columbus participated yesterday in the opening exercises of the forty-second supreme convention of the order. The Pope sent his Pontifical blessing, through Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State and the letter was read at the first session of the convention by Commissioner Edward L. Hearn, East Supreme Knight of the order.

The ceremonies attendant on the opening of the convention began with a solemn high mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, celebrated by Bishop Daniel J. Curley of Syracuse. The sermon was preached by Bishop William Turner of Buffalo. At the conclusion of the mass pedestrians and shoppers along Fifth Avenue in the vicinity of the Cathedral were treated to an exhibition drill by a team from the St. Louis Councils of the order. The avenue was cleared for several blocks north and south of the Cathedral and the evolutions of the team, garbed in Zouave costumes evoked much applause. With the Zouaves and their color bearers at the head of the procession the delegates and their friends then marched to the Waldorf-Astoria, where the convention will be held, and were welcomed by Mayor Hylan.

Mayor Welcomes Knights.

Before the Mayor made his welcoming address, Charlotte Griffith Ryan of the Metropolitan Opera Company sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Mayor tendered the delegates the freedom of the city in a speech in which he said he would tell the police that everything was alright with the "Canora." "If any of you get in any mix-up with the 'cops' while you are here," he said, "just give them the high sign; if that does not work call me up at City Hall."

He referred to the fact that prominent foreigners visiting New York City often had referred to it as the cleanest city in the world. "One of your faults has been permitted to direct this city," he added.

"Don't let any one think the lines have all been smooth," he continued. "I don't let any one think that I have had the cooperation and backing of all those of our faith. I have in many instances the cooperation of people not of our faith as much as I have of those who worship with us. I say frankly that I have had the cooperation of the great mass of the Catholics, Protestants and Jews in making this city clean and law-abiding."

Referring to the war and post-war work of the Knights of Columbus, he said:

"The work of the order is well known to most of us. What it contributed in men and money toward America's participation in the war which broke out just ten years ago has won the generous appreciation of the people, as well as the Federal Government. It was a splendid demonstration of the patriotism of an order which unites God and man. What the Knights of Columbus are doing to-day is no less well known. Its championship of American principles and ideals and the safeguarding of the sanctity of the law are in themselves sufficient warrant for the existence of the order.

"There are some organizations built on the cornerstone of intolerance. Equal and exact justice to all forms no part of their ritual. Their operations are disruptive of concord among races for they seek to nurture one branch of the human family and to destroy another. Opposed to these groups are such organizations as the Knights of Columbus, which seek to promote brotherhood and to allay racial and religious prejudices. An organization which fosters a love of God, hope of a life beyond and an obedience to civil as well as religious law, becomes a nucleus from which good citizenship may spring with the collateral good effect upon others of a righteous example."

After the Mayor's address a painting of Pope Pius X., purchased in Mexico, was presented by John Barton Payne on behalf of the American Red Cross Society.

Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia reviewed the work of the organization during the last year. He referred to the seven countries in which the Knights of Columbus have councils, and said that there were present at the convention representatives from each of the forty-eight States in the Union and from Canada, Panama, Porto Rico and Cuba.

"The Knights of Columbus have stood by the men who won the war from the days of battle until now," he said. "We are at the side of these men in the hospitals throughout the country; we are educating them in the trades and cultural courses through our free correspondence schools. We shall remain with them until every penny entrusted to us by the American public—which generously gave us $40,000,000 for this work—is expended."

When the roll of prominent New York members of the order was called applause greeted the names of the late Charles F. Murphy, Governor Alfred E. Smith and Cardinal Hayes.

While the business sessions are taking place today an elaborate program of entertainment for the wives, daughters and friends of the delegates will be carried out. The program calls for a sight-seeing trip around the harbor in the morning on the President Roosevelt and luncheon will be served on board. A special section of seats at the Mall in Central Park has been reserved for the party for the evening concert.

The Convention Committee consists of Daniel A. Tobin, State Deputy, New York; John A. Giblin, Long Island; Walter A. Lynch, New York, and Edward S. Hayes, Staten Island.

CALLS LA FOLLETTE WRONG.

Culbertson Denies Hoover Tried to Influence Tariff Commission.

WILLAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 5.—W. S. Culbertson, Vice Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, who is a conference leader at the Institute of Politics here, in a statement today denied Senator La Follette's charge that Secretary Hoover had compelled Mr. Culbertson to change his views on the [illegible] tariff.

Mr. Culbertson's statement is as follows:

"Senator La Follette has been reported to certain papers to have said that Mr. Herbert Hoover, the Secretary of Commerce, brought pressure upon me to change my views as a Tariff Commissioner upon the sugar duties. I cannot believe that the Senator was reported correctly, but if he made such a statement it was based on information which is absolutely false. Mr. Hoover has never in any way tried to exert influence upon me.

"No one has been a more sympathetic supporter of scientific tariff-making than Mr. Hoover, and it is absurd to suggest that he would seek by personal or political influence to interfere with the judicial application of the law.

"No denial of the charge accredited to Senator La Follette should be necessary to the American public, which has come to know and to rely upon the high standards of probity manifested by and guides the Secretary of Commerce in all his acts."

M'CUTCHEON & CO. TO GO UP FIFTH AV.

WILL MOVE A YEAR HENCE

James McCutcheon & Co., the linen house now at Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue, has decided to join the northward movement of trade, and will soon have a handsome new home on the southeast corner of Forty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue.

This site, directly across from the new Saks department store building, is considered a very valuable corner.

For years the property, on which are two old-fashioned, four-story brownstone dwellings, has been owned by Miss Elise M. White, who has now sold it to the Henry Phipps Estate. The site contains about 15,000 square feet. It has a frontage of 53 feet on Fifth Avenue and 175 feet on Forty-ninth Street.

Early this Fall the Phipps Estate will demolish the dwellings to erect a twelve-story and basement structure of a type in keeping with the neighborhood. James McCutcheon & Co. have signed a forty-two-year lease for the building.

The firm will occupy the main floor, basement and second and third floors, which will give much more space than it has at present, and will sub-rent the rest of the space to high-class concerns.

The sale to the Phipps Estate was negotiated by Veiller & Robertson, Charles G. Edwards & Co. and Anton L. Trunk. The lease to the McCutcheon firm was made by Anton L. Trunk and Veiller & Robertson.

It is expected that the new building will be finished about September, 1925.

The McCutcheon firm, established in 1855, has been in business for almost seventy years. The management now in control consists of James McCutcheon, President, who was a partner of the original Mr. McCutcheon; three nephews of Mr. McCutcheon, and William E. Speers, Treasurer of the company and a son of James M. Speers.

This is the first sixth move since it started in business. The first store was at 748 Broadway, and the others in turn at 848 Broadway, 18 East Fourteenth Street, 54 West Twenty-third Street, 14 West Twenty-third Street and Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue.

EISTEDDFOD GREETS PRINCE OF WALES

PONTYPOOL, England, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—The Prince of Wales received a rousing reception today when he visited the Welsh National Eisteddfod, which opened yesterday. The Prince was greeted with musical honors and initiated into the bardic circle with the customary rites. The ceremony took place inside a great ring of robed members of the Gorsedd in Pontypool Park.

Lady Trwoven invested the Prince with the green robe, while an address of welcome to him was delivered by the laurel-crowned Archdruid. The Prince received the bardic title of Ionweth Dywysog, the same as was conferred on Edward VII. when he was Prince of Wales.

After the ceremony the Prince, dressed in full regalia, was invited to participate in one of the chief events of the Eisteddfod, namely, the crowning of the prize ode winner. The successful bard was Prosser Rhys of Aberystwyth, Wales, editor of The Welsh Banner.

D. S. LEVY ASKS RECEIVER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—David S. Levy of New York, stockholder in the Commonwealth Finance Corporation, which went into the hands of a receiver on July 24, filed suit today in his own behalf and that of other stockholders in the District of Columbia Supreme Court to have a receiver appointed to take charge of the assets in this city. These assets are said to consist of equities in a number of office buildings, apartment houses and other property.

This concern was mentioned in a report submitted by a Congressional subcommittee four years before Congress passed the bill extending the life of the rent law here. The report alleged losses by the corporation amounting to about $18,000,000, but Mr. Levy's figures are $7,600,000.

The report submitted to Congress purported to show the existence of a "real estate ring" in this city whose alleged object was the forcing of tenants on buildings, whose valuation was grossly inflated in order to obtain more rent or more money on the resale.

Besides the corporation, Henry D. Tuday, former President; Charles Dickson, Harry L. Burrage, L. M. Umsted, N. A. Merritt and Theodore L. Wood are named defendants by Mr. Levy. It is set forth, in the petition of Mr. Levy that the individual defendants formed a corporation in South Dakota, and later induced the stockholders to exchange for stock in a Delaware corporation called the Commonwealth Finance Corporation, and transferred all the assets of the Dakota corporation to the Delaware corporation. These officers, it is charged, voted themselves huge salaries, and, in conjunction with a Washington appraiser, said to have been a brother-in-law of one of the officers, invested heavily in loans and construction here.

FIGHTS BUILDING PLAN.

Court to Decide If 14-Story Structure Is a "Dwelling House."

A suit to determine whether a fourteen-story apartment house is an "ordinary first-class dwelling house" was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Spottswood D. Bowers, lawyer, owner of the property at 4 East Seventy-seventh Street, against the Fifth Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street Corporation, which recently acquired the lot at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, and has announced its intention of building an apartment house there.

The complaint alleges that in 1871 the property owned by the plaintiff and the defendant belonged to Uriah F. Rogers, who decided to split it up into building lots, and to insure against the erection of objectionable buildings the deed of the property to the late John D. Crimmins prohibited the erection of anything but an "ordinary first-class dwelling house."

The plaintiff states that this has been observed until recently, when the defendant advertised its intention of erecting a fourteen-story apartment house and is about to begin excavating. The plaintiff asks an injunction against the erection of an apartment house there.

EQUITY DENIES PEACE MADE WITH HARRIS

Emphatic denial was made yesterday at Equity headquarters of the report that Sam H. Harris, prominent among the die-hard "round robin" managers, had made an arrangement with Equity whereby he would continue production under an arrangement calling for an 80 per cent. Equity representation in his casts. Monday, from sources close to Mr. Harris, it was learned that "Rain," a Harris production, would reopen at the Gaiety Theatre on Sept. 1 for a period of four weeks, and it was intimated that Mr. Harris had made his peace with Equity along the lines indicated.

"So far as Equity is concerned," said Paul Dullzell, Assistant Executive Secretary of the organization, "the only way for Mr. Harris to reopen 'Rain' is with a 100 per cent. Equity cast. Mr. Harris is not a member of the Managers' Protective Association, which has made an arrangement with Equity calling for a minimum of 80 per cent. Equity membership in the productions made by its members.

"It has been asserted that Miss Eagels is a Fidelity member. Miss Eagels, who is not a Fidelity member, is signing a contract approved by Equity."

CHEAPER BOOKS FOR BLIND.

The Committee on Reduction of the Cost of Braille Publishing, organized under the chairmanship of the Director of the Bureau of Research of the American Foundation for the Blind, 41 Union Square West, met yesterday at the rooms of the Foundation and agreed upon revolutionary changes in the form of publishing for the blind in America.

The committee recommended that books for the blind be printed on two sides of the page instead of upon one side, as has been the practice in this country, and also that all publishing houses for the blind in America standardize upon a Braille volume of a uniform size.

It is estimated that these changes will result in a considerable reduction in the cost of Braille publishing and will add greatly to the convenience of finger readers and librarians.

As two-side printing has been carried on in Europe for a number of years, a subcommittee has been appointed to go abroad to study the machinery and processes employed in Great Britain, France and Germany. This subcommittee includes Robert B. Irwin, Director of the Bureau of Research of the Foundation, who is blind; E. E. Bramlette, Superintendent and Secretary of the American Printing House for the Blind, and Frank C. Bryan, Manager of the Howe Memorial Press.

When these men return from Europe in October it is expected that several of the printing houses for the blind will begin two-side printing in the standardized volumes agreed upon at yesterday's meeting.

It was stated at the Foundation office that the economies effected by the findings of the committee should be encouraging to philanthropic persons who are contributing funds with which to print books for the blind, as the money thus contributed will now accomplish much more good than has been possible in the past.

The American Foundation for the Blind, which has been directing this investigation, is a national organization which conducts investigations in the ways and means of promoting the interests of the blind, and is at present giving special attention to increasing the meagre supply of books now available to those who must read with their fingers.
